

Farmer-Sportsmen Operate Club's Farm

Farmer-Sportsmen members of Spring Mills Fish and Game Association, Inc., of East Centre county are looking forward to harvesting the first crop from the club's farm.

The association has purchased the N. S. Heckman farm a mile south of Spring Mills. Purchase price of the farm was met by selling bonds to members. Bonds will be redeemed with funds raised from sale of crops.

Last month 15 farmer-members turned out to plow the land and planted 30 acres of corn. The group pictured above completed fertilization and a survey of the property at a later date.

the water, and early on Thursday morning his hunting cap, turkey call and cigarettes were found floating on top of the water. Near the breast of the dam two ducks were found, both shot on the underside. Recently fired shells were found in his gun which indicated he had shot them. Against the east pier a small raft was found bearing evidence of recent use.

With this evidence men pieced together the following story:

Arriving at the dam Mr. Goodhart hurried and loaded his gun. When he saw the ducks, he hurried to the water's edge and shot two of them, both of which dropped in the water. He laid his gun on the beach, got on the raft to pick up the ducks, it tilted and he fell into the water. Being unable to swim, and wearing heavy clothes he had little chance to save himself.

The body was finally found in ten feet of water. Mr. Goodhart's watch had stopped at 9 o'clock, establishing that he had met his death less than an hour after he had left home.

Power boats from Penn's Cave and Roosevelt Park were taken to the dam to help in the search. Grappling hooks of the Alpha Fire Company of State College located the body shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday. Centre County Coroner Charles Sheckler was called to the scene and ruled an inquest unnecessary. Mr. Goodhart's death was called accidental. It was the second at the dam.

George Lee Goodhart was born Dec. 14, 1905, on the Goodhart farm near Centre Hall. He was the son of James C. Goodhart and Sara Lee Goodhart. His wife, the former Grace Jodon, survives along with one daughter, Adaline. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Russell, of Bellefonte; Donald, of Centre Hall; Robert and Gwendolyn at home, and Mrs. Ernest Auman, of Newark, N. J.

December 31, 1903—Mrs. John Doherman died from burns resulting from her clothing becoming ignited while in her home. Her cries for help were answered by her grandson, John H. Knarr, and every effort was made to extinguish the flames but death resulted.

January 17, 1914—Miss Sara Bruss, more than 70 years old, was burned to death when an oil lamp was knocked from a bureau in the McClennahan home where she stayed. Death came a few minutes after the discovery.

April 29, 1939—John Lair and Marshall Sharer lost their lives while fishing in a sink hole which measured 82 by 60 feet and was filled with 18 feet of water. It has been told that the two boys climbed upon a roll of wire fencing which rolled into the water, taking the two boys with it. After finding he could do nothing to help, Leroy Sharer, a third member of the party ran for help. Four hours later the two bodies were found, but life had been taken from each.

December 12, 1933—Mrs. John Matis was fatally injured and three of her children were killed instantly when a westbound train struck a car Mr. Matis was driving over the track. Mr. Matis suffered a crushed pelvis and several broken ribs. A blinding snow storm prevented the man from seeing the train and the auto was carried 825 feet by the train.

May 24, 1931—A winter snow storm drove an Air Mail pilot, James D. Cleveland, to his death on top of Nittany Mountain, tearing off the plane's wings and ripping the fuselage apart, and scattering gasoline which immediately caught fire. Cleveland died in the cockpit.

June 26, 1930—Lois May Delaney, aged 15 years, met her death in an auto accident on Route 95. The driver of the car failed to make a turn and the car rolled over several times. Miss Delaney had finished her Sophomore year at C. H. P. H. S. in May.

November 12, 1906—Josiah C. Dale was murdered while seated in his buggy. After having spent the entire day on his farm in Greens Valley, he had gone away in his buggy. Death was caused by a shot gun wound fired at close range. Mr. Dale's murder was never solved.

February 25, 1949—William Bieri, of Rebersburg, was killed when his car struck the back end of a coal truck about one-half mile below the Old Fort.

July 29, 1949—Mrs. Alma Rickert was killed when she was struck by an automobile. She was survived by one daughter, Mrs. Lillian McCaleb, of Loganton, and a son, Reuben Rickert, of Lewistown.

April 17, 1943—Kenneth Wert, of Centre Hall RD, was severely hurt when a log fell from the barn and struck him on the head. He managed to get to the house, where he collapsed. He was taken to the doctor's office immediately and from there to the hospital. He died a short time after arriving at the hospital.

June 29, 1946—Carl Frederick Slack, aged 15, was fatally injured when the car in which he was riding locked its wheels, throwing the car to one side of the road where it struck a low embankment and rolled over three or four times. Slack was thrown clear of the wreckage and suffered a head injury. He never regained consciousness. He was a member of the Trinity Reformed Church of Centre Hall and was active in the C. H. P. H. S.

Heat Is The Enemy Of Quality In Eggs

Nothing the poultryman can do will improve the quality of an egg after it has been produced, but he can do much to maintain quality from nest to market, states Asst. County Agent Clair D. DeLong.

Most eggs have excellent interior quality when produced. Conditions of temperature and humidity that surround the eggs afterward are important in determining their ultimate market quality.

Warm dry air removes moisture from the egg shell and its contents. The thick white becomes thinner and the shell takes on a mottled appearance. Size of air cell, condition of shell, per cent of thick albumen, appearance of the yolk and its rate of movement when the egg is spun before the candle are all factors which determine the market quality of eggs. These factors are influenced by the environment of the eggs while they are being held prior to marketing.

