THURSDAY MORNING—FEB. 18, 1864.

Democracy and the War.

A Democratic contemporary, in commenting upon a recent article in this paper, uses the following language:

"At the present time, the Democratic party is the genuine advocate of prosecuting the war against treason, for the restoration of our Union; Abolitionism has no such purpose."

We propose very briefly to correct this assertion, although to do so would seem to be a work of the merest supererogation, since those who assume to be par excellence the Democratic party "at the present time" have themselves disproved it by their acts. In doing so, we wish to be understood as having no reference to the patriotic men in every community who once gloried in calling themselves Democrats, and who are now standing up for the old flag and reddening its folds with their blood. Such men do not constitute the Democratic party "at the present time;" they do not vote its tickets; they are not admitted into its councils. We wish to be understood as speaking of that party as it is, not as it once was.

Is it true, then, that, bad grammar aside, "the Democratic party is the genuine advocate of prosecuting the war against treason for the restoration of our Union?" Go back with us just three years, you who have faith in the Democratic party "at the present time," and where was your party then? FLOYD, and THOMPSON, and CONS, and TOUCEY, and BLACK, all members of the Democratic Cabinet—shall we tell you of them? And imbecile JAMES BUCHANAN? Had they done their duty this war won'd never have been. Three years ago the rebellion was not fairly started; its hosts were not marshaled by thousands and tens of thousands; the capital of the nation was not beleaguered; Sumter could have been re-enforced with ease. What did JAMES BUCHANAN and his Democratic advisers do at that critical moment? They said they had no power to coerce a seceding State; that the Government was powerless to protect itself from domestic foes; that to re-enforce Sumter would be to exasperate our Southern brethren. And thus it was, to the everlasting disgrace of the American people, that the rebellion which could have been crushed like an egg-shell if a JACKSON or a BUTLER had been in the Presidential chair, was allowed to gather strength day by day until, when BUCHANAN retired to make room for an honest and a loyal man, it had grown to the proportions of a giant. This is the manner in which the Democratic party three years ago prosecuted "the war against treason!" It is the blackest page of our country's history.

And during the many dark and anxious days which have intervened between the inauguration of ABRAHAM LINCOLN and the "present time," what has been the relation of the leaders of the Democratic party to "the war against treason?" At first the overwhelming tide of national enthusiasm swept even them into the support of the Government in its efforts to preserve the Union, but when reverses came, their courage failed them utterly; their old spirit of subserviency to Southern dictation returned to them, and thenceforth they became peace men and Copperheads. VALLANDIGHAM became their high priest—VALLANDIGHAM who proclaimed on the floor of Congress that he would not vote a man nor a dollar for the prosecution of the war; the Knights of the Golden Circle extended their disloyal organization to every Northern State; Democratic editors and orators wrote and talked about the rights of traitors, soldiers were enticed to desert and then concealed, and United States officers attempting to arrest them were fired upon and murdered by Democratic rebel sympathizers; cheers for JEFF DAVIS were given at Democratic meetings; the draft was forcibly resisted, and the streets of New York made to run with the blood of United States soldiers slain by Copperhead Democrats. Nor is this the worst. The opposition of the Copperhead Democrats to a prosecution of the war notoriously encouraged the rebels to make greater efforts to protract it, and also encouraged rebel sympathizers in Europe to fit out piratical vessels to prey upon our commerce, and to run our blockade with all manner of supplies for the rebel armies. Add to these facts the uniform course of the Copperhead editors of the country in discouraging enlistments ever since the spring of 1862, and still the shameful record of the Copperhead Democracy on the question of "prosecuting the war against treason" is not half told.

And yet, in the face of the fact that the world knows this Democratic record of the last three years by heart, Democratic editors have the audacity to say that their party "is the genuine advocate of prosecuting the war against treason." They even do this before the ink is dry which announces the vote in the House on the new enrollment bill, when sixty Democratic members of that body, headed by Fernando Wood, voted to kill the only measure upon which the Administration relies to fill up the ranks of our wasted armies.

Gentlemen of the Democratic press! We do not object to your calling us "Abolitionists!" If it gratifies you to do so; we do not seriously object to your Copperheadism, because the more we see of it the greater the necessity we see for enlightening the people upon their duty to a bleeding country; but we do object most indignantly to your unmanly practice of pretending to be in favor of the war when almost every word you write has a direct tendency to bring that war to an unsuccessful and unholy issue.

