THE OIL WELL DRAMA.

Tragedian Keene Recalls His Early Campaigns About Pittsburg.

AN OIL MAN'S PORTABLE THEATER.

Interesting Recollections of Jo Sefton's Stock Company.

A LOCAL LAERTES IN A WATERY GRAVE

"When an actor gets to be as old as I am he forgets many things," observed Thomas W. Keene, the tragedian, as he sat in the corridor of the Hotel Anderson, the other evening, "but if I should live to be as old as the traditions of Memnon I could never come to Pittsburg without recalling the days of 1867 and 1868, when I played in the stock company here, with Jo Selton, in the building which stood where Harris' Theater now stands. There were Jo Sefton and his wife, Annie Sefton, and Mrs. Le Forrest and Oliver Doud Byron, and the O'Neil girls in the company, but Sefton himself was the central figure.

"After the regular season Sefton would send me out into the oil regions starring. I was playing Hamlet, Macbeth and Richard III. then for the princely salary of $16 a week, and furnishing my own wardrobe. I remember well the first town we struck after leaving Pittsburg. It was Pleasantville. By the way, there was a Pittsburg boy along with us named Harrison, now in the glass business, I understand. But more of him anon.

LOOKING FOR THE TOWN.

"Well, we reached Pleasantville. Alighting from the train I walked around and could discern only two buildings, one evidently a hotel, the other a store.

"'Where is the theater?' I asked of a man who seemed to comprise the population of Pleasantville.

"'It will be here all right by the time you are ready to play, this evening,' replied the population, coolly.

"'Well, but where are the people to play to?'

"'Oh, they'll be here all right.'

"I took his word for it. Indeed, that seemed to be the only thing in the vicinity to take, and I had to be satisfied with it. My confidence was not misplaced, either, for played out, bringing the theater with them, along with their tools and other baggage. It took them less than an hour to rap up the light board shell, which constituted their Temple of Thespis. So, there was my theater. But I was still at a loss to know where my audience was coming from, with only two houses in view.

AN AUDIENCE ON DECK.

"Night came on, however, and a sight was presented to one poor and hungry actor that he will never forget. Out from behind the derricks, along the little hills twinkled an apparently innumerable number of lanterns. From places where one would never dream of a human habitation thronged the hardy miners, and long before I was ready to step upon the stage there were 600 or 700 people in the theater.

"Well, we gave them "Richard," and a more enthusiastic audience you never saw. I had sent to a tinshop in Titusville for some sheets of tin, from which we cut little circular pieces and fashioned our armors, and I tell you Richmond and the crookback showed up as glittering warriors. That night was all right. But the next we essayed "Hamlet" and that was a mistake.

IN A WATERY GRAVE.

"The miners had pitched our theater over a little brook. Heavy rains during the forenoon had swollen the stream, and in the scene where Laertes jumps into the grave of Ophelia we had a catastrophe. Young Harrison, of Pittsburg, whom I mentioned, was Laertes. The trapdoor in the floor was open for the grave. Laertes took his desperate jump. There was a splash, a cry and a scream from the audience. Laertes had immersed himself in the swollen stream, and it took the efforts of half the audience to rescue him from his watery grave before he could go on with the performance.

"There were a number of little mishaps like this, but, notwithstanding them, we played to good business in the oil settlements for 43 weeks, and when we came back to Pittsburg Jo Sefton made me a present of $900 in addition to my salary, which was more money than I had ever seen together before."

Mr. Keene plays six weeks more this season, and goes to Winnipeg. He will open next season in California with a new play by Arden Smith. It is entitled "Launcelot." The story of the play differs from Tennyson's in so far as to enable Elaine to entirely recover his health, and to prove iam celat "not guilty as charged in the indictment."

AN UNLUCKY THIRTEEN.

A Baker's Dozen of Unfortunates Before Mayor Wyman Yesterday.

There were just 13 cases before Mayor Wyman yesterday, at his Sunday morning hearing. None of them were beyond the ordinary class of drunks and disorderlies, and all were quickly disposed of. But three were charged with drunkenness; Joseph Jackson went to jail for 5 days, John Shuttinger for 48 hours and William Brady paid $1 and costs.

Of the disorderlies, William J. Wilkey paid $10 and costs for striking his wife, John Gorman and J. H. McFarlin paid $5 each, William Porter paid $15, James Port $10, Jacob Slitmer only paid the costs of his arrest, and Joseph Schrem, Harry Schneider and Edward Saunders each got 30 days in default of payment of fines, while Woods Ferguson had the distinction of being the only one discharged.

Had Their Swords Blessed.

The Knights of St. George, Company K, located in the West End, with 40 members, formed at their hall yesterday afternoon and, headed by the West End Brass Band, marched to St. Martin's Catholic Church, on Steuben street, where Father Gobel blessed their swords.

Gratifying to All.

The high position attained and the universal acceptance and approval of the pleasant liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs, as the most excellent laxative known, illustrate the value of the qualities on which its success is based and are abundantly gratifying to the California Fig Syrup Company.

THE PARABLES OF CHRIST.

Earthly Stories With a Heavenly Meaning—The Savior's Manner of Illustrating His Sermons—Rev. W. F. Oldham's Sunday Talk—What Other Preachers Said.

Rev. W. F. Oldham, pastor of Butler Street M. E. Church, took for the subject of his morning discourse yesterday, "The Parables of Jesus Christ." He called attention to the fact that Jesus began preaching without the use of illustrations, and said: "Take, for instance, the Sermon on the Mount, the most wonderful discourse ever uttered, which in itself reveals the divinity of Christ and which, placed beside the best things from the best men, rises higher than the imagination of men's hearts; the best thoughts from the best teachers among men suffering in the contrast, and appearing like a sermon in the valley; and although so marvelous, that sermon was without a single illustration. After this wonderful sermon Christ never spoke without using parables."

