Pittsburgh Gazette.

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY
S. RIDDLE & CO.,
FIFTH STREET, ABOVE SMITHFIELD.

PITTSBURGH:
THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 30.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT NEWS.

WASHINGTON, May 27, 1861.

The Occupied City.

All is quiet in Alexandria to-day. Nothing of interest had transpired up to sunset. The troops were in very good condition, and were meeting with no trouble.

The Alexandria Gazette suspended its publication to-day. It has not missed its daily issue for over fifty years till to-day. The proprietor of the Sentinel, an evening sheet published there, has evacuated the town, taking with him his press and materials. A few stores were open for business to day, but the same air of desolation reigned in the place as prior to its occupation by government troops.

No Virginians are allowed to enter Alexandria unless they are known to be loyal. A large number of persons were arrested to-day, charged with uttering inflammatory sentiments.

A Union flag is now floating from the staff over the Marshal House, whence Jackson's secession flag was hauled down.

The Alexandria newspapers have stopped publication. The Sentinel's last issue said: "We are able to meet our foe eye to eye, front to front, column to column, and chase them back from our soil. We shall gloriously triumph over them. We can't be conquered. Our foes may come in as a flood. They shall be broken as upon a rock."

It turns out that the intended invasion of Alexandria was not unknown beforehand to the citizens. I am informed that messengers from the Pawnee came ashore at four o'clock in the morning and demanded unconditional surrender. It is declared that Jackson knew of the movement, but refused to withdraw, and still maintained his determination to shoot any man who should assail his flag. This promotion by the Pawnee would seem to be in opposition to the idea of surprise by our troops.

There are continual reports of encounters between our pickets and rebel scouts.

Rumor predicts a speedy advance of Beauregard to retake Alexandria with an army more or less numerous.

Affairs at the South.

Some gentlemen arrived to-night from Florida. They represent the people all up in arms, well equipped, and determined to resist the Government to the last extremity.

They expected Pickens to be attacked before this time, but probably base their opinion upon statements of the secession troops, without any real reason for it. One of them, who came through Savannah, says that four steel rifled cannon from England had been landed there. He says the blockade at that port is not yet effective, and vessels pass out and into that harbor. He also represents most of the soldiers in Florida armed with guns, revolvers and bowie knives. These gentlemen are Union men who went from the North, and were compelled to leave. They experienced many indignities and much trouble.

Late from New Orleans.

I have seen, this afternoon, a gentleman direct from New Orleans, who gives a most interesting account of affairs in that city, and also on the route hence. For the first time, he says, the people of the South are convinced that the North is in earnest. A batch of New York papers were sold there about ten days ago, and the whole city rang, fairly rang, with the effect produced by the news therein contained. Up to that time it was generally believed that not only the North en masse would not respond to the call of the President, but that a party would be formed whose fundamental basis should be, Hands off down the South." Crowds of people gathered about the bulletins, where the news venders had posted the papers assigns, and so great became the tumult that the police authorities were compelled to interfere and order down the papers.

The utter stagnation in business circles causes a deep gloom to pervade whole streets, and were it not for a continuance of public meetings, at which brass bands and fiery orations cheer their spirits, there would, without doubt, be some great popular demonstration of dissatisfaction.

Virginia—The Position of Affairs.

Notwithstanding the representations of gentlemen who have travelled through the rebel States, I am confident that there are no large bodies of rebel troops in condition to resist the Federal Government. For instance, it has been daily reported that 5,000 rebels were between Alexandria and Fairfax Court-house. To-day a scouting party of twenty-five horse went out to test the truth of the statement. Our troops went to the edge of the village, without encountering any rebels. In the village they came upon the pickets of a rebel troop of cavalry, about eighty strong, that could be seen drilling in the Court-house square. The two pickets were captured by our troops and brought away, as the commanding officer of the scouting party did not think it prudent to risk an encounter with a force so much larger than his own. In this case you will see 80 stood for 8,000, and I presume this is a fair sample of the exaggerations usually indulged in by those who report the rebel gatherings.

Some fears are expressed, in certain quarters, that the Government will hesitate to go into Virginia, and the Journal of Commerce endeavors to show that thus far the Federal forces have occupied only the old District of Columbia. If the Government has confined its operations to the District, it has been because the Territory embraced the only strategic points necessary to be occupied at present. When the Government is prepared to make another advance, it will go on. As regardless of the assumed sovereignty of Virginia as it would be of the asserted sovereignty of Timbuctoo, or any other heathen oligarchy. There is to be no recognition of geographical lines, the whole country being considered as belonging to the Government. Those who hope for a vigorous prosecution of the war, need have no fears on that account.

The Troops at Harper's Ferry.

It is reliably ascertained that the troops at Harper's Ferry are decreasing in numbers, and that there is a probability of the abandonment of that point. They are certainly short of provisions, and must soon leave their present position for some place where food can be obtained.

I have information from Richmond, which is reliable, that flour is selling in that city at fifteen dollars a barrel, and bacon at twenty-five cents a pound. Vegetables are plenty, however, the supply for the New York market being turned into Richmond.

No Dilatory Policy to be Adopted.

