THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK says: "The majority of Hair Washes, Hair Dyes, Hair Stains, Hair Oils, and the numberless preparations which are now before the public under such extravagant, hyperbolical and fantastic titles as we see paraded in show windows, newspaper headings, as hair preparations, are all humbugs of the first water, their real merit, when they possess any, is, that they do no harm. BOOTS'S LIBRON, WHALE OIL, LARD OIL, SWEET OIL, scented and colored, make up, when in beautiful wrappers and white flint glass bottles, the comfort characteristic of humbug and when thus costly, are baptized with some triple-lake name, and caught at by credulous young and old of both sexes. Such is not the character of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative. This gentleman comes before the world without any "high falutin" Alephbetum, or any other astounding and startling catchpenny terms to simply advertise a Hair Restorative—what it expresses precisely—and as a Restorative it acts. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and as you value your scalp, eye, your very brains, apply nothing else; for it may be that you will get some worse substitute, when purchased land old on your conscience. Remember, Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant."

It Will, by Nature's own Process, Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color, Will make Hair Grow on Bald Heads, Will restore the Natural Secretions, Will remove at once all itching, Will remove all dandruff, Will cure all eruptions—even Scald Head, Will make the Hair Soft and Glossy, Will make the old gray headed look young, Will preserve the Color of Hair to old age, Will always Restore Color and stop Hair Falling, And is one of the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.

Pittsburgh Gazette, PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY S. RIDDLE & CO., FIFTH STREET, ABOVE SMITHFIELD. PITTSBURGH, THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 14.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 13, 1861.

This morning Judge Grier visited the War Department, and administered the oath of office to the new Secretary, Hon. Simon Cameron, in the presence of a large number of the clerks and other officials. Mr. Holt, after introducing his subordinates to his successor, retired, wishing great success and prosperity to General Cameron. Justice Grier and General Cameron are about the same age. They were boys together in Northumberland county, many years ago, and they started into the one as a school teacher and the other into a printer. During all the interval between youth and mature age they have preserved the kindest relations. It was fitting, therefore, that the oath of office should be administered by the one to the other.

By late advices from San Antonio, Texas, we hear something of how they managed the voting there upon the Secession Ordinance. It seems the rangers, some 800 strong, whom Ben McCulloch had introduced to receive the public property, were used to overawe the Union men at San Antonio. Stores remained closed for fear of their depredations and not over one-half of the popular vote was cast. Notwithstanding all these attempts to coerce the people, they only succeeded in sustaining the Secession Ordinance by eleven majority in the town named, showing that among the people of Western Texas the Union sentiment is all powerful in reality. The Alamo Express, comes in as cheering manfully for the Union, notwithstanding the attempts to coerce the editor.

Advices from Louisiana indicate a great feeling of dread of the military despotism under which they perceive to be rising into power for their oppression and humiliation. The New Orleans Picayune, you will notice, is complaining bitterly because Jefferson Davis, who assumes to rule over the "Confederate States," is an officer not elected by the people. In this it is sustained by one of its cotemporaries.

The fact that Davis is bidding high for all the military talent he can seduce from the regular army is very apparent—but his success is limited. Senator Mason's exertions to obtain Col. Cooper's resignation were prompted by the expectation that his resignation would have great effect in demoralizing the army.

The recent resignation of Capt. Withers, of the U. S. Army, was not prompted by sympathy with secession, for he is an earnest Union man. The Captain married a Spanish lady at San Antonio, Texas, where she has a large and valuable property managed by the political disturbances of the last few months, and as he has no gift at being able to take care of her property interests, her husband was forced to resign his commission in order that he might go to Texas for that purpose.

The Fort Sumter Question.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune says:

There is no longer any doubt that Maj. Anderson's command is to be withdrawn from Fort Sumter. Gen. Scott, decides it to be a military necessity, and his judgment determines the question, as it has done some others nearly as delicate. Conferences have been held for several days past, with Mr. Stuche, of the Coast Survey, in regard to the access to Charleston harbor; with Mr. Totten, of the Engineers, and with other distinguished officers of the different corps. After a full consultation it was agreed that the attempt to re-enforce Fort Sumter could only be made in two ways, and then with doubtful success. First, by a large naval force breaking into the harbor, through the obstructions in the channel, if possible; and second, by landing an army of over 10,000 men, and attacking the batteries in the rear, which command the entrance to the harbor. The President has no army at his disposal for this purpose. Eight companies are now stationed in this city, and seven at Fortress Monroe, none of which can be spared. The troops recently dispersed in Texas will not be available for several months, if at all, and but two hundred and fifty are reported as on the way back. The force in Utah cannot be reached immediately. Congress gave no power to call out volunteers in case of necessity, and, therefore, the President is confined to the actual and limited regular force. His hands are tied, and his resources crippled by the treacherous conspiracy of his predecessor and Cabinet. This predicament was deliberately contrived to embarrass the new Administration.

The decision to withdraw Maj. Anderson naturally excites much feeling, particularly among the Western delegations. Whether it is wise or not upon foreign considerations, which lead to the secession of a strong policy at all hazards, remains to be seen. Step it is regarded as a compulsory alternative, to which Mr. Lincoln has yielded from overwhelming necessity, and because he was powerless to carry out his own purpose.

