Some Details of the Arrangements Now Being Made by Employers

TO HEAD OFF LABOR'S DEMANDS.

Detectives Doing Duty as Employes, to Watch the Latter's Moves.

A COMPLETE SYSTEM OF BLACKLISTING

American capitalists are at length giving tardy recognition to the fact that "in union is strength," and, taking a hint from the rapidly increasing and aggressive power of the capital produced by labor—when its producers are banded together for the preservation and attainment of their common interests—are themselves forming coalitions and associations for the protection of their interests. That the progress of such an apparent necessity as the combination of the holders of money capital against what they regard as the encroachments of the capital supplied by labor has escaped general attention is a matter for surprise when the inscriptions on the direction post of the highway of social economics point so clearly to the way in which the labor problem is traveling. Capital has at length combined against labor, not in industrial instances or locally, but in widespread ramifications which extend throughout the country.

FIRST IN THE FIELD.

There is reason to suppose that one of the first corporations to adopt a systematic plan of campaign against the assertions of organized labor was that known as the Yerkes-Widener-Elkins syndicate. This syndicate controls traction roads in this city and in Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, San Francisco, Kansas City and New York. Its method of resistance to the demands of an organized body were disclosed in this city during the strike on the Fifth avenue road. It imported men from its lines in other cities, under command of its secret service agents, and rapidly filled up the places left vacant by the strikers. Its representatives here declared they would not recognize any labor organization, thus carrying out a policy it enforces over all its lines. There does not seem to be any objection to its employes organizing as much as they please, only that the syndicate will refuse to recognize any body as having any concern whatever with its business.

This much, so far, is generally known. But, according to one of its secret service officers, who was here during the strike alluded to, the syndicate takes occasion to guard itself against trouble in the future. Records, fully stated, are kept of every man who shows a disposition to assert the right of organizations to say what measure of wages shall be paid for certain work done, and such men, on being discharged from the road, are regularly blacklisted against obtaining employment on other roads operated by the syndicate. A full description, such as would enable him to be easily recognized, with his photograph, is sent to headquarters in each city, and he is boycotted. By such means the syndicate keeps down organizing among its employes, and so renders it innocuous against troublesome strikers.

A SYSTEM OF ESPIONAGE.

Secret service agents, in the guise of a regular employe and ostensibly receiving the regular rate of wage, are employed on every road, and of course have ample opportunity of learning the traits and disposition of their co-workers, as well as of any attempt at systematic organizing on their part. So much has been disclosed by one of the secret service men.

But much more gigantic and far reaching are certain combinations now being effected in the East, with wings spreading over the country. Several large corporations have mutually agreed to sustain each other against organized demands. Where similar interests are involved, though not directly, as in lines of the same manufacture, an attempt will be made to defeat the demands, by simultaneously closing down all the works, and thus throwing out of employment every worker in the country in that particular trade. How far and to what extent these associations of capitalists have been completed has not yet transpired, but enough has been ascertained to enable the statement to be made that such combinations are now being effected. The service of secret agents is extensively employed to ascertain what movements are on foot among the workers, so that simultaneous action may be taken when the time comes. During the progress of the Westinghouse strike the company was as familiar with the proceedings of the men as if a public stenographer was employed to report them, and it is safe to aver that when next any difference arises between the Westinghouse interests and its employes the former will have a strong card to play.

It is said that nowhere will there be a more thorough or far-reaching understanding arrived at than among the railroads. The gathering strength of the railroad employes' organizations is noted with alarm by railroad managers, and they confess that unless some counteracting understanding is arrived at between all the roads individual lines will be, in time, practically at the mercy of the workers.

STUPENDOUS TO CONTEMPLATE.

Such a step as the tying up, simultaneously, of every line in the country is a thing so stupendous as to be almost incredible of comprehension. Yet there are men who say that the exigencies of the times may yet demand such an extreme proceeding.

In this city of vast industries, and where such large interests are at stake, the increasing power of the various labor organizations has brought the possibilities of the future vividly before the minds of the manufacturers. There are those among them who consider the time has arrived for capital to adopt some such measure of protection as the workers have originated, and they see in a combination among themselves some means of withstanding the encroachments of labor.

