NATIONAL UNION NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT:
ABRAHAM LINCOLN, of Illinois.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:
ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee.

… We have found it in our experience with the new … cylinder press … It goes, of course, … it going!—but its motions are not … harmony with our preconceived notions of what might be expected of it. We will not … the machine in the hands of our … the elephant … know what to do with it; but we will say that its proportions are so elephantine and its complications so intricate that some days must necessarily elapse before its keepers will be able to … its joints and muscles and delicate … in complete working order. Hence, … the appearance of the Gazette should not at once justify the expectations of those who have heard so much of what the new press was going to do, we beg, in behalf of the press, that the fact will be remembered that it has not yet had a fair chance. When its ways are fully found out and those who have charge of it once feel at home in its company, the new press will do its duty and the Gazette will wear a bright and cheerful face.

In this connection we take pleasure in mentioning that our press has been put up by Mr. … Craft, of St. Louis, an experienced pressman of that city. He has faithfully performed his contract with us, and is deserving of this word of commendation at parting. We also express our acknowledgments here to Mr. James Bown, machinist, of No. 136 Wood street, and his foreman, Mr. [illegible], for their valuable and prompt services in assisting Mr. Craft in the erection of our press. We also acknowledge the valuable aid rendered us by Messrs. White & Alexander, carpenters, of Marion avenue, Allegheny City.

We print the Gazette this morning one column smaller than the size it is intended to give it. The reason of this is, a vexatious disappointment in procuring paper of the proper measurement. We hope this annoyance will not last longer than a day or two.

The Terms of Peace.

The telegraph informed us during the Niagara negotiations, that the so-called Rebel Commissioners offered sundry terms of peace, and we note that the Copperhead press is ringing the changes upon this offer as if it had actually been made. But the published correspondence show that these self-constituted Commissioners offered no terms whatever. They never even hinted at what terms would satisfy them, much less indicated them. If they had, we should have known what they wanted, and how to treat their demands, but as it is we know only that two unaccredited citizens of the Confederacy represented themselves, not as being willing to offer terms of peace, but as ready to listen to whatever terms we had to offer.

But if the Copperhead papers wish to know what terms the Rebel leaders express themselves as willing to submit to, we have a declaration from an authoritative source on that point. Colonel Jaques and Mr. Gilmore, … known by his literary name, "Edmund Kirke," were recently in Richmond and had an interview with Jeff. Davis. What Jeff. Davis said on that occasion, (and certainly he has some right to speak for his own Government) is printed in a letter from Mr. Gilmore in the Boston Transcript. Mr. Gilmore writes:

"Jefferson Davis said to me last Sunday (and with all his faults I believe him a man of truth) 'This war must go on until the last of this generation falls in its tracks, and his children seize his musket and fight our battle, unless you acknowledge our right to self government. We are not fighting for slavery; we are fighting for independence, and that or extermination we will have.'"

There is something tangible in this. The South is fighting for independence, Davis says, "and that or extermination we will have." Very good; and as he cannot have independence for his humbug government, he is perfectly welcome, so far as we are concerned, to the other alternative, if he will have it, as he says.

We commend this statement of Mr. Davis to the candid consideration of the Copperhead managers. He is fighting for dominion—to build up a foreign power alongside of us, and he intends to carry on war forever until that end is attained. They have been playing into his hands a long time. Are they prepared to adopt his programme, and to clamor for peace on his terms? If so, let them say so. Let them say so at Chicago; and let them say so as to be plainly understood, and then the country will know where to find them. Mr. Davis speaks his mind plainly. Let his coadjutors do the same.

It is all folly to talk about terms of peace with the rebel leaders. It may suit the Fernando Wood stripe of politicians to say that we can make peace with them any day; but they know, as we know, that nothing short of the submission of the North to their demands will win their consent to peace. And why? Because they do not want it. Upon this point the New York Evening Post well says:

"It is not the rebel chiefs with whom peace can be made; they will not abandon the struggle so long as they can keep a force in the field, so long as they can maintain their despotic power over any corner of the South. And the reason for this is so plain that anybody but a purblind politician can see it. These chiefs and originators of the rebellion have no hope except in disunion. It is not the North they have to fear, in the case of a reconstructed Union, but the South. It would be easier, after the war, for Jeff. Davis or any of his fellows to be elected to Congress from some northern districts than from the greater part of those in the South. They have so abused, misled, deceived, robbed, oppressed and destroyed the southern people, that, however complete their forgiveness by the nation, their own States would never again tolerate their rule or trust them with power. Set the southern people free to-day, and we have not a doubt the leading rebels would be driven by them from their soil in disgrace, and with every expression of hatred and abhorrence.

"It is because Mr. Davis knows this that he is so sternly opposed to any peace which would free the South from the rule of the conspirators who seized the supreme power there—by what intrigues our readers know. And we can hope for no peace, except upon their terms, until these men are deposed from power; until the force by which they maintain themselves, and oppose alike the efforts of the Union armies and the desires of the southern people, is dispersed; until the rebel chiefs are expelled from the country."

