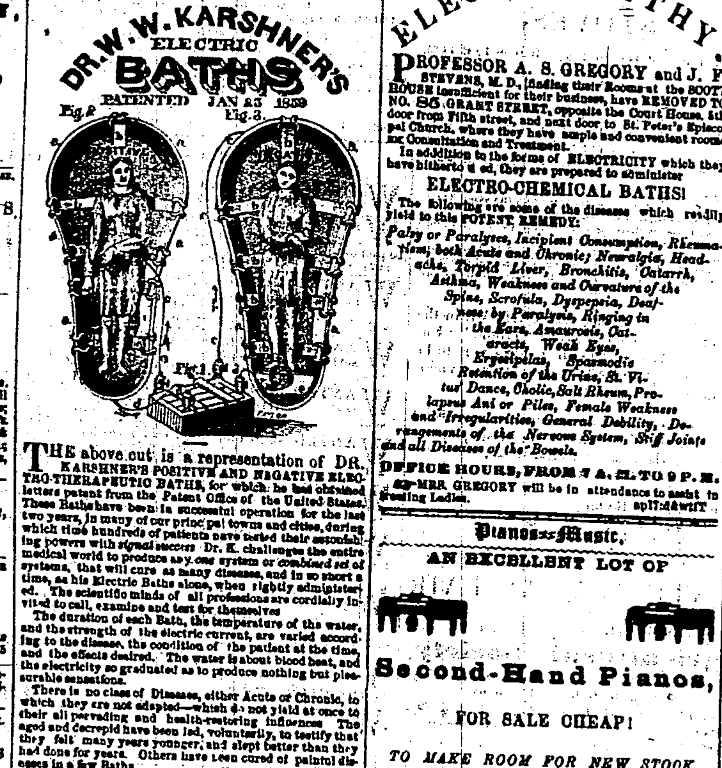
ALL THE VIRTUES OF ELECTRICITY AND WATER COMBINED.



THE above cut is a representation of DR. KARSHNER'S POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE ELECTRO-THERAPEUTIC BATHS, for which he has obtained letters patent from the Patent Office of the United States. These Baths have been in successful operation for the last two years, in many of our principal towns and cities, during which time hundreds of patients have tested their astounding powers with signal success. Dr. K. challenges the entire medical world to produce any one system or combined set of systems, that will cure as many diseases, and in so short a time, as his Electric Baths alone, when rightly administered. The scientific minds of all professions are cordially invited to call, examine and test for themselves.
The duration of each Bath, the temperature of the water, and the strength of the electric current, are varied according to the disease, the condition of the patient at the time, and the effects desired. The water is about blood heat, and the electricity so graduated as to produce nothing but pleasurable sensations.
There is no class of Diseases, either Acute or Chronic, to which they are not adapted—which do not yield at once to their all pervading and health-restoring influences. The aged and decrepid have been led, voluntarily, to testify that they felt many years younger, and slept better than they had done for years. Others have been cured of painful diseases in a few Baths.
Nor do their healthful effects seem to be confined solely to the physical man; they have an equally happy influence upon the mental faculties, making them a most efficient means in the treatment of Insanity and all abnormal mental conditions.
Among the diseases successfully treated by Dr. K.'s Baths are: Incipient Consumption, Scrofula, Paralysis, Epilepsy, (Fits,) Insanity, Delirium Tremens, St. Vitus' Dance, Curvature of the Spine, Rheumatism, Mercurial Diseases, Weakness in the Back and Joints, Nervousness, Nervous Head Ache, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Weak Eyes, Partial Deafness, Dyspepsia, Gravel and other Urinary and Genital Diseases, Falling of the Womb, Leucorrhea, and other Female Derangements, Fever, Fever and Ague, etc. etc.
These Baths are in successful operation at

THE BEST IN THE WORLD.—"The Steinway Piano which I purchased of you in March, 1859, has now been so long in use that I feel no hesitation in saying that it has proved to be all you represented; and gives me the most unalloyed satisfaction. For volume, sweetness and brilliancy of tone, I cannot say that I have ever heard its superior, and I believe that it will become the most popular instrument of the day. A great number of persons have heard, and have uniformly expressed the greatest admiration of its merits. As it has been introduced into the West, recently, if this testimonial will add to the number of your patrons, since you are agents for the sale of these instruments, you are at liberty to make use of it at your pleasure.

PITTSBURGH:
THURSDAY MORNING, AUG. 30.

What a South Carolinian Thinks of the Presidential Contest.

The Hon. B. F. Perry, of South Carolina, publishes, in the Charleston Courier, a long and sensible letter upon the Presidential question. His views are so moderate, and his ideas so correct, that they may be laid before the public with advantage. He says:

The probability is that the Black Republican candidate will be elected President of the United States. It is a grievous misfortune, and one to be deeply lamented by every citizen of the South. But it must be remembered that the Southern States will have brought this misfortune, grievous as it may be, on themselves, by their own divisions and party strife. Nothing can be more clearly shown. It was predicted at the time, and the South forewarned of the impending danger.

