TO THE PUBLIC.

A HOUT four years since, I was travelling through the State of Ohio, and spending a few days in Sharon, I discovered a singular Metallic substance, and subsequently tried it, and found it to be known for years, and supposed to be of no use or value, but from its uniformity of texture and singular appearance, I was led to believe it might be made useful, but for what purpose I had not the least idea. I commenced my experiments by burning it, boiling it, and pulverizing it, and compounding it with various substances; and so strong was my confidence that there was value in it, that I gave up my entire time and means in the prosecution of those experiments; and from that time to this, I have not spared time nor expense in the prosecution of about two years. I just will convert it, by reducing it to a fine powder, and mixing it thoroughly and all the oil, and then add a little quicklime and applying this compound with a brush, that the coating in a few months would become a perfect stone or slate; and that the substance where applied was actually slate in a liquid state, and the large amount of silica, alumina, magnesia, oxyd of iron, and black carbon contained, rendered it both weather and fire-proof; as the longer exposed, the harder and more permanent it became; and the coating (after it turns to perfect slate) is of itself indestructible by fire, consequently it renders the wood covered with it from the air, and consequently it is as durable as the stone or cobblestone.

I could wood will actually char, before the slate would burn, and spread.

Based on the discovery of the greatest importance ever made, I have commenced for a patent for my invention, and