Governor Morton, of Indiana, was in Harrisburg on Friday last, and had an interview with Gov. Curtin. On Saturday he left Harrisburg, and was accompanied as far as Huntingdon by Gov. Curtin, who goes to Bedford for a few weeks, to recruit his health.

The New Ohio Regiments.

The Adjutant General of the State of Ohio has issued an order, from which the following is an extract, relative to the organization of twenty new regiments of volunteers:

By virtue of authority from the War Department it is hereby announced that twenty new regiments of infantry will be raised in this State for the term of one, two or three years, as the recruits may elect. Recruits in these organizations will be entitled to the bounties provided by the late act of Congress, that is to say: For one year, $100; for two years, $200; and for three years, $300, payable in three equal instalments, the first instalment to be paid on the day of muster.

One regiment will be assigned to each Congressional District, and located among the counties composing the district, in proportion to the population of each county. One Lieutenant for each company will be appointed at the commencement of the organization, and will be immediately mustered into the United States service. On the completion of the companies the additional officers will be commissioned and mustered.

These regiments must be completed before the 5th of September, and mustered into the United States service by that day, … they may be credited on the quota of the State under the call of July 18. … incomplete companies on the 5th of September will be consolidated with other detachments, … the officers … them will be assigned … in the consolidated organization as the number of men recruited by them will entitle them to. The Military Committees of counties will please recommend recruiting officers immediately, and have their report here in person, to receive their commissions and instructions, and be mustered into service. It is suggested that selections for these positions be made, as far as practicable, from the officers and soldiers who have served faithfully in the field and been honorably discharged. The field officers will in all cases be selected from veteran officers of known skill and experience in the field, and who shall prove active in recruiting these regiments.

The Moral Effect of the Call for Volunteers.

The New York Times of last Saturday thus discourses upon the moral effect upon the Rebels of the President's last call for troops:

The fact is notorious that the Southern people have for months been told by the newspaper organs of the Jeff. Davis government, that the battles of this summer would close the war. It has been necessary for them to repeat this language in order to reconcile their people to the universal conscription. The representation has been based upon a calculation that the North had become tired of the war, and would refuse to give more troops to maintain it. The Southern people have believed this, and have not grudged the utmost effort and the extremest sacrifice, to insure that the triumph of this decisive summer should be theirs, and not ours. When it shall have been seen that the campaigns of the summer have ended more in our favor than in theirs, and that the Northern people have put upon foot hundreds of thousands of fresh troops for the next year's work, they cannot help experiencing disappointment and discouragement. It is not in the nature of any people to keep up heart on the failure of expectations which have stimulated extreme efforts. It would not be safe to say that this discouragement will certainly cause the Southern people to give up the war, but it is safe to say that it will have that tendency. Everything that goes to make fighting hopeless, goes to make peace more desired. No people ever maintained a war for any period in the face of certain ultimate defeat. Individuals may literally fight to the death in sheer desperation, but masses never do. Just as there has been no instance in this war where a body of rebel soldiers have accepted death sooner than make surrender—just as even the crew of desperadoes on the Alabama hoisted the white flag so soon as they saw the ship doomed—so will the masses of the Southern rebels show a disposition to return to the old flag the very day they become convinced that it must conquer.

The Newark Arrest.

It is known that General Dix has ordered the arrest of Mr. Fuller, the editor of the Newark Journal, for language published in that paper in regard to the draft. The language was as follows:

"It will be seen that Mr. Lincoln has called for another half a million of men. Those who desire to be butchered will please step forward at once. All others will stay at home and defy Old Abe and his minions to drag them from their families. We hope that the people of New Jersey will at once put their feet down and insist that not a man shall be forced out of the State to engage in the abolition butchery, and swear to die at their own doors rather than to march one step to fulfil the dictates of that mad revolutionary fanaticism which has destroyed the best Government the world ever saw, and would now murder its remaining inhabitants to carry out a more fanatical sentiment. This has gone far enough, and must be stopped. Let the people rise as one man and demand that this wholesale murder shall cease."

This inconsiderate and foolish invective falls directly within the penalties prescribed by the act of March, 1863. Mr. Fuller has been arrested and will be tried by a jury, and if convicted sent to the penitentiary or fined. The proceedings against him are entirely regular, and there is not the slightest possibility of his growing to the stature of a martyr.

Atlanta.—All eyes are now turned toward Atlanta. For a time the doings of the Army of the Potomac, and even Gen. Grant, are obscured by the gallant deeds of the army under Gen. Sherman. But, gallant as have been those deeds, and important as have been the results they achieved, we are not yet, owing to the imperfect working of the telegraph lines yesterday, satisfactorily informed of the complete occupation of Atlanta by our troops. We only know that a great battle was fought on Wednesday last, and renewed on Friday, and that on both days the arms of the Republic were triumphantly victorious. But, in a day or two—perhaps before this sees the light—the confirmation of the taking of the Rebel stronghold will be flashed across the wires, and then one of the two keys to the Southern Confederacy will be in the hands of those who ought to hold it.

