IN THE SOCIAL SWIM.

The indications for a large number of fall weddings were never more favorable. Engagements are being announced every day, and a great many are being made that are not announced, because the parties interested prefer telling their joyous secret to a select lew rather than to the public at large. It is easy enough to pick out an engaged couple. If it's a love match, their faces are eloquent, even if their lips are silent. I doubt if human beings ever more nearly approach a state of perfect bliss at any time in this life than during the first few weeks after their troths are plighted.

Though June is frequently spoken of as the month of marriages, September is a good time to wed. In fact, I think any season a good one, providing there is a union of hearts as well as hands. Cupid is about as busy at one time of the year as another. Let the good work go on. A young man or a young woman is stronger and better and of a great deal more use in the world after having experienced the joy that comes from a true matrimonial partnership.

The Wanderer.

Love comes back to his vacant dwelling— The old, old Love that we knew of yore! We see him stand by the open door, With his great eyes sad, and his bosom swelling.

He makes as though in our arms repelling, He fain would lie as he lay before— Love comes back to his vacant dwelling— The old, old Love that he knew of yors.

Ah! who shall help us from over-spelling, That sweet forgotten, forbidden lore! E'en as we doubt in our hearts once more, With a rush of tears to our eyelids welling.

Love comes back to his vacant dwelling.

—Austin Dobson.

this week. A COTEMPORARY maliciously adverts to THE DISPATCH'S treatment of "The Old Homestead" and Manager Wilt, and with some ingenuity contrives to say that which is not true. On Saturday last THE DISPATCH for good and sufficient reasons declined to sell advertising space in its Sunday issue to Mr. Wilt for the benefit of "The Old Homestead." It was a business transaction which does not call for discussion. The cotemporary discusses it, however, in a very disinterested spirit. Moreover, in saying "There has been no notice of the cotemporary does not tell the truth, which it could have easily discovered by examining the issue of The DISPATCH of Tuesday, Septem-ber I7, wherein appeared a long and deservedly laudatory criticism of "The Old Homestead." THE DISPATCH will continue to criticise plays as they appear at all the theaters, with-out the least consideration of the presence or out the least consideration of the presence or absence of advertisements in its columns. While this question of advertising is in hand it will not be out of place to remark that Manager Wilt, of the Grand Opera House, does, after all, share in the popular appreciation of THE DISPATCH as an advertising medium. The evidence of this will be found in the proper column, where an attractive advertisement of Miss Marie Wainwright's engagement at the Grand Opera House will be found.

It is most agreeable to record the approbation bestowed upon "The Old Homestead" by Pittsburg audiences. The play is, indeed, a delightful portfolio of sketches from New England life, and its various moral lessons are delightful portfolio of sketches from New England life, and its various moral lessons are wholesome and elevated. Seldom has a play so much of positive good teaching in it. Nor is the didatic dose unpleasant to swallow. The humor is natural and obvious, redolent of clean hay-scented air, and abundant—the pathos unforced, genuine and most affecting. The admirable acting of Mr.-Boyd as Joshua Whiteomb gives the play extraordinary strength. It is he who atones for the absence of plot, the exclusion of climax and anti-climax, and the general undramatic character of "The Old Homestead."

It seems likely that our dramatic authors

It seems likely that our dramatic authors will incline more and more toward this style of play. For a change—and possibly for a steady diet—the undramatic drama may be welcomed.

HEPBURN JOHNS.

The Programme. "THE U. S. MAIL" is a new farce comedy, written by Mr. George C. Jenks, a well-known written by Mr. George C. Jenks, a well-known working journalist of this city. It will be played for the first time in Pittsburg at the Bijou tomorrow night, although it has already achieved a popular success elsewhere. As the title indicates, "The U. S. Mail" is built of material taken from Uncle Sam's postal service. It is a skit upon that service; a good-natured satire in places, and always a vehicle for humor of a racy, rollicking sort. Plot it has little to speak of, purpose exclusively to make people laugh. This being the case, the cast is properly strong in comedians. Of these Miss Kate Davis and Frank David are the best known and the most able. Miss Davis made a wonderful impression upon the Pittsburg public in a rather thankless and certainly uncongenial part in Hoyrls "The Tin Soidier" iast season. In "The U. S. Mail," we are informed, Miss Davis has greater opportunities for the display of her peculiar powers in comedy and of her vocal accomplishments. Mr. Frank David is said to be prodigiously funny as a tramp printer, and his previous record here strengthens the probability of his succeeding now. The company as a whole is strong. The costumes worn by the six girls in the last act are reproductions of the famous dress of Marie Jansen in the comic opera "The Colah," now being sung at the Broadway Theater, New York. The dress consists of an accordion skirt, ankle length, of some bright tint. A plush jacket or "fly," liberally trimmed with pearl beads, exposes a white ballet skirt of India silk, cut decollete. A gorgeous sash of plush is draped gracefully about the waist, and spangle beads and other ornaments cover the costume from shoulder to heel. A jaunty little toque sits upon the head, and the feet are encased in Turkish slippers. The dresses are working journalist of this city. It will be played the costume from shoulder to heel. A jounty little toque sits upon the head, and the feet are encased in Turkish slippers. The dresses are shown to advantage in the graceful measure of a gavotte, and the effect is said to be one of bewildering beauty. The music has been carefully selected, including melodies from the principal operas as well as songs that have made a hit within the last few months. There are also some original numbers, striking in character and, it is said, effective in execution, while the dances throughout the play are said to be particularly taking.