I am at last enabled to send you a comprehensive announcement of the Government policy concerning offensive movements. It is the intention of the President to crush out this rebellion, if possible, before the 4th of July, 1861. He has determined and ordered that if it be practicable—simultaneous attacks be made upon Norfolk, Richmond, Harper's Ferry and Pensacola, and that a flotilla be sent down the Mississippi river. There is to be no trifling. Good citizens will be protected, but traitors will be hung and their property confiscated. This is as it should be, and if General Scott can get ready there will be no delay.—Cor. N. Y. Times.

Ex-Gov. Banks as Quartermaster General.

It is probable that Hon. N. P. Banks will be appointed a Major General, and be detailed to take command of the Quartermaster's Department. Secretary Cameron is anxious to secure the services of a gentleman of capacity and integrity, to take charge of this important branch of his Department. He is disgusted and worried by the importunities of the sharks and vampires, who are endeavoring to swindle the Government. If Mr. Banks will accept this duty, he will certainly be appointed. His admitted executive ability and reputation for honesty would be a guarantee to the country that the duties of the Department would be faithfully and honestly executed. It is unnecessary to say that if Mr. Banks does assume the Quartermaster's staff, he will make short work of red tape.

The Southern Mail Service.

Great consternation prevails among the contractors performing the Southern mail service, in consequence of its abrupt discontinuance by the Postmaster-General.

When the Vermont Regiment entered and took possession of Hampton, the other day, many of the citizens cautiously came out and furtively waved their handkerchiefs in token of welcome, though they were hardly sure enough of the position of affairs to express their sentiments boldly.

Clam Bake.

The Rhode Island boys are determined not to be kept out of their annual Gubernatorial clam bake—and, as was announced, they have ordered three hundred bushels of clams for the occasion. These are daily expected to arrive. They have invited the President, the Heads of the Departments, and all the newspaper men in the city, to the feast, and we are counting on a grand time.

Foreign Summary.

The Independence Belge states that France and England had agreed to propose to Austria and Turkey the following arrangement: Austria to cede Venitia to Italy, and to receive, in addition to a pecuniary indemnity of 200,000,000, a territorial compensation including Bosnia, the Herzegovina and Turkish Croatia—the Sultan, also, receiving an indemnity of 200,000,000 from Italy. The Independence adds that the British Government appeared desirous to withdraw from the arrangement.

The London Herald says that £450,000 have been offered for the Great Eastern, by a broker supposed to be acting for the United States or the French Government, but it is further reported that the Directors have declined the offer, requiring higher price. Should the Great Eastern make the passage to New York in seven days, as is expected, her present market value will be greatly enhanced.

M. Venillot has recently published a pamphlet, entitled Waterloo, which seems to have excited a considerable interest. The theory of M. Venillot's pamphlet is, that Waterloo was a victory gained by the Protestant over the Catholic nations; that Louis Napoleon's expedition to Rome was the revenge of the Catholic nations; and that at the present moment the Protestants are meditating a second and more terrible Waterloo, which shall result in the suppression of the temporal power.

A Heroine in Knoxville, Tenn.—Parson Brownlow's Daughter.

A gentleman just arrived in this city from Knoxville, Tenn., brings intelligence of affairs in that city. He informs us that 2,500 Secessionists are stationed there, for the express purpose of overawing the Union man. It is a part of their business to engage in quarrels in saloons, and in street fights, with all who are not friendly to secession. Two men were shot last week for no other offence than speaking words of loyalty to the Federal Government.

The house of the celebrated, bold-hearted and out-spoken Parson Brownlow, is the only one in Knoxville over which the Stars and Stripes are floating. A few days ago two armed Secessionists went, at 6 o'clock in the morning, to haul down the Stars and Stripes. Miss Brownlow, a brilliant young lady of twenty-three, saw them on the plaza, and stepped out and demanded their business. They replied that they had come to "take down them d—n Stars and Stripes." She instantly drew a revolver from her side, and presenting it, said, "Go and I'm good for one of you, and I think for both!"

"By the looks of that girl's eye, she'll shoot," one remarked. "I think we'd better not try it; we'd go back and get more men," said the other.

"Go and get more men," said the noble lady; "get more men, and come and take it down, if you dare!"

They returned with a company of ninety armed men, and demanded that the flag should be hauled down. But on discovering that the house was filled with gallant men, armed to the teeth, who would rather die as dearly as possible than see their country's flag dishonored, the Secessionists retired.

When our informant left Knoxville, the Stars and Stripes still floated in the breeze over Parson Brownlow's house. Long may they wave!—Chicago Trib.

From Chambersburg.

CHAMBERSBURG, May 27.—The Virginia troops opposite Williamsport, have been reduced to 400. Scarcely a night passes that heavy desertions do not occur.

A street guard is still maintained on both sides of the river.

The troops at Harper's Ferry have fallen back from the town proper, to Bolivar, a suburb.

About sixty negroes are engaged in making a road up the mountain on the Maryland side, to accelerate the passage of troops and heavy field pieces.

Ex-Gen. Frank Thomas was nominated for Congress at Frederick, Md., on Saturday, on the 20th ballot. The district is composed of Washington, Frederick and Allegheny counties. He is an unconditional Union man, and will receive nineteen-twentieths of the vote of the district.