The window glass manufacturers are credited with having such a combination under way, and they are reported as girding up their loins for an active resistance to any extreme demand the workers may put forward next year. Already an understanding exists among glass manufacturers generally, about employing certain men, and blacklisting of too prominent workers has happened before now. One well-known glass worker was blacklisted, and so quietly that he didn't get on to it for four months.

RIGHT FROM AN EMPLOYER.

"These be stirring times," as an Eastern manufacturer now in the city remarked yesterday, "and to-day does not know what the morrow may bring forth. No one can say with any degree of certainty how long, or how short a time the labor world may remain quiescent. On all sides we hear of the vaunted power of organized labor, no one can say where its demand will cease, and the time has come when capitalists recognize the necessity of organizing, also. And they are going to do it."

PREVENTED BY DEATH

From Reaching the Goal of His Ambition—Sudden Demise of a Young Man Who Wanted to be a Missionary—Sad Features of the Case.

Rev. E. K. Johnson, a member of the class of '90 at the Western Theological Seminary, died Saturday at 4 P. M., at the Allegheny General Hospital, of typhoid fever. Mr. Johnson's father was for many years a missionary in India, being a member of the Allahabad Mission. It was there that the deceased was born. His father brought him to America to be educated when he was six years old. He lived with his grandfather at Hookstown till prepared for the academy. He graduated from the Academy of Canonsburg in 1883, and entered as freshman at the Washington and Jefferson College in the fall of the same year.

Mr. Johnson graduated June 23, 1887, and in the fall of that year he entered the Western Theological Seminary, of Allegheny. Here he spent three years, and graduated May 9, this year. He had chosen to spend his life in the foreign missionary field, and on the 20th of this month he expected to sail for India, where he purposed to join the same mission to which his father had belonged for so many years; viz: that of Allahabad.

Deceased was engaged to be married to an amiable and accomplished young lady of Washington, Pa., Miss Ida Gantz, and the day set for the wedding was last Wednesday, just three days before his death. He was taken sick just one week before his death, and his disease at once assumed a serious form. His father, who is at this time President of Biddle University, at Charlotte, N. C., was promptly dispatched for, but did not arrive till 15 hours after his death.

His sister, Miss Jennie R. Johnson, and his affianced, Miss Ida Gantz, were present when he died. His funeral will be held today, in the First Presbyterian Church of Allegheny, at noon. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Snowden, of Washington, Pa., assisted by Dr. Robinson and other Professors of the seminary.

Mr. Johnson was always faithful in his duties, devoted as a friend, and helpful to all with whom his life was cast. His death is mourned by many friends who learned to esteem him, both among his seminary and college associates, and the people of Washington and this city.

Mr. Johnson was in his 26th year when he died.

A PROSPEROUS OUTLOOK.

Opening of the Fall Term of the Western University.

The indications are that the fall term of the Western University will be one of the most prosperous ever enjoyed by the institution during its long career. The completion of the handsome and commodious buildings on Observatory Hill, the enlarging of its field of instruction by the addition of technical instruction in electric, mechanical and mining engineering, the arranging of special courses in these branches as well as civil engineering, in addition to the thorough regular courses, have imparted fresh life to the popular institution.

That these efforts on the part of the trustees, the chancellor and the faculty are appreciated is shown by the fact that an unusually large number of applications for admission as pupils have been made, and in this connection it is gratifying to state that while a large number of applications are from persons residing outside the city and State, that the people of Pittsburg and vicinity who have sons to educate are realizing the advantage and will keep their charges at home.

The examination of applicants for admission will commence to-day and will continue to-morrow (Tuesday). On Wednesday morning the recitations will commence, and it is desirable that all who purpose attending should begin at that time. The new buildings are now in almost perfect condition, and the workshops, laboratory and other departments in complete order. The gymnasium is also complete, and is supplied with the latest appliances.

WRITTEN WITH BLOOD

Is the History of the Hebrews for Many Hundreds of Years.

RELIEF FOR RUSSIAN REFUGEES

The Object of the Local Society That is So Rapidly Growing.

ANOTHER SPIRITED MEETING HELD

There was another largely attended meeting of the Hebrew Relief Society held yesterday at 384 Fifth avenue, presided over by Mr. A. Harter, who stated that the object of the society is not to send money to Russia, but to help refugees who are being driven out of that country by the Czar. Mr. M. Spiro was called on and made an address in English, prefixing it with the lines from Byron:

The wild dove hath her nest,
The fox his cave,
Mankind their country;
Israel but the grave.