To Morrow evening Miss Marie Wain.

To-Mornow evening Miss Marie Wainwright will be seen at the Grand Opera House in her production of "Twelfth Night," which is said by the ablest critics of Chicago, St. is said by the ablest critics of Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia to be the finest setting ever given to a Shakespearean comedy in this country. It is described as rully equal to Henry Irving's "Much Ado," or Miss Anderson's "Winter's Tale." When Miss Wainwright haid her plans for her first season as an individual star, she naturally sought her play in the works of Shakespeare, and chose "Twelfth Night" not only on her individual liking for the part of Viola, but also because the comedy has not within the memory of the present generation of theater-goers ever been mounted with that completeness and beauty which have been bestowed on other of the great dramatist's lighter works. Miss Wainwright entrusted the designing of all the scenes, furniture, costumes and appointments to E. Hamilton Bell, and the scenes have been painted by Charles Graham, Phillip Goatcher and Schneffer and Maeder. Everything used upon the stage is carried by the company, and thus absolute harmony of detail is obtained. The new acting version used by Miss Wainweight was prepared for her hy Rea Teal Louis and Philadelphia to be the finest setting and thus absolute harmony of detail is obtained. The new acting version used by Miss Wainwright was prepared for her by Ben Teal, who directed the rehearsals.

Among the other noveltles of the presentation are incidental music, arranged by Frank Howson, of the Madison Square Theater, a character-dance for all the principals, directed by Mme. Malvini, the ballet mistress of Daly's Theater, and an epilogue written by George Edgar Montgomery and spoken by Miss Wainwright. The company contains many well-known players. She has gathered the best support obtainable, including Barton Hill and Wm. F. Owen, who have long been recognized as the best Malvolio and Sir Toby in the country; Fred Ross, Percy Brooke, E. Y. Backus, Blanche Waish and Louise Muldener. It is announced that the performances will begin promptly at 8.

AT Harris' Theater, Miss Katie Emmett, supported by a good company, will appear here this week in her new play, "The Waifs of New York." As Willie Rufus, Miss Emmett portrays the characteristics of a metropolitan bootblack in the earlier scenes of the drama, and later on shines bright as a charming young lady. She is a pleasing soubrette, being both a sweet singer and a graceful dancer. The drama treats of life in the great American metropolis and is full of exolting incidents and clean comedy. The special scenery used embraces a number of sets that cost considerable money to have painted. The railroad bridge scene is especially realistic. Mr. G. W. Thomp-son, the favorite German comedian, is with the company, as well as Mr. Charles Patterson, who made such a favorable impression several weeks ago in "His Natural Life."

It is a star programme without a doubt that Manager Harry Williams offers this week at the Academy of Music. The attraction is Tony Pastor's Company. Not only will the great Antonio be present, but some of the best American and European artists will be there to assist him. There are the big burlesquers, Sherman and Morrissey; Rose and Martin, the contortionists; Jank Hoe, the Japanese conjuror, and the only Circassian woman on the stage, Omene, as his assistant, and these others: The Julians, the Irish songstress, Maggie Kline; Millie Hylton, the Grabau sisters, Hoye and Henry, Musical Dole, Lizzie Collins and Prof. E. Abt. the Academy of Music. The attraction is Tony

Besides the hundreds of living lessons to be so enjoyably studied under his tremendous tents, he introduces a clown, hairy, dwarf elephant, which actually rides and propels a bicycle, and has a most learned pony comrade and an accomplished monkey valet, educated cattle, sheep, seals, zebras, dogs, pigs, donkeys, pelicans, goats, roosters, bears, pigeons, ponies and other beasts and birds, who perform many wonderful and ludicrous tricks, and a 40-strong carnival of grotesque dancers, pantomimists, clown acroand indicrous tricks, and a so-stone carrivator grotesque dancers, pantomimists, clown acrobats and mishap fun-makers, who keep the children in continuous and delighted uproar Mr. Barnum says that he "would rather be called the Children's Friend than the World's King." ONE of the actors in "The Great Metropolis" forgot himself at a performance last week and sat down on the lighthouse. Scores of newsboys were a tag bearing the title "U. S. Mail" yesterday. This was Assistant Manager Dawson's idea.

