Holiday Mail Sets Record

3-cent ones were sold. In 1938 the totals were: 46,000 1½-cent and 15,800 3-cent stamps. In other words while larger amounts of both kinds were sold this year, the proportion of 1½ and 3 cent stamps remained about the same as last year.

Total cash stamp sales at the local postoffice also showed an increase over last year. In the season just past the total was $2,113.91 while in 1938 the corresponding amount was $1,792.

As late as Tuesday of last week postal officials here predicted that the 1939 season would fall far behind last year in volume of business, but late Tuesday there began a rush which soon left the 1938 figures far behind.

Officials report that there was a marked increase in the number of insured parcels in the mails this year, while the incoming parcels to inmates at Rockview penitentiary were unusually numerous. The prison mail department relieved much congestion by supplying a truck and a postal employe to carry mail from the postoffice to the prison. Under prison regulations, each package was opened and its contents carefully inspected before being turned over to inmates.

Many prisoners received packages containing whole roast chickens or other fowl. In their search for articles prohibited to prisoners, mail censors carved the fowls and placed the sections and the dressing on platters before turning over the items to the addressees. Oranges, fruits and other gifts were examined with great care to prevent the prisoners from obtaining forbidden items. The immensity of the task may be appreciated when it is taken into consideration that on one day alone seven truckloads of Christmas packages were received at Rockview from the Bellefonte postoffice.

All Christmas mail in the postoffice at the close of business Saturday night was delivered the same evening, and on Sunday and Christmas Day a deluge of incoming parcel post material was delivered almost as soon as it was received at the postoffice.

Mr. Meek reports that a number of letters, greetings and parcels were not delivered because of errors or omissions in addressing. A number of cards gave names but not addresses; many envelopes bearing greetings carried one-cent stamps, which is sufficient postage for 'drop' letters in postoffices where carrier service is not maintained, but which is not sufficient for delivery from postoffices where there is carrier service.

Some parcels wrapped only in tissue and tied with colored ribbons, were not delivered because the addresses were torn off, or the wrapping was missing. Mr. Meek advises patrons to bear in mind that all parcels going through the mails should have an outside wrapping of heavy paper to withstand the wear and tear of handling and transportation.

At the Bellefonte postoffice separate slots are provided for local and for outgoing letters. Mr. Meek reports that because many persons dropped their Christmas letters and greetings into the first slot they saw, a postal employe had to be stationed at the drops constantly to sort local and outgoing mail. The official added that this feature alone kept one man from his normal duties elsewhere in the office.

The busiest day at the local office, from the standpoint of cancellations, was Tuesday, December 19, when 24,440 pieces of mail went through the cancelling machine. The busiest day in the 1938 Christmas season was December 21, when 21,330 envelopes were cancelled.

In concluding, Mr. Meek delved into an interesting comparison. In Philadelphia, he said, the Christmas postal business totaled about $29,000,000 for the city's population of approximately two million persons. If Bellefonte had a population of two million persons and if they had patronized the local postoffice to the same extent that the 5000 did last week, he said, the total Christmas business for the Bellefonte office would have been about $40,000,000, which makes Bellefonte citizens better postoffice spenders than Philadelphians—if that proves anything.

Road Gives Way Under Truck

A gasoline truck became mired in a ditch along the Jersey Shore-Antes Fort road early Thursday morning. Private W. J. Carson, state motor police, reported the fuel truck, owned by the Castanea Supply Company, and driven by Frederick W. Eichenlaub, Lock Haven, plunged into a ditch when the road gave way on a curve. The weight of the truck load twisted the frame and broke the front spring.

There are men in this country who can't even please their wives and yet they expect a public official to please everybody, including their wives.

Ag. Extension Group to Meet

The figures which Mr. Dickey will give should enable farmers of Centre County to determine whether they should plant hybrid corn or use the corn they have been accustomed to.

"Home Is What You Make It" will be the subject of an interesting illustrated talk on home conveniences, by Prof. J. R. Haswell Extension Agricultural Engineer, also of State College. The speaker will, through the use of pictures, show many conveniences which housewives will be particularly interested in, such as uses of electricity, importance of water supplies in the kitchen, desirable lighting arrangements, and many other labor saving conveniences.

A number of local leaders who have been interested in various phases of the Agricultural Extension Service program in the county will give short talks explaining demonstrations and activities in which they have been interested. Extension agents will make a summarization of their work for the past year.

Mr. Musser states that the Agricultural Extension Service is an educational agency which during the past year has reached into all communities in Centre County. Over 150 county people have assisted the Extension Agents in carrying out their many phases of educational activities.