Mr. Spiro then said: "When we read through the history of the world we find that every nation had during their historical epoch to fight for their rights and independence. However, bloody their history may have been, it cannot be compared with that of the Hebrews. Our history contains more dark pages than those of any other nation. From the time of the bondage in Egypt, through the barbaric middle ages down to the present day, the Hebrews were subjected to most inhuman treatment. Our history is written with our own blood. Since the destruction of Jerusalem, once the pride of Israel, by Titus Vespucius, the Hebrews spread all over Europe and some parts of Asia and Africa, and underwent the most cruel torturing and persecution. There is not a country in Europe and some in Asia and Africa where the ground has not been soiled with the blood of our race.

TORTURED BEYOND CONCEPTION.

"The middle ages are the darkest in our history. Since the destruction of the second temple, the crimes and outrages perpetrated against the Hebrews are beyond human conception. Their expulsions from Spain, Portugal, France, England and other countries were so numerous that they nearly culminated in the extinction of the race. Driven from one country to another, we have been wandering for nearly 2,000 years. With the beginning of the nineteenth century, the more civilized nations have ceased the persecution and gradually granted certain rights, which were before denied. The example set by France, in emancipating the Hebrews, was soon followed by other enlightened nations, and the question began to solve itself in the course of time.

"Although the Hebrews in Russia have never fully enjoyed the rights and liberties which their more fortunate brothers in other countries did, they were, nevertheless, under the Government of Alexander II., more friendly and kindly treated. The situation assumed a new phase. Scarcely have the heavy clouds which hung over their heads been dispersed, when the hostilities against the Hebrews by the anti-Semitic Government broke out with such force and violence as was only equaled by the crusade against the Hebrews in the middle ages. In fact these terrible times seemed to have returned.

"In order to divert the attention of the Russian people from becoming involved in the Nihilistic movement in overthrowing the Government of the despotic ruler, Alexander III., the fate of thousands of Hebrews was placed in the hands of a mob. I need not relate in detail the persecutions of our brothers in 1881 and 1882. The horrible scenes which took place Ekaterinoslav, Odessa, Kief, Balta, Warsaw and many other places are still fresh in your minds. The outrages commited against our sisters, wives and daughters, in the face of their brothers, husbands and fathers, by the dissolute mob that was raving for blood, and the sleepless nights we have spent, not daring to go to bed, lest our enemies should attack us while asleep, are still vivid in our memory.

MUST LEAVE THIS MONTH.

"Alexander III. and Ignatief, the then Minister of the Interior, deemed it advisable, for some reason, not to put into execution their cowardly deeds. Now the brute of Russia openly declares that the court edict of expelling all Hebrews from Russia will be rigidly enforced by October 1, irrespective of the protests by England and the United States.

"The Novoe Vreuja, which is the mouthpiece of Ignatief, makes the following suggestion: 'If we can't now any more expel them from Russia, as they were once expelled from Spain, the Government shall pass such laws against them as to make their lives unbearable, so they will then be compelled to leave Russia.' Now, brothers, the fatal hour is approaching. A part of the fugitives will turn to America as a harbor of peace and security. The fate of thousands of men, women and children is at stake. Thousands of families will be thrown into poverty and destitution. Thousands and thousands will soon be made homeless and friendless. What cruel fate will befall them? If we cannot prevent it, let us at least extend a helping hand to those who will seek refuge in this land of liberty. This injustice cries aloud, and we must not and cannot remain indifferent. It is our duty to help them; it is our right. Let us willingly and cheerfully administer relief and assistance to our unfortunate and much-abused brothers and sisters, and, in conclusion, let us hope that there will yet come a time when all hatred, prejudice and intolerance of one race against the other will cease, and all men will be regarded as brothers, and true humanity will triumph."

Addresses were then made in Hebrew by M. Robbin, Simon Moraszky and others. A committee was appointed whose duty it will be to secure a hall for meetings, which will be held every Sunday. About 25 new members were added to the society yesterday.

FAMILIES AT SCHENLEY PARK.

The Grounds Crowded With People Out for an Airing.