FANNY DAVENPORT is having tapestries painted in Italy to decorate the third and fourth acts of "La Tosca." The production will be more elaborate than ever next season. THE largest theater in New York has at last secured an attraction which puts its capacity to a severe test. "Shenandoah" is said to have drawn 500 more people to the Star Theater on Saturday night than could gain admittance.

Le Chat Noir says: Pauline Hall has lost flesh, but no diamonds, since she was unfortu-nate enough to play in "Erminie." The ear-rings that she wears in "The Drum Major" are stupendous and absurd. It requires taste as well as money to secure beautiful jewels. THE Booth-Modjeska engagement opens at the Grand Opera House on September 30. The the Grand Opera House on Septemoer 30. The following plays will be presented during the week: "The Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet," "Richelieu," "Much Ado About Nothing," "The Fool's Revenge," and "The Divine Diana."

IT it said that A. M. Palmer's trunks were seized in Liverpool on suspicion that they contained seditious documents. When the manager proved that he only had some manu-scripts of blood and thunder plays he was allowed to pass, the authorities saying they were glad to see the manuscripts going out of the country. It is said by Le Chat Noir that Augustus Daly compels all the members of his company to agree in their contracts not to eat veal, walk Broadway, wear straw hats or chew gum. Miss Rehau is not fond of veal or gum, but the rule comes down pretty hard on some of the actors. I hear, in fact, that Mr. Tim Cronin is espe-cially fond of veal, while Henrietta Crossman was reared on gum. These two beautiful young people are looking forward to their Daly careers with some dread in consequence, "I READ quite a number of plays," said Man ager J. M. Palmer to a Mirror reporter, "and listened to the reading of many more while I was in London, Playwriting over there seems at almost as low an ebb as it is here. Only there amanager can find a larger number of experienced professional playwrights to deal with than he can find here. The trouble with the writers there, as here, seems to be that they are poverty-stricken as to subjects. They are written out, for the time being, apparently, How about "Shenandoah," the immensel praised new play written by Mr. Bronson How ard, an American playwright, Mr. Palmer?

AT the Academy of Music, New York, where "The Old Homestead" is being played by Denman Thompson himself, in order to secure room for the production of the largest scenes ever given on any stage the two great walls on the sides of the stage have been removed. This has necessitated as well the destruction of four floors of dressing rooms on both sides of the house. The width of the stage is now 147 feet, and one drop is being painted that will cover this entire space. The whole character of the stage setting differs entirely from that of last season. The last act is to be a revolving scane showing the Swanger cure room for the production of the largest is to be a revolving scene showing the Swanson arm buried in snow. IT is less customary, says the Mirror, nov than in "ye palmy days of the drama" for members of the audience to have their little say. Still, that this does occur ocwas proved by an incident that is said to have happened in Buffalo during the recent production of "Josephine." The Emperor's sister. Pauline, had just explained that it a girl was born five guns would be fired, and if it was a boy, the number of volleys reached 101. Bang! went the first gun, the audience and actors went the first gun, the audience and actors listening intently. The fifth gun boomed, and the firing seemed to cease. "A girl!" sneered Pauline, completely disgusted. Boom! went the sixth gun. "A boy!" cried the actors, and a large number of excited auditors. Boom! went the seventh gun. "Twins!" shouted a roguish youth in the gallery, and the curtains went down amid roars of laughter.

MANY years ago when John Webster was filling an engagement in Mobile, under the old tock system, he was given three roles to study in two days. He learned two of them tolerably well, but had very little time left to devote to a long blank verse part in "Mary Stuart." At the evening performance, after stumbling through a long description of the palace of through a long description of the palace of Queen Elizabeth, he stack at the sentence, "Oh, it was sublime!" He kept repeating the phrase, getting redder in the face at each repetition, until the only end that suggested itself was: "Oh, it was sublime to the ridiculous!" Mary Gladstone, who was the star, threw a book at his head for killing her best scene. Furthermore, she went down to the footlights and made a speech to the audience about the duffers they had sent from Now York to support her in Mobile. Poor Webster, who had been working hard, scarcely received any sympathy, but was only too glad that Mary Stuart had come to an untimely end.

Pronantly the largest shipment of theatri.

