Agricultural.

How To Make Improvements.

In most instances good farming must be the outgrowth of long years of toil and study. It is a life work and a work well worth devoting a life time to accomplish. I often think that many a farmer is deterred from entering upon improvements from the mistaken idea that he must have the final result immediately, that is, his farm must be drained, subsoiled, cleaned, grand barns erected and blooded stock procured at once, or he has failed in attaining his object; all these require capital time and experience to do successfully. These things few young men have when they start in business. The true way, and in fact the only way, in most instances, is to do it a little at a time; drain this wet place now, with what is most convenient; clean up the weeds and brush as rapidly as possible; improve the stock by close attention in selection and breeding; increasing the crops by exercising greater care in seeding, and by better culture when growing; marking every year by some real improvement, and when a change is made for the better let it be a permanent one, which will not winter kill, as the saying is. Of course this necessitates a pre-arranged plan of action. Therefore consider first what the farm is most suitable for, taking into consideration the situation as well as the markets now, and as they probably will be in the future. Of course the habits and inclination of the owner will not be overlooked, for the farm must be the home of himself and family, and should be the happiest place to them on earth. When this is fully decided upon, let him make a beginning on something that needs it most. A series of improvements may thus be inaugurated, which will from the first yield a profitable return.

Any one can in this way accomplish wonderful results in a few years, with only his own labor and skill to begin with; because, after the first step is taken, each step prepares the way for another and higher one. The field improved this year will help improve the adjoining one next year, and so on, until what would have been utterly impossible at first, will be comparatively easy to accomplish at last. The motto for the mass of farmers is and ever must be, "Make haste slowly," but surely—each to-morrow finding them farther ahead than to-day. I am fully aware that the attention of farmers has been called to this again and again, often with good results, as the thousands of better cultivated farms all over the country can testify; but this is a subject which cannot be presented too often, or in too forcible a manner encouraged and strengthened by what has been done in the past. Let us go on, with greater enthusiasm and a more inflexible determination to succeed; for success, in greater or less measure, awaits our efforts in this direction, if we will but make the attempt. D. S. E.

MEANS FOR BLACK LEG.—The above disease is undoubtedly a blood disorgement, as a post mormem examination will convince the most skeptical. It usually attacks calves and other young cattle that are pastured on marsh grass, or fed with hay from low undrained land. It is also caused by sudden changes in the condition of stock. The premonitory symptoms are lameness and stiffness, accompanied with a dull, listless look, loss of appetite, and occasionally frothing at the mouth. The writer formerly lost many cattle with this disease, but of late years our stock rarely suffers from an attack, which we attribute to the use of preventives.

By a judicious use of grain, we try to maintain a uniform condition of flesh; we also keep a quantity of sulphur and salt mixed, in a box, to which our calves and other young cattle have free access.

It is thought by most persons that this disease is incurable; but I doubt the truth of the statement, as I know that I effected a cure in one case at least. In visiting our cattle yard one afternoon, not many winters ago, I found one of our best calves (it usually attacks the best) suffering from sickness, with every symptom of this disease. He was frothing at the mouth, with dullness of eyes, and was so lame in one of his legs that he could scarcely walk. Believing the animal to be beyond hope, merely as an experiment, I thought I would try bleeding. I cut him lengthwise of the hoof, on both sides of the split, to the very quick. On one side he bled freely, on the other none. I confidently expected to find him dead the next morning, but great was my surprise to find him still alive, and apparently much better. He was somewhat lame from the effects of the cutting, but recovered rapidly.

WINTER AND SPRING WHEAT.—The distinction between Winter and Spring wheat is a difference in the time of sowing and not in variety. Any Spring wheat can be changed into Winter, or Winter into Spring, merely by gradually changing the time in which either is sown. By gradually sowing Spring wheat earlier every season, in a few years it can be sown in the Fall and become Winter wheat. Or just before the close of winter, sow Winter wheat and let it germinate slightly; then let it freeze up till Spring, and next year it can be successfully sown in Spring. And as it is universally conceded that Winter is better than Spring wheat, it is a natural conclusion that the sooner wheat can be safely sown in the Spring the nearer will it attain to the quality of Winter wheat. The difference between red and white wheats is not in variety, but is owing chiefly to the variety of soil on which it is grown. It is said that the hard wheats are all natives of warm climates, such as Italy, Sicily and Barbary. The soft wheats are from more northern climates, such as England, Russia, Belgium, Denmark and Sweden. There is, however, one exception to the general rule, as the celebrated Polish wheat is hard, and from this reason it has been contended that it was not a native of Poland, but was introduced there from a milder climate. The English atmosphere is so humid that it is impossible to ripen any wheat hard, but in many cases it requires artificial heat to harden it before it can be ground into flour. Different soils and climates materially change the nature and variety of wheat.—Ag. Dep Report.

SHOEING HORSES FOR WINTER.—I am a new-paper correspondent, but simply a blacksmith, having followed that vocation for a livelihood for the past twelve years; consequently I have had a large experience in horse-shoeing. I will give you my mode of shoeing for winter use, having practised it for the last eight years with perfect success, and given entire satisfaction in every case. I put in a small piece of firm cast-steel, about half an inch long, in the centre of my heel calks, and make them square-pointed. Give them a cold-chisel temper, and have a calk that will last all winter without sharpening. I prefer them to the flat calk for several reasons. They prevent the foot from slipping sideways, will not ball as easily, nor as liable to injure the horse by calking; the steel being in the centre, and hardened, the iron wears away and leaves the steel sharp.—[J. M. Clark, in the American Farm Journal.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC,—
Curing Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetters, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and Purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful in cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action; and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every day complaints of every body, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens, send certificates of cures performed and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic or children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar coated they are easy to take; and being pure y vegetable they are entirely harmless.

TO THE PUBLIC!
The undersigned would most respectfully say they are now prepared in every way to attend to the
UNDERTAKING BUSINESS
In all its branches. And we trust to give satisfaction in the services of any one in that line.
Having spared no expense or trouble in procuring from the shop of J. Stolen & Son, of our place, a hearse which cannot be surpassed, if even equaled in elegance, this side of our larger cities. We have also secured the services of a most reliable, careful and gentlemanly person to attend to this branch of the business.
J. S. ALLEN, one of our firm, will be found at Furniture Store, on Bridge street, and C. M. MANVILLE, the other member of the firm, at his residence on Third street, or about the office of Dr. L. U. Beach, a very reliable and celebrated physician, whose office is on Park street, near the Elwell House.
