

Surprised After 50 Years
The airplane has made wonderful progress in 50 years, but there are still people who do not prefer to ride through the skies.

Additional Locals

Philip Hastings, of Avis, and his brother, Malcolm Hastings, of Albany, N.Y., were guests on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Houser, of E. Howard Street. The Hastings brothers are cousins of Mrs. Houser.

Robert K. Fromm returned on Sunday to his home in Washington, D.C., after visiting since Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fromm, of N. Spring Street. Other guests last week at the Fromm home were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fromm and two children, of Harrisburg.

Ben F. Sheetz, of N. Allegheny Street, left Tuesday for Gettysburg to attend a writers' and editors' workshop to be held at Gettysburg Seminary by the parish and church school board of the United Lutheran Church. Participants in the conference were selected on the basis of manuscripts previously submitted.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Parrish, of W. High Street, are making plans to go to Atlantic City, N.J., Sunday. Dr. Parrish will attend the American Medical Association convention there.

Mrs. Ruth Fridgens and her sister, Miss Emily Waite, both of Harrisburg, returned Sunday to their home after a visit since Tuesday in Bellefonte. The two women are former Bellefonte residents.

Willis M. Bottorf, of Wynnewood, has been in Bellefonte daily, visiting with friends. Mr. Bottorf, who is visiting his sister, Miss Ella Bottorf, of Lemont, moved to the Philadelphia suburb about two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mittleman and two children, of Scranton, moved to Bellefonte recently, to the Rothrock-Wilkinson apartments, Curtin and Allegheny Street. Mr. Mittleman is with the Internal Revenue Department.

Mr. and Mrs. William Eichelberger and two daughters, of Northfield, N.J., spent the weekend with Mrs. Eichelberger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dowdell, of E. Curtin Street. Mr. and Mrs. Dowdell's son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. George R. Dowdell, of Middletown, were also recent visitors at the Dowdell home. Capt. Dowdell is stationed at the Middletown Airport.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Saylor and daughters, Elizabeth and Irene, Mrs. Fred Saylor, Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Miss Mary Saylor, Mrs. Andrew Saylor and daughters, Mary and Mrs. Malcolm Eckley, all of Bellefonte, left Tuesday for Emmitsburg, Md., where they attended a reception at Mt. St. Mary's College graduation exercises. Philip Saylor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Saylor, is a member of the class. In the fall he will continue his studies at Mt. St. Mary's Seminary in preparation for entering the priesthood.

Mrs. Paul McGarvey and Jean, of N. Allegheny Street, left Saturday on a two weeks' motor, pleasure trip to Florida. They expect to spend part of the time with the Rev. and Mrs. Whitney Church at Bradenton, Fla. Mr. Church was at one time rector of the St. John's Episcopal Church here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Plumb and Earl S. Orr returned Thursday night to their homes in Bellefonte, from Atlantic City, N.J., where they had been since Sunday. The men attended the Rotary International Convention. Mr. Orr is vice-president elect of the Bellefonte Club.

Mrs. Helen Moore Dahl and Mrs. Waneta Eagles returned Friday to their homes in Philadelphia after spending several days here as guests at the Brockerhoff Hotel. The two women visited relatives and friends in Bellefonte and Howard. Mrs. Dahl is a niece of the late Mrs. Clayton Brown, of Bellefonte.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Brown, Richard and Barbara, of the Petrikon apartments, went to Philadelphia Friday where they attended the graduation exercises of the nurses training school of Hahnemann Hospital. Their daughter, Shirley, was a member of the class. Vere Buller, of E. Linn Street, also attended the ceremonies.

Circus Knifers' Target Injured

Pheasants Die Before Mowing

Nests Avoided in Mowing Worth $1

The mower is one of the leading causes of pheasant mortality in the Commonwealth. Farmers usually cut their alfalfa, timothy and clover crops about the time broody pheasant hens incubate their eggs, or while the chicks are being mothered in the nest. At such times the female is slow to flush, and the cutting bar ends her life. Following her death, the dependent chicks perish, or the clutch of eggs is lost. Even when the hen is not on the nest at the time the hay that conceals it is cut, the exposed eggs or chicks become visible to winged predators and are soon destroyed.