PROBABLY the largest shipment of theatrical scenery ever made across the Atlantic is that to be made this month by the Cunard Steamship Company for Wilson Barrett, Mr. Steamship Company for Wilson Barrett, Mr. Barrett has a repertory for eight plays for his approaching tour in the United States, and nearly all of these pieces require original scenery and properties. The Cunard Company offered Mr. Barrett low rates of transportation, and the English actor took advantage of the offer. The total amount of scenery, properties and gas and mechanical apparatus to be transported will weigh about 180 tons. This is exclusive of the 50 large baskets of costumes, which will weigh about 1800 pounds. The Cephalonia, which sails on the 18th instant, will bring over the first shipment, which will be deposited at Boston, and the Cythia will follow on the 26th with the balance. A train of cars will be required to convey the Barrett company and convey the scenery on its travels about the country, and Mr. Barrett expects to pay considerable money into the coffers of the railroads during the season. The Barrett company will sail on the 26th, and Mr. Barrett on October 2.

Making Arrangements for Its Observance-Post 162 Detailed for Escort Duty-General Orders-Gossip From Post and Camp-Sons of Veterans.

The Grand Army Day Committee met in Common Council chamber yesterday afternoon, with Comrade A. P. Burchfield in the chair, and Comrade H. H. Bengough secretary. The Finance Committee reported progress. The Invitation Committee reported progress, and that among others that had signified their intention of being present were De-partment Commander Stewart, Senior Vice Commander Miller, Assistant Adjutant General McCormick, Quartermaster General Williams, and Mustering Officer Alfred G. Lloyd, of the Sons of Veterans. The Transportation Committee reported that General Passenger Agent Samuel Moody had done heroic work, and had secured a very low rate on all the western lines of the very low rate on all the western lines of the Pennsylvania Company. A vote of thanks was tendered ar. Moody for his kindness.

The Subsistence Committee reported that Council Chambers had been secured for headquarters, and that Saiisbury Hall, on the Southside, had been secured. The committee was ordered to try to secure the old university building, in which to place cots for the accommodation of visiting comrades. Cots were also ordered to be placed in Salisbury Hall, Southside.

The report of the Executive Committee was read. Its recommendations were that the Commander-in-Chief be authorized to select his own band for the head of the column; that the committee pay half the cost of the bands at the heads of the three divisions, and that a joint campfire of the comrades of Pittsburg and Allegheny be held at Old City Hall.

The following general orders were read:

meeting on next Tuesday evening. A muster will be held, and Comrade Cole will give an ac-count of his sojourn in North Carolina, in which he will compare the Governors of North and South Carolina. All comrades are invited. BETHLEHEM, Mauch Chunk and Wilkesberre P.a., will have encampments of the U. V.

L. in a few days, and Canton, O., and Wheeling,
W. Va., will follow. Adjutant General Short is preparing papers for encampments at Providence, R. L., Baugor, Me., and Boston, Mass.
MAJOR GEOBGE F. MORGAN, formerly of the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth P. V., and 12 others were mustered into Eucampment No. 1, U. V. L., just before leaving to take part in the Gettysburg monumental meeting. The Major will organize an encampment at Chicago, Ili., where he lives.

THERE will be a lively but fraternal contest among the posts to secure the American flag to be presented by Captain W. R. Jones, of Braddock, to the post turning out in the parade on Grand Army Day the largest percentage of membership in good standing. Visiting posts will be in the contest.

THE annual memorial services of Encampment No. 1, U. V. L., will be held at their headquarters on Monday night, September 30. Chaplain in Chief Danks will deliver the address, and the boy choir from St. Peter's Episcopal Church will sing a number of appropriate pieces. COMRADE W. J. PATTERSON, of Post 157, by request, will deliver before the post on next Thursday evening his oration at the dedication of the monument of the Sixty-second Pennsyl-vania Volunteers at Gettysburg. Commander Askin, of Post 157, extends a fraternal invita-tion to comrades of other posts to be present on this occasion. THE "Sickles Excelsior Brigade Association" has issued invitations to all members of that famous organization to meet in reunion at the City Treasurer's office at 4 o'clock P. M. October I (Grand Army Day). Supper will be given at Baird's at 7 o'clock P. M. All persons connected with the brigade during the war are mivited to attend, whether they receive an invitation by mail or not, as the addresses of some of the courades change from time to time, and some of the invitations miscarry.

THE seventh reunion since the war of the Seventy-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers will occur at Punxsutawney, Pa., on Wednesday, October Id next. This organizationswas recruited at Camp Orr, Kittanning, and left this city in September, well, for Louisville, Ky., by boat, under command of Colonel Wm. Sirwell, with the brigade commanded by General James S. Negley. The regiment did gallant service in the Army of the Cumberland. Captain R. D.
