PITTSBURGH:
TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 5, 1861.

APOLOGETIC.

In the haste in which the Inaugural Address was set up for yesterday's Evening Gazette several errors occurred, which in many instances, destroyed the meaning of whole sentences. We this morning give a more correct copy of this interesting document. There are, however, still some inaccuracies which must, in a measure, be attributed to the haste with which it was telegraphed. When the reader is informed that this address was sent over the wires and put in type in less than two hours from the time of its delivery in Washington, they will readily excuse the printers and the telegraphic operators for the errors that may fall under his notice.

MR. LINCOLN'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

It is many years since we have had occasion to commend a message or address emanating from the occupant of the White House at Washington. We therefore the more readily express our approval of the manly and straightforward position assumed by the gentleman who has just entered on the Presidential duties, and who, for the next four years, should his life be spared, will have committed to him the duty of "seeing the laws faithfully executed." We feel assured, from a perusal of his inaugural address, that the people of the United States will find in Abraham Lincoln a Chief Magistrate worthy of their respect and esteem, and one whom, ere his term of office shall expire, they will support with patriotic earnestness and unanimity.

It will be observed that Mr. Lincoln does not recognize the abominable doctrine of secession, but has announced his determination to administer the laws according to the requirements of his oath. If traitors oppose the measures of government, on their heads will rest the responsibility of the bloodshed which will follow their rebellious proceedings. While he has avowed his determination to protect the rights of all the states, and is willing that the people shall express their opinion as to the feasibility of amending the Constitution, he has resolved neither to treat nor tamper with traitors. Had Mr. Buchanan pursued this noble course months ago, or at any period of his administration, the miserable league at Montgomery would not now have a nominal existence.

The people of the country will now feel that they have a government, and a man at its head upon whom they can rely. There is no bravado, no irritating threats—nothing, in short, to which the most conservative can take exception; and yet no language could more distinctly and emphatically declare his purpose, faithfully to execute the laws, and maintain the Union in its integrity, until released from that duty by the American people in their untrammeled sovereignty.

In the whole document there is not a sentence of dubious or doubtful meaning. Mr. Lincoln does not palter with either his friends or his antagonists in a double sense. Every word goes straight to the mark; and he announces his own high and solemn duties in language at once so firm, so calm, so kind and paternal, that none [illegible] to do what he says.

No one can read this important state paper without being reminded of Jackson's celebrated proclamation against the nullification movement in 1832. It is no imitation of that grand State paper, yet it is like it in its lofty dignity, in its unanswerable arguments, and in its solemn appeals to the patriotism of the country. Jack-[illegible] then; may we not hope that a like result will follow the firm utterance of the President now? The crisis now is tenfold more fearful than was that of 1832; but the great heart of the nation is yet sound, the people are ready to stand by its chief the moment they discover that he is a man in whose wisdom, courage, and integrity they can confide, and this address will satisfy them of that fact.

At Trenton Mr. Lincoln but foreshadowed his inaugural when he said that it would be necessary to plant his foot firmly. He has so planted it. He asked his auditors there if they would stand by him. "We will, we will," was the full-hearted response; so now let the same response roll like the voice of many waters from the busy city, and from the secluded homes of our quiet villages, hamlets, farms, mines, and every place where freemen are found, "We will, we will!"

What will strike the reader most in this document is its mild and conciliatory tone, its entire freedom from passion, and the total absence of that partisan spirit that so often disfigures and disgraces public documents. He leaves no room for [illegible]; for no man who is true to the Union, and who wishes to see the government maintained, would have wished that he had said one word less than he has said, or object against his doing all that he says he will do.

President Lincoln's Inaugural Address.

Fellow-Citizens of the United States:

In compliance with a custom as old as the government itself, I appear before you to address you briefly and to take, in your presence, the oath prescribed by the Constitution of the United States to be taken by the President before he enters on the execution of his office. I do not consider it necessary at present for me to discuss those matters of administration about which there is no special anxiety or excitement. Apprehension seems to exist among the people of the Southern States that by the accession of a Republican Administration their property and their peace and personal security are to be endangered. [illegible]

[illegible]

... oath shall be unkept, on a merely unsubstantial controversy as to how it shall be kept? Again, in any law upon this subject, ought not all the safeguards of liberty known in civilized and humane jurisprudence to be introduced so that a freeman may not be in any case surrendered as a slave? And might it not be well at the same time to provide by law for the enforcement of that clause in the Constitution which guarantees that the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states?