Yesterday was a day when the weary toiler living in a crowded street thought of shaded nooks and sylvan glens, and his mind reverted back to the time when he smelled the green grass and felt the summer winds fan his heated brow. He took advantage of the day and hied himself, with his family, to Schenley Park, where he found his name was legion.

The usual Sunday crowd was there, but in greater numbers. Panther Hollow and Jim McKnight's "zoo" were the centers of attraction for those on foot, while the owners of conveyances sped their horses along the new 60-foot drives being constructed, and took in the different views from the tops of the hills. The Squirrel Hill Electric road was also a subject for comment among those who are compelled to walk to the park, and many were the inquiries propounded about its completion. One noticeable feature of the crowds that flock to the park on Sundays is the family gatherings. While the old folks sit around and lounge on the grass the children romp and play and are not confronted with that bugaboo,

BANKERS AND BROKERS WITH HIM.

They Look Upon Reciprocity as a Common Sense Business Proposal.

James Dickson, real estate dealer and assignee of the Penn Bank, said: "I am in favor of Blaine's reciprocity views, and I cannot see why any one having the good of the people generally at heart can object to them. As a plain business proposition it strikes me that Mr. Blaine is about as near right as it is possible to get on the question."

N. S. Sloan, oil broker said: "It is a move in the right direction. The country must get rid of some of its taxes. Business must not be hampered any more than is actually necessary, and producers must have a market for their surplus. I am not in favor of the entire abolition of our tariff, but am not in favor of one that enables manufacturers to compel us to pay more for their products than what they sell them for in foreign countries. We certainly ought to have home-made goods as cheap as our makers sell them across the ocean after paying freight and insurance on them. I do not want a tariff that accumulates a great surplus in Washington or a revenue that induces jobbery to keep a surplus out of the United States Treasury.

James Biggert, insurance man, said: Blaine is all right. The country must come to it anyhow and it is time steps in that direction were taken. It is not too soon to begin to get ready for it.

Thomas D. Hodkinson was enthusiastic over the proposition and said that if Cleveland had had sense enough to take such a stand his proposition might have carried the country with him. A Democrat present replied that it was Cleveland's doctrine, and the discussion then took a turn which might not be edifying in every respect if reproduced here. It was caustic.

A ROPE AROUND ITS NECK.

Another Infant Strangled to Death and Thrown Into the River.

The body of a 2-days'-old male infant was found in the Ohio river, near the Ohio Railroad connecting bridge, yesterday morning. It had a rope around its neck, and had evidently been strangled to death. About 8 o'clock John A. Park, residing near Nimick station, on the Panhandle Railroad, was out rowing in a skiff, and while paddling around discovered the body floating in the water. He took it in his skiff and notified Coroner McDowell, who had a post mortem examination made by Dr. J. Guy McCandless. The body also had a bandage around it, and had evidently been placed in the water on Friday. The rope around its neck was an ordinary clothes line, three or four feet long, and was drawn tight.

Coroner McDowell will make a thorough investigation of the case, which is similar to the one at Bellevue landing at Elizabeth about a year ago. In the latter case the child had been placed in the water with a large stone tied to the other end of the rope. The mother of the infant was convicted, and is now doing a seven-year term in the penitentiary for her crime. The Coroner expects to find the mother of the infant found yesterday, and she will probably also go to the penitentiary.

THE EVERETT PIANO

At the Exposition.

One of the most attractive displays at the Exposition is located at the lower end of the main building, where the Everett pianos, in a great variety of styles and fancy woods, are displayed. The stand is handsomely decorated with plants and evergreens, and some of the most beautiful pianos ever shown in this city make up the display. It is a revelation to lovers of the beautiful in art. These magnificent instruments, some in rosewood, in mahogony, fancy walnut, antique oak and ebony cases in richly carved designs. It is worth the price of admission to see these pianos and listen to the rich musical quality of tone produced by them. The exhibit is in charge of Prof. W. S. Weeden, and visitors will receive a cordial welcome and find a delightful place to rest a few moments.

The Everett Club piano this week goes to little Harry Markley, 112 Pennsylvania avenue, Allegheny, on payments of $1 per week. The list for second club is almost complete. Persons desiring information should apply to the manager, Alex. Ross, 137 Federal street, Allegheny, or W. S. Weeden, at the Exposition. MW