In an effort to reduce mortality, the Game Commission sponsors a project by which farmers are paid $1 apiece for each island of cover left around nests containing pheasant or quail eggs or chicks during the first mowing of alfalfa, clover or timothy hay.

When an owner or lessee wishes payment for such unharvested cover, he must notify his District Game Protector. When inspection of such an area has been made, the game officer will certify that the $1 per island payment shall be made to the owner or lessee of the land on which the protective cover is left.

A humane conservation practice, long employed by many farmers or their children, has been to locate and mark nests prior to mowing time, so that the machine operator would know the areas to be skipped.

Soil Conservation Group Is Active

The Clinton County Soil Conservation District office, located in the Court House, Lock Haven, has been notified by the Lamar Fish Hatchery that the bass and bluegill are now ready for distribution to those farmers requesting fish for stocking their farm ponds built last year. Evan Andrews, Raymond Schrack, John Boone, Loganston, R. D. Loui, Stefan, Williamsport, whose pond is situated at McElhattan, and John Lutz, Beech Creek, were instructed to pick up the fish that were allocated to them.

Each pond will be stocked according to the recommended ratio of 100 bass and 1000 bluegill per acre of water surface. If the ponds are fertilized properly it is a matter of record that they will produce fish of legal size in one year from stocking.

On Wednesday, Walter Stepulis and Leroy Harnish, SCS technicians, conducted the conservation class from State College on a tour of the John Kline and Charles Lucas farms. The students were able to see conservation in operation by examining conservation practices which have been established on these farms.

As soon as weather permits, Paul Biddle of Beech Creek, will start construction on a v-type drainage ditch to drain some of his cropland. The surveys and plans are all completed and the actual construction will begin as soon as the back hoe is available.

Charles Irvin, also of Beech Creek, is building a diversion terrace with his own equipment and will be completed as quickly as time will allow during this busy season.

Paul Brungard, Salona, is nearly ready to start construction on a diversion ditch at the southern end of his farm. This diversion will protect a portion of permanent pasture land that is to be reseeded and adjoining cropland. George Brungard, Salona, has completed another diversion on his farm. Paul and George have worked together in building these ditches, one with a tractor with a terracer blade, and the other with a plow, which has proven to be a fast and satisfactory way of constructing the terraces. George Brungard now has a complete system of diversions to handle the surface water disposal.

Tips For Washing Wool Blankets

Washing without mechanical agitation is recommended for wool blankets, reports Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county. Recent research showed agitation was the main cause of shrinkage in wool blankets. Temperature of the water made little difference in shrinkage or felting.

First wash extra soiled spots or binding with a small brush and warm detergent water. If you use an automatic washer, set the machine at "warm" on the dial. In a conventional washer, have water comfortable to the hands. Miss Butler suggests using a synthetic detergent because of the high wetting agent which quickly wets the blanket. Synthetic detergents do not leave a curd in the fabric.

After operating the machine just long enough to dissolve the detergent, put the blanket in the washer and allow it to soak 15 to 20 minutes. Do not operate the machine but turn the blanket once or twice by hand.

Spin off the soak water or run the blanket through the wringer. Then put blanket in fresh warm water of the same temperature as the first water. Allow to soak 4 to 5 minutes, turning a couple times by hand, then remove the water and repeat rinsing process.

Stretch the blanket after the final rinse. Put it across a line and pull evenly on both ends at the same time, working from one side of the blanket to the other.

Two lines are best for drying blankets but one can be used if you turn the blanket while it's drying. When the blanket is dry, brush it with a stiff hair brush. Brushing raises the nap and softens the blanket. Press bindings with a steam iron or sponge and press with a regular iron. Watch the heat on the iron.

300 Pound Bear Sighted At Snow Shoe

Mountain top residents are on the lookout for a large black bear which made an unexpected appearance in Snow Shoe over the weekend. The animal, estimated to be more than 300 pounds, was seen by George Kosko, of Snow Shoe township, as he was digging in an open pit owned by his brother, Michael Kosko, Saturday.

The surprise visit occurred when the bear came over the top of a spill pile and ran down a hill to a distance of 20 feet from the pit. Scene of the appearance was reported as near a bear crossing which runs from the Renovo district to the Wallace Run district. It was reported that bears have been seen in other years in that area.