Uncompleted Railroads in Pennsylvania.

The report of the Auditor General of this State upon Railroads is the most complete that has been published. The following statement has been prepared from the report, showing the undinished railroads in the State, with the number of miles necessary to be constructed before their completion:

	Miles Complete.	Miles Incomplete.
Bedford Railroad, Hopewell to Bedford	12¾	7¾
Bald Eagle Valley, Tyrone to Lockhaven	21	17
Bellefonte and Snowshoe	20½	—
Oil Creek, Corry to Franklin	27	27
Erie and Pittsburgh, Girard to New Castle	62	14¼
Hempfield, W. to Greensburg	28	44
Phila. and Balt. Cent., Phila. to Port Deposit	31	19
Millin and Centre Co., Lewistown to Milroy	—	12½
Buffalo, Bradford and Pittsburg, Buffalo to Lafayette	12	88
Lehigh and Mahanoy, E. M. Railroad to Sham. Valley Railroad	22	18
Nanticoke, Wilkesbarre to Nanticoke	6	3
Bethlehem, Bethlehem to Beth.	—	12
Reading and Columbia, Columbia to Reading	37	2
Moyamensing Valley, Mauch Chunk to Hometown	—	12
Allegheny Valley, Pittsburgh to New York line	48	128
Tyrone and Clearfield	15	16
Penn Haven and W. Haven	—	10
Pittsburgh and Connellsville	58	91
Western Pennsylvania	—	—

The majority of the above roads are being completed as fast as circumstances will permit.

GENERAL GRANT.

One week ago, in these columns, we expressed the belief that leading Democrats in and out of Congress were at work to make General GRANT their candidate for the Presidency, and added that we were not so sure as we would like to be that the leading members of our party were making the proper moves to prevent such a consummation of political rascality. Since that article was published, we have met in several of our exchanges with a denial of the General's intention to be a candidate as the nominee of any party. None of these papers, however, have questioned the main item to which we gave expression, namely, the intention of the Democracy to make the General their candidate if they could. We have now, in a Washington letter to the Cincinnati Commercial, written by a correspondent in whose statements we place great faith, the following verification of our leading assertion, coupled with an alleged positive denial by Gen. Grant that he could be used by the Woods and Coxes and Seymours who now run the Democratic "machine." We gladly place the paragraph of the Commercial's correspondent on record, and trust that it may prove to be true in every particular:

"We are enabled to state upon the very highest authority, that General Grant has within a few days, formally, peremptorily, and in most decisive terms, rejected direct offers made to him lately, by leading Democratic politicians, to secure his nomination for the Presidency by their National Convention."

Progress of the Campaign in the Southwest.

The campaign in the Southwest develops in the most auspicious manner, and some of the results which, though foreseen to be necessary consequences of the moves could yet hardly have been anticipated as likely to come so promptly, already show themselves. We yesterday indicated that the advance of Sherman's column toward Meridian as an objective, might be expected to have the effect of calling off a portion of Johnston's force from Dalton, and that the weakening of the rebel force at that point would in all likelihood be followed by the advance of the Union force from Chattanooga.

To-day we have to chronicle the fulfillment of both of these prophecies. Johnston has been detaching troops to strengthen the forces opposed to Sherman, and there are tidings that the army at Chattanooga is in motion.

Gen. Sherman, following his easterly line of advance parallel with the Southern Mississippi Railroad, has taken possession of Jackson. Jackson is the capital of the State, forty-four miles east of Vicksburg, and the point of intersection of the Southern Mississippi and the Memphis and New Orleans Railroads. It has water highway to the Gulf by Pearl River, which empties into the Rigolets. Gen. Sherman entered Jackson on the 5th inst., meeting with but slight resistance from the rebels, who fell back east of Pearl River.

In connection with the advance of Gen. Sherman's army we have to day the interesting intelligence of the setting out of another column which is destined to play an important co-operative part in the grand campaign in the Southwest. This is composed of the Fifteenth Army Corps, under command of Gen. Logan. It has advanced from Huntsville, Ala., and crossed the Tennessee river at Larkin's Ferry.