The county Executive Committee is made up of the following members, representing both agriculture and home economics: President, J. Foster Musser, State College; vice-president, Harry Confer, Howard; secretary, William Campbell, Centre Hall; treasurer, W. C. Smeltzer, Bellefonte; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Albright, Pa. Furnace; L. E. Biddle, Bellefonte; John Blauser, Spring Mills; A. J. Burrell, Millheim; Mrs. John S. Dale, State College; F. A. Esterine, Millheim; Willard Harter, Howard; Clair Fisher, Warriors Mark; Ward Krape, Bellefonte; J. J. Markle, State College; Howard Miles, Fleming; J. G. Miller, Pine Grove Mills; Malcolm Musser, Bellefonte; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Peters, Port Matilda; Guy L. Stearns, Bellefonte; Henry Stover, Aaronsburg; Mrs. Frank Vonada, Hublersburg; Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Zubler, Spring Mills.

Those in charge are very anxious that people interested plan to attend both the morning and afternoon sessions.

ed with the trunk lines, would make it possible for every community regardless of size, geography or landing facilities—the Air Pick-up does not require airports—to have overnight air service to any point in the country, giving them the same advantages that are now reserved almost exclusively to large and widely-separated centers of population because high speed transport planes cannot be efficiently or economically operated over short routes requiring frequent stops.

The value of the Air Pick-up system to the national defense also was stressed in the application which pointed out that a net-work of these feeder lines would be the means of creating and maintaining a large reserve of constantly-trained pilots of the type the government is now endeavoring to develop through its extensive civilian training program.

The application declared that the company is prepared within 10 months after receiving a certificate to begin a combination passenger-pick-up service using twin-engine aircraft on its proposed Pittsburgh-Cleveland route. On the other five routes, the applicant plans at the beginning to carry mail and express only, gradually expanding the service to include passengers. It is also disclosed in the application that All Amerian is now developing a one-man pick-up plane for use on the Pittsburgh-Buffalo route. Planes now in operation carry a crew of two.

A description of the six routes listing their intermediate points and the additional communities to be served from these points, shows that Centre County towns would be on the Pittsburgh to Newark route, and that landings might be made at Bellefonte, where facilities are available.

County Jail Invaded While Sheriff Sleeps to broadcast the closing hymn "Silent Night," by the brass quartette of the Junior American Legion Band. But the band was so cold it couldn't function.

Finally the band's escorts, Karl Kusse and Sam Rhinesmith, of Bellefonte, and band director Olin Butt, of State College, took matters into their own hands.

The jail house was locked, but one of the kitchen windows was not latched. It was a matter of only a few seconds until the window was opened and one of the youthful band members, shivering doubly from cold and fear, was hoisted through the window. Soon the entire group was in the building; the closing number was played, and the musicians left.

Not a sound was heard from the living quarters of the jail.

Juries Act On Damage Suits

half days, and after deliberating nearly 11 hours, returned a verdict for a total of $3,000.

Mrs. Kathryn Hale, 36, of Castanea, a passenger in the Williams car, asked $30,000 for injuries to herself and for medical expenses; for Robert Hale, aged 5, $3,000, and an additional $1,000 to his mother for loss of his services and expenses; for David Hale, aged 12, $1,000 for injuries, and an additional $500 for his mother, or a total of $35,000. The above-named members of the Hale family were passengers in the Williams car at the time of the crash. In this case the jury awarded a total verdict of $5,751.50.

Decision of the cases hinged on the jury's determination of negligence in the accident. The verdicts placed the responsibility for the accident on Mr. Bush.

In the head-on collision from which the lawsuits originated, nine persons, including Mr. and Mrs. Bush, were injured. The other seven persons were occupants of the Williams car. All occupants of both machines were taken to hospitals for treatment.

At the trials it was testified that several of the injured persons will never regain their former health and full physical powers and that some of them have undergone numerous operations and many weeks of hospitalization in an effort to effect a permanent correction of injuries from the accident. Several will have to undergo future operations by reason of their injuries, it was indicated.

According to reports available at the time of the accident, it was believed that the drivers of one or both machines lost control on the rain-soaked macadam highway.

Court attaches, upon learning of the verdict, declared that since the bills incurred by the Williams family to date total more than $2,000, the $3,000 verdict will be insufficient to cover their expenses. The bills listed do not include attorney's fees and other incidental expenses, it was said.

In the trial of such cases it is not permissable for anyone to bring out the amount of damages asked by claimants; nor is the jury given any information regarding probable attorney's fees and other expenses. Neither is the matter of whether or not the defendant is insured permitted to be brought to the jury's attention. The penalty for violating these regulations is the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration by the Court of a mistrial. The case then is continued until a future session of Court.

In the only other case which went on trial last week Emery E. Day was awarded a verdict of $300 against Harvey Brungart.

Dubbs and parked in front of the Hoag family residence on North Thomas street, Bellefonte, was damaged to the amount of about $25 when it was struck by a car operated by Edward Houser, of Coleville, Sunday afternoon. Information charging failure to stop after an accident was placed against Houser, who later paid a fine.

Cars driven by two men, Ralph Hyde, of Bush Addition, and Anthony DeLallo, Beaver street, sideswiped on the highway five miles below Jacksonville, Christmas night about 7 o'clock. Mrs. Arlene DeLallo suffered a bruised hip as a result of the crash. The two machines were traveling in opposite directions.
