They are grateful for everything the telephone operators are doing to get them a Long Distance line to home.

They will thank you, too, if you leave the Long Distance wires from seven to ten for the service men.

That is the best time many of them have to call.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

● Judy is only five. She may have heard about the smell of coal oil lamps whose care was a regular daily chore for grandma. But the only way she knows of getting a light is by flicking a switch. She never knew the days when there was no radio, no electric washer, nor any of the modern electric conveniences in the house. Judy just takes these things for granted.

That's because we have already entered the period of the all-electric home. Its rapid development has only been slowed down by the war.

The modern kitchen, with its electric range, refrigerator, roaster, food mixer and dishwasher; the modern laundry, with piping hot water from the electric water heater, and electric washer, ironer, and dryer; well-lighted rooms all over the house, to preserve precious eyesight needed for close-seeing tasks—these are some of the important aids to homemaking found in the electric home.

You will want to tab today's savings so that you can have your all-electric home when it becomes possible to modernize or buy.

The all-electric home is more attractive, more livable and more comfortable. Save and plan for it now.
