Agricultural.

The Right Way to Serve Canada Thistles.

That Canada thistles may be nearly or entirely exterminated in a season by repeated plowings (as stated in a late number of the Western Rural), when the work is properly done and the season is quite favorable, I know from my own experience in former years. Before the first plowing all obstructions to the plow should be removed; the plowings should be repeated through the season as often as is necessary to keep the surface soil entirely bare.

It is well understood that the roots of no tree or plant, whether annual, biennial, or perrenial, can long survive if prevented from vegetating and coming up to the light of day. Should a few puny plants appear the next year, as is sometimes the case, especially after a wet year, they should be cut off a few inches below the surface whenever they appear, until wholly destroyed. When these pests of the farm cover or are scattered over a whole field, these frequent plowings, in a busy season of the year, are a heavy tax upon the time and labor needed for other farm work. Hence, they are too often suffered to grow unmolested and to spread with fearful rapidity.

An old friend and neighbor of mine, from Seneca County, N. Y., on a recent visit here, informed me that he had, the past season, harvested a fine crop of wheat from a field that had for years been infested with Canada thistles, its late owner never having attempted their extermination.

The plowing, preparatory for a wheat-crop, was commenced after the thistles were in full blossom and completed before any plants had ripened their seeds. In turning under the thistles, the usual chain attachment to the plow was used. In parts of the field where their ranker growth prevented their being completely buried by the plow, they were cut down and then raked into the furrows as the plowing progressed.

The cultivation of this field after harvest was the usual fallow cultivation with the cultivator and drag. After harvest the field was again plowed and fitted for wheat. When the crop was harvested, only a few puny scattering thistles could be seen. This field was thickly seeded to clover, to be mown the next year before the time for the thistles to ripen their seeds, should there be any surviving plants.

The roots of the thistle being in a measure exhausted at this period of their growth, when the plants are preparing to ripen their seeds, the first plowing is doubtless much more effective in checking their growth than when the roots are in full vigor in the early spring months.

This method of exterminating thistles when whole fields are infested, is now generally practised in the neighborhood where my friend resides. Although not a common occurrence, I have known Canada thistles when cut down after the blossoms had formed to be almost entirely destroyed by a single mowing; owing in part, perhaps, to causes or conditions of the plants not as yet satisfactorily explained.

An old neighbor of mine in Western New York, a firm believer in lunar influences, upon whose farm a rank patch of Canada thistles had been almost exterminated by a single cutting, was confident that, could he recall the exact "time in the moon" when the work was done, he could, impart some valuable information on the subject of Canada thistles.—Cor. Western Rural.

ABOUT CABBAGES.—There is a great difference in the quality of cabbages. Some varieties are invariably large and coarse grained strong flavor, and more or less of a woody texture when cooked. For market purposes the large varieties are more saleable than the small, because few persons know anything about the different sorts. A cabbage is a cabbage to them, and its value is measured by its size, quality not being understood or thought of by those who depend upon the markets for a supply.

We remember when the still famous Winningstadt cabbage was introduced, and the high recommendation which accompanied it—all true, without doubt, as there was no reference to quality beyond that it would come to maturity early, and the heads were very firm and solid. This is very true, and this old favorite still holds its own for market purposes; but, in our opinion, it is far from being a first rate sort on account of the extreme firmness and compactness of the heads approaching to near a ligneous character.

The Early York and old Early Drumhead are, to our taste, far better sort for home use, and will, when well grown, answer equally well for market.

For late market sorts the Marblehead Mammoth and Late Drumhead still lead; but when one wants a good, fine-grained, sweet and rich cabbage, the mammoth sorts must be laid aside.

For cooking, the Savoy cabbages are unequaled, and there are both early and late sorts, possessing similar good qualities. They require a richer soil and better care than other varieties, and do not grow to as large size: but they make up for all this in excellence of flavor and tenderness.