What is the purpose of this movement? The telegraphic report assigns it the object of acting in conjunction with Sherman's force. There is, however, no probability of this. Such movement of two columns separated by an interval of three hundred miles with the enemy between them, would certainly be in violation of a fundamental military maxim, and would be barely admissible on the supposition that their were no enemy to oppose it. The likelihood is, therefore, that this corps is destined for operation on Johnston's left flank, by a march due east (sixty miles) on Rome, in conjunction with a movement due south of the Army of the Cumberland, on the same point. We throw out this opinion, however, with due diffidence, as indeed becomes those who speculate beyond the range of the larger strategic movements, which are dictated by great controlling principles, and attempt to descend to manœuvres of tactics, which necessarily vary in accordance with varying circumstances.

And now with regard to the third column, the cavalry corps under Gens. Smith and Grierson. At last advices it was moving southward from Corinth, following the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. A few days' marching must bring this force in position to cover the left flank and front of Sherman's column. If successful, it will doubtless anticipate the latter force in the possession of Meridian.

A successful march on the part of Sherman to Meridian would prompt the withdrawal of the rebel force from Mobile, as, in that case, its only railroad communication would be cut in the rear. But this should be expedited by a vigorous demonstration on the part of Banks, as it is of the utmost importance to get immediate command of the two affluents of the Mobile River—the Tombigbee and the Alabama—for the purpose of throwing up supplies to Sherman.

While these movements are going on it is not to be expected that the rebels will be still. Johnston is, however, placed in the unpleasant predicament of being threatened at points which it is equally important for him to protect. If he falls back to oppose Sherman and cover Central Alabama, he uncovers Atlanta to the advance of the Union forces at Chattanooga. If, on the other hand, he falls back to cover Atlanta, Sherman's progress cannot be retarded. The only rebel force known to be in Sherman's line of advance are the two cavalry corps under Forrest and L. D. Lee, lately organized by General Bishop Polk.

The campaign in the Southwest certainly opens with movements of colossal proportions, and their progress will be watched with intense interest. The forces are so placed that encounters may be expected immediately.—New York Times.

The True Doctrine.

We are much pleased to find the following timely and sensible remarks in a late editorial of the St. Louis Democrat, B. Gratz Brown's paper, and the most "radical" newspaper in the whole West. Speaking of the Union party and its future, the writer of the article alluded to says:

"To sustain that party we believe to be a prime necessity. It has so far borne the burden of the war for the Union, and if it goes down, we shall seriously fear for the Union itself. We therefore feel like standing by that party, whoever its nominee may be, as we would stand by the flag of the country, whoever may uphold it. It is yet, too soon, in times of war and revolution like these, to tell or intelligently discuss, who the nominee of the National Union party will be. Events may so shape themselves that Mr. Lincoln will unavoidably be the man; and on the other hand he may be ruled out of the question altogether. If we were to indulge a prediction, we would say some "new man" stood the best chance of being taken up in the strife and rivalry now prevailing among prominent candidates. But whoever the man may be, what we want and what we believe a vast majority of Republicans or Unionists want, is a fair party Convention, which will not only designate the candidate, but will lay down a solid platform of principles, and pin the candidate upon it so severely, that he cannot desert it without Tylerizing himself for all time."

THE STATE JOURNAL.—We have received the first number of a new weekly paper, with this name, published at Harrisburg by D. H. B. BROWER, late of the Montour American. It is to be devoted to the support of the National and State Administrations. We hope it may prove to be a remunerative and influential colaborer in the good cause.

THE liberal party in England have subscribed £100,000 towards establishing a new paper for gratuitous circulation. The advertising is to be at half the rates charged by the Times.

Union Feeling in Louisiana.

A New Orleans correspondent of the Chicago Tribune writes as follows:

"I suppose the country is beginning to understand the fact that Louisiana will be the first reconstructed State. Arkansas and Tennessee may follow closely in her wake, but they cannot probably come up with her. This is as it should be, for I am persuaded the most thoroughly honest, zealous and loyal people south of Mason and Dixon's line are to be found among the Union men of this State. Their convictions are deeper, their purposes purer, and their understanding of facts and principles more intelligent, than I had any conception of when I came here. Elsewhere I have seen so much sham Unionism parading itself, that I have naturally looked for the same thing in Louisiana, but I have not found it. The line of demarkation between Unionists and Disunionists—between lovers of freedom and slavery propagators—is broadly and distinctly drawn. Loyalty which is based solely upon considerations of expediency and of personal interest, is not the most trustworthy kind of loyalty. Give me that mind which is based upon a love of the old flag, as the emblem of a dear and never-to-be-surrendered nationality. Give me loyalty which is a matter of sentiment, as well as a matter of deportment."