I take the official oath to-day with no mental reservations, and with no purpose to construe the Constitution or laws by any hypercritical rules; and while I do not choose now to specify particular acts of Congress as proper to be enforced, I do suggest that it will be much safer for all, both in official and private stations, to conform to, and abide by all those acts which stand unrepealed, than to violate any of them, trusting to find impunity in having them held to be unconstitutional.

It is seventy-two years since the first inauguration of a President under our National Constitution. During that period fifteen different and greatly distinguished citizens have, in succession, administered the Executive branch of the Government. They have conducted it through many perils, and generally with great success. Yet, with all this scope for precedent, I now enter upon the same task for the brief constitutional term of four years under great and peculiar difficulties. Disruption of the Federal Union, heretofore only menaced, is now formidably attempted. I hold that in contemplation of universal law and of the constitution, the Union of these States is perpetual: perpetuity is implied, if not expressed, in the fundamental law of all National Governments. It is safe to assert that no government proper ever had a provision in its organic law for its own termination. Continue to execute all the express provisions of our National Constitution and the Union will endure forever, it being impossible to destroy it, except by some action not provided for in the instrument itself. Again if the United States be not a government proper but an association of States in the nature of contract merely, can it as a contract be peaceably revoked by less than all the parties who made it? One party to a contract may violate it or break it, so to speak, but does it not require all to lawfully rescind it? Descending from these general principles, we find the proposition that in a legal contemplation of the case, Union is perpetual, confirmed by the history of the Union itself. The Union is much older than the Constitution. It was formed in fact by the articles of association in 1774. It was matured and continued by the Declaration of Independence in 1776. It was further matured and the faith of all the then thirteen States, expressly plighted and engaged that it should be perpetual by the articles of confederation in 1778; and finally, in 1787, one of the declared objects for ordaining and establishing the constitution was to form a more perfect Union. If by one or by a part of the States, secession be lawfully possible, the Union is less than before, the constitution having lost the vital element of perpetuity. It follows from these views that no State, upon its own mere motion, can lawfully get out of the Union; that resolves and ordinances to that effect are legally void, and that acts of violence within any State or States against the authority of the United States are insurrectionary or revolutionary, according to circumstances.

I therefore consider that in view of the Constitution and laws the Union is unbroken, and to the extent of my ability I shall take care, as the Constitution itself expressly enjoins on me, that the laws of the Union be faithfully executed in all the States. Doing this I deem to be a simple duty on my part and I shall perform it so far as practicable, unless my rightful masters, the American people, shall withhold the requisite means or in some authoritative manner direct the contrary. I trust this will not be regarded as a menace, but only as declared purpose of the Union that it will constitutionally defend itself. In doing this there need be no bloodshed or violence, and there shall be none unless it be forced upon the national authority. The power confided to me will be used to hold, occupy and possess the property and places belonging to the government, to collect duties and imposts; but beyond what may be necessary for these objects, there will be no invasion, no using of force against or among the people anywhere. Where hostility to the United States, in any interior locality, shall be so great and so universal as to prevent competent resident citizens from holding federal offices, there will be no attempt to force obnoxious strangers among the people that object. While the strict legal right may exist in the Government to inforce the exercise of these offices, the attempt to do so would be so irritating and so nearly impracticable withal, that I deem it better to forego for a time the uses of such offices. The mails, unless repelled, will continue to be furnished in all points of the Union; and so far as possible, the people everywhere shall have that sense of perfect security which is most favorable to calm thoughts and reflection. The course here indicated will be followed unless current events and experience should show a modification or change to be proper, and in every case and exigency my best discretion will be exercised according to circumstances actually existing, and with a view and a hope of a peaceful solution of the national troubles, and the restoration of the fraternal sympathies and affections. That there are persons in one section or another who seek to destroy the Union at all events, and are glad of any pretext to do it, I will neither affirm nor deny; but if there be such, I need address no word to them. To those, however, who really love the Union, may I not speak before entering upon so grave a matter as the destruction of our National fabric, with all its benefits, its memories, its hopes? Would it not be wise to ascertain previously what we do? Will you hazard so desperate a step while there is any possibility that any portion of the ills you fly from have no real existence. While the certain ills you fly to are greater than all the real ones you fly from, will you risk the commission of so fearful a mistake? All profess to be content in the Union if all their constitutional rights can be maintained. Is it [illegible] written in the constitution has been denied? I think not. Happily, the human mind is so constituted that no party can reach to the audacity of doing this. Think, if you can, of a single instance in which a plainly written provision of the Constitution has ever been denied. If by the mere force of numbers a majority shall deprive a minority of any clearly written constitutional right, it might in a moral point of view justify a revolution. It certainly would if such a right were a vital one—but such is not our case. All the vital rights of minorities and of individuals are so plainly assured to them by affirmations and negotiations, guarantees and prohibitions in the Constitution, that controversies never arise concerning them, but no organic law can be framed with a provision specifically applicable to every question which may occur in practical administration. No foresight can anticipate, nor any document of reasonable length contain express provisions for all possible questions. Shall fugitives from labor be surrendered by National or State authority? The constitution does not expressly say. May Congress prohibit Slavery in the Territories? The Constitution does not expressly say. Must Congress protect slavery in the Territories? The Constitution does not expressly say. From questions of this class spring all our constitutional controversies and we divide upon them into majorities and minorities. If the minority will not acquiesce, the majority must, or the Government must cease. There is no other alternative for continuing the Government but acquiescence on the one side or the other. If a minority, in such case, will secede rather than acquiesce, they make a precedent which in turn will divide and ruin them, for a minority of their own will secede from them whenever a majority refuses to be controlled by such a minority. For instance, why may not any portion of a new Confederacy, a year or two hence, arbitrarily secede again? Precisely as portions of the present Union now claim to secede from it! All who cherish disunion sentiments are now being educated to the exact temper of doing this.