For pickling, the red varieties are usually preferred; not because they are any better, but the deep, rich color adds something to the appearance of even a dish of pickled cabbage. Those of our readers who are fond of this vegetable should try the various sorts and see if we are not correct in saying that there is a great difference in the flavor of cabbages.—Rural New Yorker.

It may be set down as a fact the nearer the consumer and producer can be brought together the more prosperous both will become. The proximity of a rich agricultural district to extensive manufacturing interests invariably results to the advantage of both. The difference between the cost of transportation from a short to a long distance to market is equivalent to a high rate of interests which may just as well be paid on money uses to purchase high-priced land close to the market as to pay the transportation of crops raised on cheap lands remote from market.

"WELL, MR.——, how do you feel?" said a friend to a defeated candidate a few days after election. "Well, I suppose," he replied, "as Lazarus did." "How was that?" "Why, he told the dogs licked the crumbs off of him."

A FEMALE lecturer says the only decent thing about Adam was a rib, and that even to make something better.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC,

Curing Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetters, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and Purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they exceed all other Pills. They are safe and pleasent to take, but powerful in cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action; and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every day complaints of every body, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens, send certificates of cures performed and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable they are entirely harmless.

SUSQUEHANNA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

The Spring term of this institution will commence MONDAY, APRIL 6, 1874.

No pains will be spared to maintain the high standing of the institution, and by carefully looking to the interests of each individual student to make its work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and use every facility to make the topics interesting, and to secure the largest possible results in his department.

Classes will be organized in several new studies in Science and Language. Also the classes in English will be remodeled so as to meet the wants of new students desiring to pursue those branches.

To save expense, text books, the same as in the county will be used in the English branches, with the exception of Geography.

To make the sojourn of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his house—situated but a few rods from the Institute building—for boarding purposes, where rooms furnished throughout and provided with clothes closets and other convenience will be furnished for the young ladies.

The best rooms in the Institute will be furnished and assigned to the young men; all will board at the house of the Principal. There will be a careful supervision on the part of the Principal and teachers of the manner in which students employ their time.

Price for furnished room and board, including fuel, lights, and washing not to exceed six pieces, $4 00 per week. Students will furnish their own toilet and be held accountable for the furniture in their rooms.

Those desiring to prepare themselves for the work of teaching during the following Summer, should apply to the Principal at once.

Tuition from Four to Ten Dollars per term, according to studies pursued.

FARMERS TAKE NOTICE.

The undersigned will be prepared to receive at Wysauking, Pa., good fat veal calves and lambs, between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock, p. m., on Friday, April 3d, on Friday, April 17th, and on every Friday during the months of May and June, and on the second and fourth Fridays of July and August next. On the third of April the price for good veal calves, weighing from 130 to 200 lbs, will be 5½ cents per lb. For those weighing from 100 to 130, from 4 to 5 cents per lb, according to weight and condition. After that date the highest market prices will be paid for both calves and lambs, being governed by general markets. A calf to fatten well should never be allowed to run in the field or yard, but should in all cases be closely confined in a clean dry stable, where it will not have sufficient room to run, and the cow should be driven into the stable regularly two or three times each day, and the calf allowed to suck all it desires, until it arrives to the age of from 5 to 8 weeks, when it will usually be suitable for market. Remember fed calves are not desirable for veal, and if brought here will not be bought except at low prices. Farmers that have early winter lambs to dispose of, will find it greatly to their advantage to sell them here by weight, during the months of May and June, when they are always in demand at high prices. Persons can at any time ascertain what prices will be paid for the next succeeding week, by enquiring of me at the Brick Store, where I am always found, and ever ready to buy, at highest market prices, grain, hay butter, eggs, pork, poultry, &c., and to sell goods as cheap as the cheapest.

THE MILD POWER CURES!

HUMPHREYS'

HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS

Have proved, from the most ample experience, an entire success. Simple, prompt, efficient and reliable. They are the only medicine perfectly adapted to popular use—so simple that mistakes cannot be made in using them; so harmless as to be free from danger; and so efficient as to be always reliable. They have the highest commendation from all, and will always render satisfaction.
