through the walls. Intense heat and smoke added to the difficulty experienced by firemen in controlling the fire. At one time the Alphas had eight streams from 2½-inch hose lines on the building.

The roof of the large building caved in about 5:15 o'clock.

Firemen prevented the fire from spreading to the Paul Mittern clothing shop and the Kalin Women's clothing shop and confined the flames to the rear of the Blair jewelry store. The Mitten shop, cleared of most of its stock of clothing by students and others, and the Blair shop suffered some smoke and water damage. Some damage also was reported at the Kalin store.

The blaze was under control by about 7 a. m.

The Allencrest building, located at the corner of Allen street and Beaver avenue, was owned by Claude G. Aikens, R. J. Kennard and M. C. Mateer. It is reported that all but about $10,000 of the damage is covered by insurance.

Those who lost their rooms and most of their possessions in the blaze were as follows: Mrs. Elsa Lee Averman, Mrs. Martha Conway, and Misses Viola Aurand, Ruth Hewitt, Gladys Hellinger, Gladys Huntsman, Sara Orner, Maxine Page, Grace Sammons, Betty Crandell, Marjorie Hetrick, and Ruth Henston.

Also Mrs. Longnecker, Mrs. Pearl Putt, and Misses May Nicodemus, Bessie Smith, and Charlotte Walizer, James Eisenhauer, Matthew Hayes, Charles Hare, Kenneth Hall, Robert Hartzer, Russell Poorman, Robert Beckman, Donald Hewett, and Harold McKinney.

Most of the group were employed either at the Corner Room, the Allencrest, or at the Dairy Store.

The Allencrest building was built in 1903 by the late Charles T. Aikens. For a number of years it was the home of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and later of the Sigma Pi fraternity.

To Protest Route Of New Road

take the new road east from the Zion cemetery along the route of the present dirt road for a distance of approximately two miles. There it would swing north to join Route 220 near the Heckman school building, or near the old lane leading to the Nittany Country Club.

This route, it is claimed, would involve only two fields, instead of three fine farms, and would materially reduce the damages the county would be required to pay. It also would furnish taxpayers along the old road with a modern highway.

Members of the committee scheduled to go to Harrisburg Monday are: George Yarnell, John Hockman, Ward Knape, Harry Clevenstine and Howard Struble. The secretary of the Bellefonte Chamber of Commerce, Karl E. Kusse, has been asked to accompany the committee. Arrangements for the conference in Harrisburg are being made by Assemblyman Kenneth G. Haines.

The proposed new road is an extension of the road which branches from the State College-Bellefonte highway near Dale's Summit, and which continues east to Pleasant Gap. The new road would continue through Pleasant Gap and follow the course of the present road past the Bellefonte airport.

The citizens' committee at Zion is said to have the support of most taxpayers residing from Hublersburg east to Rockview penitentiary.