If the seceding members of the Charleston Convention had retained their seats in that body Breckinridge and Lane, or others equally acceptable to the Southern State, would, have been the nominees of the Democratic party for President and Vice President. It was a well ascertained fact that Douglas could not, under any contingency, get the two-thirds vote requisite to a nomination. After a number of ballotings the friends of Judge Douglas would have cast their votes for Hunter, Breckinridge, Dickinson, or some one else acceptable to the South. But after the withdrawal of a portion of the Southern delegates they became excited and more disposed to adhere to their candidate. The adjournment to Baltimore was for the purpose of giving the friends of Judge Douglas, in the seceding States, an opportunity of sending delegates in place of those who withdrew. This fact I know.

Judging from the course pursued by other Presidents, and that policy which usually governs politicians whilst in power, instead of doing any rash, violent or unconstitutional act to injure or offend those opposed to him, it is likely Lincoln will pursue a very cautious politic and wise course towards the South. It cannot be in the nature of any man elevated to the Presidency to wish to see the Government broken up under the Administration, the Republic dismembered and the country plunged in a civil war. Very likely his great effort will be to acquire popularity in the Southern States, and appease their opposition by a rigid adherence to the Constitution and respect for the rights of the South. It is not at all improbable that the South may find more favors under the administration of Lincoln than they have under any Democratic administration. It may be that "Old Abe" will go out of office quite a favorite with the Southern people! At least we should give him a trial.

The election of a President, in conformity with the Federal Constitution, is no ground whatever for breaking up the Republic, no matter how bitterly opposed to him we may be. We must wait and decide on his acts and measures; nothing less will justify us in the eyes of the world, or in the opinion of our own people. To inculcate the notion that a portion of the citizens of a Republic may break up and revolutionize their Government, because they have been defeated in their choice of a Chief Magistrate, is the repudiation of the first principles of Republicanism, and sanctioning that which leads inevitably to lawless despotism.

* * * * * * *

It may be that I am mistaken in supposing slavery to be out of the reach of the assaults of its foes, and if so I will be as ready as any one to defend it at the sacrifice of the Union itself as much as I value the Union. But I am not willing to act prematurely when there is no danger. As to dissolving the Union on a mere abstraction, the right to carry slaves wherever slaveholders desire to carry them, and where they would be worthless if carried, I am opposed to it now and forever, and shall endeavor to defend the rights of the South in the Union where I think they have been heretofore properly defended, and may still be defended, if the South is true to herself and united in that defence.

* * * * * * *

To consummate this folly, it is proposed, for South Carolina to march out of the Union solitary and alone. That if left alone we shall do very well, and if an attempt is made to force us back, the South will rally to the rescue. We had better not depend on being let alone, if we oppose the collection of duties. We may withdraw our members of Congress, and no one will disturb us. In 1851 President Fillmore did not manifest any disposition to let us alone. He sent troops to Charleston. General Jackson did the same in 1831. We must not, therefore, expect to be let alone. Will the other Southern States rally to our assistance in doing that which they themselves think it advisable not to do? Would it not be more prudent to get them to unite with us before hand? And if they will not unite in our action, for us to stay with them till some act is done which will unite the South?

THE DOUGLAS TEST OF CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES.—In his Down East speeches, or rather speech, Senator Douglas declares that the political creed which cannot be proclaimed in all parts of the Confederacy is unsound—by which, we presume, he means unconstitutional. This is a very absurd assertion, and perilous to Douglas himself. Applying the test thus instituted, he would be quickly compelled to recant his great principle of popular sovereignty on the ground of its unsoundness. There are very many places in the South, in which he dare not make a speech in support of that theory—very many places in that section in which a mingled hurricane of hootings, execrations, rotten eggs and sucked oranges would greet him, if he should have the temerity to repeat his Freeport speech in their midst. But apply this rule more generally, and see the conclusions to which it leads. Washington, Jefferson and Franklin have said things of slavery, which if said to-day, even in private conversation, in the hot-beds of Southern fanaticism, would be promptly responded to by a coat of tar and feathers for the speaker. They uttered sentiments in relation to slavery which are considered the direst blasphemy wherever pro-slavery despotism is paramount. Are these sentiments, therefore, unsound and unconstitutional? Must the doctrine which conflicts with any local prejudice be necessarily unsound? No philosopher, statesman or reformer would lay down such a proposition. Almost every new truth is banned at the outset, and furiously resisted. Popular prejudice is not unfrequently the last obstacle which it overcomes. Had Douglas really meant what he said in Maine, it would only serve to show the shallowness of his intellect; but his purpose was to decry the principles of the Republican party, and the party itself, because it is as yet restricted to the Free States and the border Slave States. As well decry the Christian religion because it is forbidden in Japan, or the republican form of government because the advocacy of it is interdicted in France.