It is supposed in some quarters that the withdrawal will operate beneficially in conciliating the South, but this opinion is not shared by reflecting observers. The Northern Democracy will, of course, assail the Administration, though Mr. Douglas has pronounced out the very policy which has been adopted by his recent speech in the Senate.

The British Consul at Charleston recently notified his Government that the obstruction in the main ship channel, which had been filled up to prevent egress of ships of war, were all removed, and vessels drawing 16 feet could easily enter. This important fact may or may not have been taken into account, in determining the feasibility of sending re-inforcements.

The forts at Key West and Torguras cannot be given up, because they may be easily reinforced, and are of national importance in military and commercial aspects. Fort Sumter involves a point of honor only.

From the Times' Washington letter we take the following:

Quite a sensation was created here this morning at the Capitol and Departments, by a report that Mr. Chase had resigned the Treasurership, on account of the determination to withdraw the troops from Fort Sumter. There is, however, no foundation for the report, except that Mr. Chase is known to be strongly opposed to that policy. His friends are assured that the Cabinet has not yet decided the point respecting the forts, and that Mr. Chase, consequently, will attend to the duties as usual.

The report of the intended withdrawal of the troops has excited consternation among the Secessionists. Wigfall, who is undoubtedly honest, however fanatical, expresses the greatest concern on the subject, and says if it is done he and his friends are all ruined.

Mason, Hunter and other secession leaders, are in a perfect agony of apprehension that the report is true. If it is done, they say there is no shadow of a chance to push secession any further, and every Northern man who favored it will be tomahawked.

Andrew Johnson freely advises a withdrawal, in the present condition of affairs. He says that as an original question he would have reinforced, without hesitation, but now the policy is not to precipitate a conflict between the sections, but to leave it to Southern men themselves to deal with the Disunionists, and to dispose of them.

While no decision has been come to on the subject, I am satisfied that the Administration will not reinforce at the terrible sacrifice of life which Gen. Scott says it would require.

Mr. Holt, in conversation, says:

"We will not question the good intentions of Mr. Hawkins, the citizen of Smith county, whose mission to the West, and representations, backed by the statements of the Brandon Republican, have given rise to the publications, and public proceedings in Illinois. But he has been the innocent (if his motives be not misunderstood by us) cause of doing his State and people a great injury in thus placing them in this attitude of starving supplicants for charity of their enemies. Under all circumstances his conduct would have been unfortunate, but it was too bad to go to the doors of the High Priest of the Black Republican party—the very home of the abolition President of an abolitionized government, seeking alms for the proud spirited people of Mississippi. We know well the people of the counties mentioned in these publications, and we know well how their spirit of independence and manhood will revolt and sicken at the humiliating attitude which they have been made to assume toward their haughty aggressors, who, under the this disguise of sympathy, mock at and rejoice over a calamity, which, thank Heaven, for the most part exists in Black Republican imagination.

Reaction at the North.

Under this caption we encounter items in northern papers of the southern journals of all kinds, quoting scattered election items to show that the public sentiment at the North is against the Republicans. Supposing this to be so, would the South return to its allegiance, submit to the lawfully organized national government and accept the conference of State Conventions and secession? If not, then no reaction at the North can be of the least consequence. If these people think that a reaction of the North means an overthrow of Republicanism, here they are wofully mistaken. They could get nothing more from a reaction here than they could from those now in power. In this crisis, conservatism has no other meaning than the preservation of order, the enforcement of the laws, and the recognition and strict observance of the national Constitution. What more could a reaction bring about? If there be anything more, it is be true that some foul scheme of separting the border free States is entertained, it is the wildest and most absurd of chimeras. The only reaction they are in favor of is for the Union against all its enemies.—North American.

THE Herald, as the recognized organ of the sporting and gambling fraternities, laments in piteous language the blighting effect of the secession movement upon the spring horse races, now close at hand. "The Southern horses," it says, "which are chiefly relied upon, will all be retained at home, and our races will be very lame affairs." It seems to us that the more respectable portion of our citizens will possibly be resigned to the temporary decadence of the turf. They will be still more content if the withdrawal of the noble Southern thoroughbreds will result in the further absence of the ignoble crew of blackleegs—from New Orleans, Natchez, Vicksburg and Mobile—who are wont to visit us during the spring races, for the double purpose of betting daily on the Union and Fashion courses, and of making desperate sums by night in the infamous gambling dens that cluster around the upper sections of Broadway.—*N. THE San Antonio (Texas) Herald, of the 23d ult., says that the following is a list of the property given up to the State by General Twiggs:

100 mules, valued at $50 each	$ 90,000
500 wagons, valued at $140 each	90,000
950 horses, valued at $150 each	142,500
500 harness, valued at $50 each	25,000
Tools, wagon materials, iron, nails, horse and mule shoes	250 000
Corn (at cost price)	7,000
Clothing	150,000
Commissary stores	75,000
Ordnance stores	400,000
Total	$1,229,500

This is exclusive of public buildings, to which the federal government has a title. Much of the property is estimated at the original cost, its value in Texas being much greater, and worth to the State at least a million and a half of dollars.

A VOICE FOR THE UNION IN NEW ORLEANS.—The New Orleans True Delta still stands firmly by the Union, and in its daily thunders forth its denunciations of the secessionists. It concludes an article denouncing Mr. Buchanan as a traitor to his country, and Senator Slidell as having clung to his "while there was an office to dispense, a job to be consummated, or a country to betray," with the following prediction:

"Our opinion is that, sooner or later, the actions of Washington