Is there such perfect indentity of interests among the states to compose a new Union as to produce harmony only, and prevent renewed secession? Plainly the central idea of secession is the essence of anarchy. A majority held in restraint by constitutional checks and limitations and always changing easily with the deliberate changes of popular opinions and sentiments, is the only true sovereign of a free people. Whoever rejects it, does of necessity fly to anarchy or despotism, unanimity is impossible. The rule of a minority as a permanent arrangement is wholly inadmissible, so that rejecting the majority principle, anarchy and despotism in some form is all that is left. I do not forget the position assumed by some, that constitutional questions are to be decided by the Supreme Court, nor do I deny that such decisions must be binding in any case upon the parties to a suit, as to the object of that suit, while they are also entitled to very high respect and consideration in all parallel cases by all other departments of the Government, and while it is obviously possible that such decision may be erroneous in any given case, still, the evil effect following it being limited to that particular case, with the chance that it may be overruled and never become a precedent for other cases, can better be borne than the evils of a different practice. At the same time, the candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the government, upon vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by the decision of the Supreme Court, the instant they are made in ordinary litigation between parties in personal actions, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent, practically resigned their government into the hands of that eminent tribunal. Nor is there in this view any assault upon the Court or the Judges. It is a duty from which they may not shrink to decide cases properly brought before them, and it is no fault of theirs if others seek to turn their decisions to political purposes. One section of our country believes slavery is right and ought to be extended, while the other believes it is wrong and ought not to be extended. This is the only substantial dispute; for the fugitive slave clause of the Constitution and the laws for the suppression of the foreign slave-trade are each as well inforced, perhaps, as any law can ever be in a community where the moral sense of the people imperfectly supports the law itself. Would the great body of the people abide by the dry legal obligation in both cases, after the separation of the sections, more than before? The foreign slave-trade, now imperfectly suppressed, would be ultimately revived without restriction in one section; while fugitive slaves, now only partially surrendered, would not be surrendered at all by the other.

Physically speaking, we cannot separate, we cannot remove our respective sections from each other, nor build an impassable wall between them. A husband and wife may be divorced, and go out of the presence, and beyond the reach of each other; but the different parts of our country cannot do this. They cannot but remain face to face, [illegible]

