HUMANITY IN A WIFE.—One really pities the poor carver of a favorite dish. Not only has he all the trouble, but he is obliged to send all the best bits to his friends. What an angel of a wife has our acquaintance, Smith! He helps her, of course, as is a lady's due, namely to the very choicest morsels: and, when all the other people at table are served, (not before,) that great-minded and generous woman has the pluck to say, with a well feigned impatience: "Dear, dear, Mr. Smith, you have sent me woodcock (or ortolan, or phœnix, or whatever it is) when you know I never touch it—a husband never condescends to remember his wife's tastes." To which Smith has the meekness to reply: "Well, well, my love, I beg your pardon; I really quite forgot. Send it round to me, dear; send it round to me." And he gets the best help of them all. We have seen this feat at Smith's twenty times. Let us hope that he remembers his confederate when it is time to make presents. —Punch.

RESUMING BUSINESS.—On Tuesday morning the works of Russell & Erwin, the extensive hardware manufacturers, at New Britain, resumed business. They recommence with 200 hands which number will be increased if business warrants it. This was the first sound of a factory whistle heard in New Britain for about two months, and they have quite a number of factories there. The sign is encouraging for better times.—Hartford Times, Jan. 20