Production of quality eggs depends on many factors. An eight point program is outlined in Extension Leaflet 85. Copies of the leaflet can be obtained from the office of the county agent.

The 8-point program: 1. Maintain an egg cellar temperature of 50 to 65 degrees F.; 2. maintain a 75 per cent relative humidity in the egg cellar; 3. gather eggs three times daily; 4. cool eggs quickly; 5. pack eggs daily; 6. pre-cool egg cases; 7. market eggs twice a week; 8. keep birds confined.

Serve Cool Milk Drinks on Warm Days

Cool, refreshing drinks are in great demand as days get warmer. Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics representative of Centre refreshment with good nourishment and serve a cold milk drink.

Nutrition studies show that adults as well as children are in need of calcium. The best way to improve this is to serve at least three glasses of milk a day to each member of the family. Nutritionists nr w agree that adults should have about a quart of milk a day. Milk may be used in cooking or for beverages.

A tempting milk drink, banana milkshake, is made as follows: Slice four fully ripe bananas and beat them until creamy with a rotary egg beater. Add 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon vanilla, and 5 cups milk. Stir well, pour over cracked ice and serve at once. This will make 8 to 10 servings.

Another drink with a different flavor is spiced milk. To make this for three servings, blend together 2 cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Chill and serve, or pour over cracked ice and serve at once.

Yessir . . . I went fishing the first day and I don't mind giving you the net result of my trip: 4 lost hooks, a boot-full of water, a lost glove, a frosted ear, two tired feet, a bad cold, a broken Commandment, a nice strong breath, and came home with a he-man's appetite and a desire to go again—but no fish.

"What'd You Call Me?"
Speaking of fishing, one of our subscribers down at Howard the other day referred to a fisherman as a Piscator. I looked it up and I'll be a son-of-a-gun if it "ain't so." So now you know what you are.

Bulls Eye
Hurrying down Linn street the other morning on my way to work I ran into O'Neal . . . he was whistling "St. Patrick's Day," but it wasn't St. Patrick's Day. The conversation went something like this:
Office Cat: "Where are you going?"
O'Neal: "Going to work."
Office Cat: "What, going to work at this time of the morning, sure you must be working for a hard-boiled boss to make you get up at five o'clock in the morning."

O'Neal: "No, I'm as happy as a kid on Christmas morning with a tree full of toys. I've got the grandest job in the world."
Office Cat: "How much are you getting?"
O'Neal: "I'm getting one dollar and fifty cents a day."
Office Cat: "What, say, you come with me to see Phil Ray and I'll get you a job at nine dollars a day out at the Titan Metal."

O'Neal: "No, I'm not interested. I'm too happy and contented with this job."
Office Cat: "You wouldn't take a job at nine dollars a day when you are getting only a dollar and a half? What are you doing?"
O'Neal: "Well, I'll tell you what I am doing. I'm as happy as the flowers in May, because I'm tearing down two Protestant churches."

Spring Gardening
I must say—spring gardening is wonderful. You can work in it from morning until night, but the only thing you can ever grow is TIRED. The only thing that has ever been raised at my home in the last 18 years are the windows and taxes.

"Dammed If I Know"

Dear Office Cat:
Will you please try this on your wire recorder and see what you get:
Some years ago I married a widow who had a grown-up daughter. My father visited us often, fell in love with my step-daughter and married her. Thus he became my son-in-law, and my step-daughter became my mother, because she was my father's wife. Soon after this, my wife gave birth to a son, which, of course, was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle for he was the brother of my step-mother. My father's wife also became the mother of a son. He was, of course, my brother, and also my grandchild for he was the son of my daughter. Accordingly, my wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at one and the same time, and, as the husband of a person's grandmother, I am of the opinion that I am my own grandfather. Am I right or just plain—

"Hell Hath No Fury"
Did you ever realize what a whale of trouble the omission of a hyphen may make? Let me tell you. One time the congregation of a certain Bellefonte church read this announcement in the church's weekly bulletin on Sunday morning:
"The ladies of this church have cast off clothing of all kinds. They may be seen in the basement of the church any afternoon this week."
Just one little hyphen missing, but see how it made the notice read.

Spit Tune
A Curtin street mother took her son to one of our local doctors for treatment. Here is what ensued:
"To determine the cause of your ailment," said the Doc, "I must have a sample of your saliva."
"I ain't got any more," said the young gent. "Pop wouldn't let me keep it in the house."
"You don't understand me," the doctor explained. "I want you to expectorate."
"I can't do nothing like that," said the lad. "I ain't no athlete."
"No, no," said the medico. "All I want you to do is to spit—spit in that bottle over the window sill."
"Huh?" asked the youth in amazement. "From here?"

Bright Ideas
I've heard of one woman who lives over on Thomas street who has cooking down to a science. She puts popcorn in the pancakes and they turn over themselves.

I'm pretty well fed up on it . . . had an uncle who once died from eating hamburger . . . had a hook in it . . . wish I had a big juicy worm . . . did you hear about the—excuse the interruption, here comes a helgrammite.

That's all, folks: There's one good thing about women's pajamas—they don't get baggy at the knees.

Serve Garden Fresh Asparagus Often
Tender green stalks of asparagus get a warm welcome from anyone who savors its fresh garden goodness. Plain cooked and topped with butter or sauced, asparagus is delicious any time, says Miss Helen S.

Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county. During the short asparagus season, serve this green vegetable often. When you buy asparagus, count on four servings per pound.
It might be a good idea to remind everybody of the near approach of Father's Day.