If we accept the converse of the Douglas maxim, viz; that whatever doctrines may be proclaimed in all parts of the Union are sound, then the doctrines of the Breckinridge Democracy, which Douglas holds in such abhorrence, are above suspicion, for Yancey himself would be hard without molestation in Boston as well as in New Orleans. Taking Douglas at his word, the opposite doctrines of intervention and non-intervention are equally sound. They equally stand the test he devises—taking for granted that his implied assumption in favor of popular sovereignty is well founded—and consequently they are equally constitutional, which is absurd.—St. Louis Democrat.

FUAD PACHA, the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, who was sent from Constantinople by the Sultan to stop the Syrian disorders, is acting energetically and effectively. He has deposed the Governor General at Cyprus and confiscated his property; has commended an investigation into the conduct of the Governor General at Beyrout; has arrested six or seven hundred of the participators in the Damascus massacre; ordered their immediate trial, and the execution of such as are found guilty; has restored a large amount of the plundered property, and is stationing Troops to protect the Christians who are menaced. His action has frightened the Druses, who are now beginning to protest their readiness to obey the laws and to respect the rights of the Christians. He has the support of the Turkish Troops, who, though they connived at the massacres, do not now venture to disobey his orders, and he drives a strong additional moral support from the presence of the French, English and Greek fleets at Beyrout, and the knowledge that an Expedition is coming from France and Russia for the defence of the Christians.

WILLIS IN ILLINOIS—NOVELTY OF PRAIRIE TRAVEL.—To overtake a thunder shower, whirl through it and outrun it, was the first of the day's exciting novelties. We saw it ahead of us, on the prairie, just as you see a single black cloud in the sky, with sunshine all around it. It was moving in the same direction as ourselves, probably at about twenty miles an hour; and we soon began to overtake it with our better harnessed thunder and lightning. The conductor pointed the dark mass out to me, some ten or fifteen minutes before we entered the outer skirts of the shower; and we were in a pelting rain, with lightning and peals of thunder, for perhaps ten minutes—emerging in fair weather on the other side, and leaving the storm to lag after us, like the "slow coach" that it was! But certainly, it was very queer thus to give thunder and lightning the go-by. It seemed to me, somehow, anticipatory of another state of things. When we go to telegraphing at the beginning of our spirit travels in the next life, I am sure I shall have a vague impression of having done something of that sort, before—This experience of distancing a well-trained thundercloud being laid away in my memory.

But it is to the wild animals of the prairie that the swiftness of the rail train is most inexplicable. Ages upon ages have established certain relative rates of speed between man and the subject races of creation—the mounted hunter being the fastest pursuer for which the elk and reindeer, the bear and the prairie wolf, the fox the wild cat, the skunk, otter and marten, are at all prepared. The small line of rail track, nearly hidden in grass, is not recognized by these wanderers over the vast plains of the West, and while thinking themselves still safe in their own horizonedged wilderness, they suddenly see the coming of the new monster! It is a daily experience of the trains on this railroad across Illinois, to overtake some one or more of them; and it is curious, (as the different conductors and brakeman tell me,) how none of them seem to have the sagacity to escape by running off at right angles! Almost invariably they flee before the pursuer, and are run down, at last, to fall fainting with terror and exhaustion in the neighborhood of the track.

To the wild birds on the prairies the alarm whistle seems the most formidable part of it. With the settler's cattle grazing loose, it is necessary to have the scream of the pipe, unusually sharp and loud; and the engineer often pulls the string of his fearful zenith-piercer when a flock of wild geese, pigeons, or prairie-hens are flying over. Murder! the voice of the monster! To the great saving of the huntsman's powder and shot, half of the birds at least, will fall senseless to the ground with pure fright! We saw but one approach to a tragedy of this kind—an astonished eagle, whom we put to a speed for a horrizontal flight of about five or six miles, and whom the breakman pointed out to me as likely to come down. But when we were getting too close upon him, the royal bird took to a series of upward gyrations, and was soon out of sight—wiser, of course, as to the future policy of keeping above the level of things new and noisy!

BLONDIN HAS BEEN OUTDONE.—By as much as impulse can outdo calculation; by as much as heroism can exceed thrift; by as much as love is better than praise; has he been surpassed. The extraordinary feat of John Stickell, a carpenter, reported in the Buffalo Republic, deserves a higher mention than a mere newspaper paragraph. He was upon a mill, the main body of which being of brick, awaited the rafters, or upper timbers. A rope had been stretched across the top, from wall to wall, at one end of which stood Mr. Stickell, and a young man in his employ at the other, while beneath both was a cog-pit sixty-two feet deep. The young man lost his footing and fell; but, although he caught the rope, was unable to raise himself. John Stickell—he can do without a title—instantly ran across the chasm on the rope—not stretched and secured like Blondin's—and snatched the poor fellow from impending fate. We are not informed that the doer of this splendid act had ever trod a rope before. We suppose it to be one of those sublime impulses which outstrips and supersedes any degree of practical skill. Again we say, with a varied meaning, "Instinct is a great matter," and turn from the stageking to the "true prince." As the gladiator to Garibaldi, so is Blondin to the carpenter.
