A Curious Case.—A barber named Win. Brewster, doing business at Chatham, Ontario, about six weeks since was called to shave a man whose death was occasioned by lung fever; the instrument used was afterwards laid by to be used no more as a razor. But, being one morning without a knife, and desirous to sharpen a pencil, Brewster used the razor for the purpose, and in so doing cut a slight gash in the left fore-finger. In an hour or two the finger commenced itching and continued to grow worse, until the hand and arm were fearfully swollen, and the flesh in spots assumed a mottled appearance. Having doctored for four weeks without success among the skilled physicians at Chatham, Brewster came to this city to seek relief at the St. Mary's hospital. He had lost the entire use of the arm, and it had swollen to four times its natural size and the flesh emitting a bad odor.—Detroit Free Press.

An attempt is making in Bourbon county, Ky. to raise a fund for the purchase of a home for Jefferson Davis in that, his native State. A gentleman of Louisville has offered to give $50,000 or more shall be subscribed to the fund, to give a splendid building site for a house, with ten acres attached, within four miles of Louisville.

MATRIMONY.—It is reported that the new French cable is "copied" again, and has already had several buyers.

A colored preacher in Georgia can be heard two miles when he gets warmed up to his work.