Amendments to the Constitution.

The New York Post revives the history of the different amendments which have been added to the Constitution since its formation in 1787:

Twelve amendments to the constitution already exist. By the terms of article five of the constitution, amendments may be proposed either by Congress or by a convention called on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the states; but all the amendments now existing have been proposed by Congress, and have been ratified by state legislatures, without the call of a national convention. Twelve articles of amendments were passed in Congress on the 25th of September, 1789, by the requisite two thirds vote. Ten of them were approved by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states, and became amendments of the constitution on the 15th of December, 1791—more than two years afterwards. The eleventh amendment was proposed in Congress on the 5th of March, 1794, and became a part of the constitution on the 8th of January, 1798, nearly four years afterwards. The twelfth was proposed in Congress on the 12th of December, 1803, and was adopted by the constitutional number of states in 1804.

ALL IS NOT GOLD THAT GLITTERS.—A Mr. Chase, who left Iowa some two years ago on a tour through the land of gold, has returned. He spent a month in Idaho, leaving some time in November. He gives the "other side of the story"—states that the mines of California are much richer than those of Idaho—that in the latter country they occupy a very limited space, and are poor at that. It was estimated that 30,000 men in Idaho were out of employment, and everything exorbitantly high. The climate is cold, and they have ice there in August. It is nothing uncommon to have four or five feet of snow, which lasts all through winter. Rather a discouraging picture without the usual gold setting.

WHAT THE UNION SHELLS DID IN CHARLESTON.—A 200 pounder Parrott shell exploded last week in Charleston in the blacksmith's shop connected with one of the foundries, wounding six of the boys employed in the shop—one mortally, one seriously, and four slightly. The alarm bell in the steeple of the First Station part took of the general alarm on Sunday, and rang itself hoarse, cracking its throat in the attempt to call out the militia. Its tongue could hardly articulate a sound yesterday, and the bell will be of little future service in ringing the hours or sounding fire "alarms." So much for over-exertion.

ENFRANCHISING THE SOLDIERS IN NEW YORK.—An Albany dispatch, dated Monday, says: The Governor to day signed the amendment to the Constitution enabling the soldiers to vote, and appointing the second Tuesday in March for submitting the question to the people.

COME AT LAST.

Constellano's Greatest Effort.

MUNRO'S (late Irwin P. Beadle's)

TEN CENT NOVEL No. 6.

THE MAN EATERS;

OR,

THE CANNIBAL QUEEN!

A story of wonderful exploits and adventures in the South Pacific. This, if anything, is superior to the Hunted Unionist. Every one should read it. Mr. Constellano writes exclusively for this series now. Read also, the

HUNTED UNIONIST;

AND

THE THACK OF FIRE.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.—In pursuance of an order granted by the Probate Court of Jefferson county, Ohio, I will offer for sale at Public Auction, on FRIDAY, the 4th day of March, A. D. 1864, at 2 o'clock p. m., upon the premises, a valuable FARM, containing 200 ACRES, more or less, in Warren township, Jefferson county, Ohio.

The above entire farm is underlaid with a fill vein of Coal, known to be of the best quality, and is supposed to be underlaid with an under vein, the same as is found at Steubenville, Ohio. The above coal is convenient of access, both by undermining and shafting, the land being within a few hundred yards of the river and adjoining the railroad depot at Portland, eight miles above Wheeling.

With the above land will be sold the one half of twenty acres of Wheat, now growing upon the land, and also the water privileges upon six acres not included in the above land.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash, one third in one, and one-third in two years, from the day of sale, with interest. The payments to be secured by mortgage upon premises sold.

Any person desiring to examine the above premises, can be shown over the same by calling upon me at Tiltonville, two miles below the premises.

THOMAS MITCHELL,
Executor of Will of Joseph Smith, dec'd.

C. G. JOHNSON, Attorney.