... the modes prescribed in the instrument itself, and I should, under existing circumstances, favor, rather than oppose, a fair opportunity being offered the people to act upon it. I will venture to add, that to me the Convention mode seems preferable, inasmuch as it allows the amendment to originate with the people themselves, instead only of permitting them to take or reject a proposition originated by others not especially chosen for the purpose, and which might not be precisely such as they would not wish to either accept or refuse. I understand a proposed amendment to the constitution, which amendment, however, I have not seen, has passed Congress, to the effect that the federal government shall never interfere with the domestic institutions of the States, including that of persons held to service. To avoid a misconstruction of what I have said, I depart from my purpose not to speak of particular amendments so far as to say that holding such a provision to be now implied as Constitutional law, I have no objection to its being made express and irrevocable. The Chief Magistrate derives all his authority from the people and they have conferred none upon him to fix terms for the separation of the States. The people themselves can do this also if they choose, but the executive as such has nothing to do with it. His duty is to administer the present government as it came to his hands and to transmit it unimpaired by him to his successor. Why sh'd there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope in the world? In our present differences, is either party without faith of being in the right. If the Almighty Ruler of nations with his eternal truth and justice be on our side of the North, or on yours of the South, that truth, and that justice will surely prevail by the judgment of this great tribunal, the American people.

By the frame of the Government under which we live, this same people have wisely given their public servants but little power for mischief, and have with equal wisdom provided for the return of that little to their own hands at very short intervals. While the people retain their virtue and vigilance, no administration by any extreme of wickedness or folly, can very seriously injure the Government in the short space of four years. My countrymen, one and all, think calmly and well upon this whole subject. Nothing valuable can be lost by taking time. If there be an object to hurry any of you in hot haste to a step which you would never take deliberately, that object will be frustrated by taking time, but no good object can be frustrated by it. Such of you as are now dissatisfied still have the old Constitution unimpaired, and on the sensitive point the laws of your own framing under it, while the new administration will have no immediate power, if it would, to change either. If it were admitted that you who are dissatisfied hold the right side of the dispute, there still is no single good reason for precipitate action. Intelligence, patriotism, christianity and a firm reliance on Him who has never yet forsaken this favored land, are still competent to adjust in the best way all our present difficulties. In your hands, my dissatisfied countrymen, and not in mine, is the momentous issue of civil war. The Government will not assail you. You can have no conflict without being yourselves the aggressors. You have no oath registered in heaven to destroy the government, while I shall have the most solemn one to preserve, protect and defend it. I am loth to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory stretching from every battle field and patriot grave, to every loving heart and hearthstone, all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched as surely they will be by the better angels of our nature.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 4, 1861.

DUM—Died at West Newton, Pa., on the 1st inst., after severe suffering from congestion of the brain, Miss FLORILLA DUM, second daughter of Mr. Wilson Dum, aged 18 years.
By this bereavement parents and relatives are unexpectedly called to mourn the loss of one whom they tenderly loved.

For Sore, Weak, Inflamed Eyes and Eye Lids.

A true specific and invaluable remedy has been at last discovered. Dr. Humphreys argues that these affections invariably result from a constitutional disease, of which the local affection is only the outward manifestation. Hence, HUMPHREYS' SPECIFIC HOMEOPATHIC OPHTHALMY PILLS are only taken internally, and yet cure the worst forms of obstinate Sore Eyes and Eyelids, which have resisted all other treatment. All cases of Sore and Inflamed Eyes and Eyelids, or Failing, Weak or Defective Sight, will be promptly benefited, and the cure of the worst cases is only a question of time.

Price 50 cents, with directions.

N. B.—A full set of HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS, with Book of Directions, and twenty different Remedies, in large vials, morocco case, $5; ditto, in plain case, $4; case of fifteen boxes, and Book, $2. Single boxes, [illegible] cents.

These Remedies, by the single box or case, are sent by mail or express, free of charge, to any address, on receipt of the price. Address Dr. F. HUMPHREYS & CO., No. 562 Broadway, New York.

Sold by J. M. FULTON, Fifth street, second door from the Post Office, Agent for Pittsburgh.

MRS. WINSLOW, an experienced Nurse and Female Physician, has a Soothing Syrup for children teething, which greatly facilitates the process of teething by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation—will allay all pain, and is sure to regulate the bowels. Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves and relief and health to your infants. Perfectly safe in all cases.—See advertisement in another column.

BELLINGHAM'S CELEBRATED
STIMULATING ONGUENT,
For the Whiskers and Hair.

The subscribers take pleasure in announcing to the Citizens of the United States, that they have obtained the Agency for, and are now enabled to offer to the American public, the above justly celebrated and world-renowned article.

THE STIMULATING ONGUENT is prepared by Dr. C. P. BELLINGHAM an eminent physician of London, and is warranted to bring out a thick set of

WHISKERS OR A MUSTACHE

in from three to six weeks. This article is the only one of the kind used by the French, and in London and Paris it is in universal use.