The Round Table has given up the ghost. Reason: want of patronage and high prices of everything. This will be a severe loss to the thinking public. That paper was by far the ablest purely literary journal ever published in this country. We mourn its death as that of an old friend.—Alb. Eve. Journal.

And we do not. The Round Table had ability, and was creditable as a literary enterprise, but it prostituted itself to McClellanism, from the start, and all its literary worth could not save it from the coldness of starvation. In like manner Vanity Fair, which prospered so long as it was true to Freedom, came to grief as soon as it went over to the Conservatives, and lost its wit and patronage together. There is no need to regret the death of either. If Literature cannot be true to Freedom, it had better not exist.

The copperhead World of New York is in favor of that city sending agents to the rebel States "to recruit negroes and whites" to fill the city's quota, and it gives this reason: "We want all the men we can keep at home to supply our scant labor market, and vote the Democratic ticket next fall."

This is patriotism of the Mayor Gunther stamp. The country may call for men till it is hoarse, and the army stand in constant peril for want of them; but the Copperheads will keep all they can at home, if they can, "to vote the Democratic ticket." And yet, by and by, we will hear the old song "that the Democrats do all the fighting."

A correspondent of the Albany Argus, writing from Dixie, says the only hope the Rebels now look forward to "is the election of a Democratic President." Who doubts it?

Col. Bomford, Assistant Provost Marshal General of Pennsylvania, has been ordered to take charge of the post on Governor's Island, New York, and Captain R. J. Dodge is detailed to act as Assistant Provost Marshal General of the State.

Gleanings from our Exchanges.

The fog which has surrounded the movements of the Yeddo, one of the steamers built by the rebels at Bordeaux, and which sailed from that port four weeks ago for America, has at length been cleared up. The vessel had been ostensibly sold to a firm in Amsterdam; but as the days wore on, and no news of her arrival in that port reached us, it began to be feared that she had succeeded in eluding, after all, the vigilance of the French authorities, and that, instead of going to Amsterdam, she had simply gone somewhere upon the "neutral" coast of England, and there received an armament, perhaps taken the redoubtable Semmes himself on board, and was waiting to attack the Kearsarge when she went out of Cherbourg. All these speculations, however, are now falsified by the statement made by M. Drouyn de Lhuys to Mr. Dayton, that he had received satisfactory information that the Yeddo had been sold to the Prussian government. It is believed that the other vessels at Bordeaux are about being disposed of in the same manner.

The Wheeling Intelligencer has the following: We saw yesterday, going up toward the upper ferry, a team of four animals—a horse, a pony, a mule and a bull. The horse had the heaves, the pony was blind, the mule was lame, and the bull had no provision for fly time. In the wagon, which was an ordinary …, sat a crippled negro and a skunk. The skunk was firmly bound with a wisp of straw. The white man held the reins, the team held its own, and the nigger held the skunk.

Mr. Simpson Abernear and wife, who live near Arcanum, Ohio, have reared seven sons, and the whole number enlisted, and are now in the service of their country. Several of the sons have served out the first three years of their enlistment and have re-enlisted. The aged parents are now toiling harder to carry on their farm than they did in their younger days. This old mother follows the plow and works in the harvest field. She endures all this so that her sons may serve their country.

Who has not heard brave (and rich) women exclaim: "I wish I were a man! I'd go to the war: that I would." There is a provision now for our country women of this spirit—the "representative system." They can hire a man and send him, and thus "go to the war" to their noble heart's content. Let every woman have her man—in the army.

D. W. Voorhees, the Vallandigham of Indiana, was renominated for Congress by a Copperhead Convention at Greencastle, Ind., on Thursday, and D. R. Eckles, an avowed rebel sympathizer, was nominated for Circuit Judge.

The sufferings of the loyal people of Missouri are becoming unendurable. It is estimated that forty Union citizens have been murdered in cold blood in the counties north of the river during the last four weeks.

We learn that at least 18 regiments of the 24,000 men called out for 100 days are now ready for organization in different parts of the State. Two regiments will be ready to leave Camp Curtin to-day.

The rebels have, in the course of the year about five days of "humiliation and prayer," and three hundred and sixty of humiliation and curses.

The amount of gold in the banks and sub-treasury at New York, July 1, was $31,057,660 against $42,641,065 at the same date last year.

Gen. W. W. Irwin, Commissary General of Pennsylvania, is now acting Adjutant General of the State.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. The parties in St. Louis and Cincinnati, who have been counterfeiting the Mustang Liniment under pretence of proprietorship, have been thoroughly estopped by the Courts. To guard against further imposition, I have procured from the United States Treasury a private steel-plate revenue stamp, which is placed over the top of each bottle. Each stamp bears the fac-simile of my signature, and without which the article is a counterfeit, dangerous and worthless imitation. Examine every bottle. This Liniment has been in use and growing in favor for many years. There hardly exists a hamlet on the habitable globe that does not contain evidence of its wonderful effects.