Of the meaning of parable the pastor said: "I remember once trying to explain to a number of Chinese young men the meaning of a parable, but they did not get the idea until a good woman beside me said: 'Boys, it is an earthly story with a heavenly meaning,' and this is one of the best definitions I have heard."

Continuing, Mr. Oldham said: "Parables often contain unpalatable truths, which a man would repel if the meaning was not at first veiled; and again, they often contain truths which may never be revealed to the hearer—why? Because Christ never taught an unwilling man. 'If a man will do His will he shall know of the doctrine.' This is true in nature. Take up a flower; it means very little to you; study it as a botanist and the same flower has a new meaning. So God hides His truth in parables; the inner meaning is passed by unless you seek it prayerfully.

"Parables contain a marvelous fund of information. Have you ever read anything anywhere that shows forth the love of God as the story of the Prodigal Son and his return? The parable of the Good Samaritan marked a new era in the world—giving a new meaning to neighbor. I do not wonder that John said: A new commandment I write unto you, 'Love one another.'"

AN EVERY-DAY RELIGION.

Rev. C. E. Locke Speaks of One That is Good at All Times.

Rev. C. E. Locke, of the Smithfield Street M. E. Church, last evening, preached on "A religion that is good for Monday as well as for Sunday." The speaker spoke of the proneness of humanity to carry their doubts and sorrows to their fellow-man for removal or comfort. He said: "Don't take your doubts to the North American Review. Don't take them to the men who acknowledges that he does not believe in a Supreme Being. God is in the world, in our midst daily, to save men and women, boys and girls. If you are oppressed by tears or affliction God only can comfort you through His inspired word, and yet how many of us for relief go to volumes compiled by frail mortals.

"If there was more religion in our homes, workshops and offices there would be much less insanity in Western Pennsylvania today. When a man or woman possesses the repose of soul which may be obtained by the earnest perusal of the Book Divine, he or she can meet earthly trials with fortitude."

ONE OF THE REVELATIONS

The Subject of Another of Rev. J. R. Sutherland's Course of Lectures.

Rev. J. R. Sutherland, D. D., of the Second Presbyterian Church, last evening continued his series of lectures explanatory of the book of Revelations, and took for his subject, "The lamb with the seven eyes and the seven horns." He described the Apostle John's vision of heaven, where he saw the great scroll sealed with seven seals, containing all the events of the past and the future which no one was found worthy to open either in heaven or upon the earth.

He depicted the apostle's grief and disappointment when he found that the book was still a sealed volume, and his relief when told that the Lamb (Jesus Christ) in the midst of the celestial throng, was the inspired messenger to whom was entrusted the mission of disclosing these mysteries to poor humanity. The reverend divine will continue this series next Sunday evening by discoursing on "The Song Sung in Heaven."

TO HURRY UP CONGRESSMEN.

George A. Kelly Going to Washington to Work for the Shipping Bill.

George A. Kelly, the well-known druggist, will leave this morning for Washington, D. C., to accompany his wife, who is a delegate to the National Convention of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. While in Washington Mr. Kelly will make an effort to stir up Congress in regard to the bill to place the American shipping on an equality with that of other nations. The bill is on the House calendar and will come up shortly. Congressman Dalzell has expressed himself as thoroughly in sympathy with the measure, and says he will not only vote for the bill, but will try and get others to do so.

A committee from the Philadelphia Board of Trade is in Washington now agitating the idea of establishing a line of steamers to ply between the United States and Africa.

THINKS WALLACE WILL WIN.

Congressman Kerr for the Ex-Senator for Gubernatorial Honors.

Congressman James Kerr, of Clearfield, was at the Hotel Anderson for a few hours yesterday. While averse to talking on political matters on the Sabbath, he relaxed sufficiently to tell a DISPATCH reporter that he favors the nomination of ex-Senator Wallace for Governor, and thinks he will win the honor with ease. If Mr. Wallace is nominated, Mr. Kerr says, he could be elected, provided any man of Quay's naming secures the Republican nomination.

As to a successor to the late Representative Randall, Mr. Kerr thinks Mutchler should be chosen, as that gentleman, according to Mr. Kerr's idea, was not only an intimate friend of Mr. Randall's, but he also shared the views of the deceased statesman.

TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE

Expected to Attend the Glassworkers' Reunion at Wheeling in June.

Delegates from 18 local unions, A. F. G. W., met yesterday afternoon in Odd Fellows' Hall, Southside, to arrange for their annual reunion. The locals represented are from all parts of Western Pennsylvania. Yesterday's meeting was merely a preliminary one, and nothing was done save to vote for the continuance of the yearly gathering that was inaugurated last summer. It was decided to hold a picnic at Hornbrook Park, Wheeling, on Monday, June 3, and various sub-committees were appointed to arrange for transportation and fix details, such as athletic contests, etc.

Preparations will be made to accommodate 10,000 people, as fully that many are expected to attend if railroad rates are satisfactory.

Paid Dearly for His Ride.

John Thomas was arrested by Officer Miller Saturday night on Main street and lodged in the Thirty-sixth ward station, on a charge of disorderly conduct. At the hearing yesterday morning the officer testified that the defendant started to fight with James Lafferty, a West End street car driver, because he asked him for his fare. Magistrate Succop fined him $5 and costs.