It is a beautiful, economical, soothing, yet stimulating compound, acting as if by magic upon the roots, causing a beautiful growth of luxuriant hair. If applied to the scalp, it will cure BALDNESS, and cause to spring up in place of the bald spots a fine growth of new hair. Applied according to directions, it will turn red or tawy hair dark, and restore grey hair to its original color, leaving it soft, smooth and flexible. The "ONGUENT" is an indispensable article in every gentleman's toilet, and after one week's use they would not for any consideration be without it.

The subscribers are the only Agents for the article in the United States, to whom all orders must be addressed.

Price One Dollar a box—for sale by all Druggists and Dealers; or a box of the "Onguent," (warranted to have the desired effect,) will be sent to any who desire it, by mail (direct,) securely packed, on receipt of price and postage, $1 18. Apply to or address:

WHEELER & WILSON'S SEWING MACHINE!
No. 27 FIFTH STREET, PITTSBURGH.
FAIRS OF 1860!
WHEELER & WILSON
Awarded the First Premium at the United States Fair; Ohio State Fair;
Illinois State Fair;
Wisconsin State Fair; Iowa State Fair;
Kentucky State Fair;
Tennessee State Fair; New Jersey State Fair;
Vermont State Fair;
Chicago Mechanics' Institute;
Louisville Mechanics' Institute;
Cincinnati Mechanics' Institute;
Allegheny County Fair, Pittsburgh,
and other County Fairs, too numerous to mention.

WE offer to the public WHEELER & WILSON'S IMPROVED SEWING MACHINE, AT REDUCED PRICES, with increased confidence in its merits as the best and most reliable Family Sewing Machine now in use. It sews equally well on the thickest and thinnest fabrics, makes the lock-stitch impossible to unravel, with the essential advantage of being alike on both sides, forming no ridge or chain on the under side—is simple in construction, more speedy in movement, and more durable than any other machine.

We give full instructions to enable the purchaser to sew ordinary seams, stitch, hem, fell, quilt, gather, bind and tuck, all on the same machine, and warrant it for three years.

Circulars, containing testimonials from ladies of the highest standing, East and West, giving prices, &c., will be furnished gratis, on application in person or by letter.

Sewing Machine Needles, Silk, Twist, Cotton and Oil constantly on hand.

WOULD call the attention of the Public to their superior facilities for the manufacture and insertion of all kinds of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, and for the performance of all other branches of DENTISTRY.
Without making a specialty of any one style, they still recommend the VULCANITE PLATE TEETH as the most Healthy, Durable and Comfortable Substitute for the Natural Teeth. They are guaranteed to be superior in every respect to the best Metallic Plate Teeth, whether mounted on gold or any of the cheaper metals, and can be furnished at a cost considerably less.
Those having imperfectly fitting Gold Sets, can have them replaced with the VULCANITE, at a small additional expense above the value of the Old Plate.

BAKER & CO.'S MEDICINAL TRANSPARENT COD LIVER OIL.
THE TRUE AND GENUINE.
UNSURPASSED IN QUALITY AND EFFECTS.
BEING THE SWEETEST AND BEST PREPARED.

Its use, if fairly tried, will soon restore the tone of the digestive organs, invigorate the blood, give general rotundity to the figure, and add energy to the mind and nervous system. Its value has been remarkably evidenced by its wonderful restorative powers when ordinary tonics had been vainly exhausted. It affords nourishment to the body when no other can be borne, and furnishes the frame with fat in a truly remarkable manner.
For CONSUMPTION and BRONCHITIS,
For SCROFULA in all its developments,
For WEAKNESS, WASTING and every form of DEBILITY, its curative properties are unrivaled.
It may be taken without disrelish by the most delicate patient, and retained without effort in the most sensitive stomach. Its superiority in this and other important characteristics of genuineness has guaranteed for it the commendation of the most eminent Physicians throughout the States, the written testimony of the Faculty of the best medical schools: the Professors of the UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA,
JEFFERSON COLLEGE OF PHILADELPHIA,
PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF MEDICINE, and others.
Invalids should be careful to purchase oil of undoubted reputation, if they desire the most active and immediate advantages of the remedy. That which we prepare has decided evidences of superiority over other brands. Manufactured only by
