AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

Thrilling Adventure of a Diver who visited the Oncida-Verification of the Testimony of the Saved.

On the 24th day of February the "borrowed" steamship Aroostook, with Charles and J. S. Lougee, practical and experienced divers from San Francisco, went to where the Oneida lies in 123 feet of water. After the usual preparations had been conclueded, and, by sounding, it had been ascertained that the deck of the Oneida was 103 feet beneath the surface of the bay; after every caution had been given to eight strong sailors to keep the air-pump constantly in motion, and allow not an instant of time of stoppage to occur, as thereby depended the life of the bold diver; at. ter Charlie Lougee had been helmeted and shut from air, except that supplied through of nineteen. One of his first exploits the slender tube of coiled rubber, with a life-line around his body and leaden clogs low musician, was mortally wounded. To to his feet. with "Good-bye" and "God escape the consequences of this affair, he bless you" from all aboard, he was dropped fled to Paris. There he fell into poverty, over the side, and slowly disappeared in was robbed of everything he had, even of fire was probably from troops who had just the blue waves, while a nervous tremor shot his violin, and in his despair threw himthrough our frame as we realized the fear- self into the Scine. This attempt at suiful risk undertaken by that man who was cide was the making of him. Being fished of them. seeking for truth in over one hundred feet out of the water, his forlorn condition atof water.

pump were laboring manfully, but becomrecommenced the revolutions of the air- turous spirit. pump, the clder Lougee, with blanced face and trembling lip, gave a signal on the lifeline below. For an instant there came no responce, and the face of that brother seemed turned to marble; but then we saw two quick motions from the submarine station, and knew it was the welcome signal of "all right," and then Lougee turned "to the men at the wheel, who came so near sending both below, and simply said :-'My only brother's life depends upon your efforts in keeping that pump in motionstop at your peril." The calm face and laid down the fidele and the bow, took up pashionate eye told those men not to stop the implements, of husbandry, and bought ders from Lougee.

Meantime, while we were on the deck of that "sand-pan," counting the tedious moments which lengthenged to half an hour. Charlie Lougee was searching the Oneida at the tremendous depth mentioned. At last came the signal for "surface," and instantly the life-line was put in motion slowly came the coiling hemp and rubber on deck, and at last away in the deep blue waves, came in sight the diver shorouded and panoplied in weird garments. As he came to the surface he reached Minister DeLong a sword and lacquered box, and then was his helmet loosed, and our party crowded around to hear of the gallant ship Among our party were many of the survivors of the Oneida; among them were William Crowninshield, Captain Clark, Master Yates, and Dr. James Shuddards, who were intensely excited to learn the tidings.

Said the diver : - The water for the first seventy feet was quite clear, as the sun gave excellent light, and although my supply of air was once choked for an instant, I reached the deck of the ship just astern of the mizzen-mast, and close by the mess room hatch; the tide was ebbing quite strong, and I was complled to hold on to lines from the rigging to keep from being swept forward. I first examined the side of the ship; she was cut from the mizzen rigging (at an angle of about forty degrees,) across the whole stern of the ship, her timbers, far below the water-line, being chrushed and broken, the captain's cabin cut in two, the wheel and steering gear all carried away and, in fact, the whole side and end of the ship, stove in or cut away. The ship is heading south-west and sits upright on the bottom, and is making sand slowly. I laid down on the deck and peered over the broken end of the cabin, but did not dare trust my air-line in contact with the jagged timbers. The guns and armament, except one, are all in place aft; but I did not go forward, as I was afraid of entanglement in the rigging. Turning to Crowinshield, he said, "Your evidence, which I read, described almost exactly the injury, except that she was cut deeper then you could have known." Lougee expressed the belief that it will be impracticable to raise the ship, but that the splended battery, personal effects, etc., can be saved if the Government sees proper.

By this survey the testimony of the living is verified, and the memory of the dead without stain, for the position of the ship as found, and the position of the Oneida and Bombay, as testified to by the navigating officers, show that it was impossible for the captain of the Bombey to have ever | 2d, with his army in three lines of battle. seen the redlight of the Oneida, and that Rhodes' Division occupied the front line, the order of "Port your helm," by Captain Eyre, was wrong, and the "Starbord, harda-starbord" of Master Yates was right .-Corresponence Sacramento Bee.

Ole Bull - A Romrntic History.

In one way or another his whole life seems to have been a round of adventure and excitement. Driven by his passion for music to quit the University of Christiaza, where he was studying for the church, he began his career as an artist at the age was a duel, in which his antagonist, a feltracted the notice of a rich lady who had Away to the leeward, borne by tide and recently lost her son, and who fancied that wind, came floating bubbles to the surface she traced in the young violinist's features -life-signals from below. The men at the a resemblence of her dead child. She took him home, provided for his wants, ing fatigued, attempted to change for fresh chabled him to make a professional tour, hands, and there was a stop. "Great God! which placed him at once on the high road you will murder my brother! Quek! for to fortune. The applause of the concert three places. One of the wounds was in Heaven's sake, quick!" And as the men halls, however could not satisfy his adven-

He managed, we believe, to have a share in nearly all the European revolutions. He was badly wounded in the Paris insurcction of 1832, figured conspicously in the movements, of February, 1848, then hurried to Holland, where he had some more revolutionary experience, and went back to Paris to enjoy more still. He fought under the French in Algeria. He built a theatre at Bergan and brought out political dramas, which led to his arrest and financial ruin. Then, following an illustrious example, he again, and with Lieutenant Tanner close a great tract of land in Pennsylvaniat, for by they kept at work until stopped by or- the purpose of founding a Norwegan agricultural colony. This wast in 1852. Hundreds of his countrymen followed him into the promised land, and a little town called Oleans was soon built by their industry, but the experiment proved a disastrous failure, and the projector was ruined for a second time. Then he came to New York, took a lease of the just finished Acadamy of Music, and in two months was ruined again. His career since then has been quietor, and we trust, happier.

Sine the above was in type we have seen the following in a New York letter of Dec.

"Among the passengers of the Cunard Steamer Russia, from Liverpool, this morning is Ole Bull. On the passage, when within a few hours sail of the port, the passengers addressed him a written request to perform for them; and to this with his usual urbanity, he acceded. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to the fund for erecting a monument cammemorative of 1000th annivealary of Norwegian nationality or independence, which is to be celebrated in 1872 This monumont is to take the form of a beacon on the Norwegian coast-thus giving expression to feelings of patriotism, and conferring a benefit on commerce and navigation at the same time. It is to especially prome this enterprize that Ole Bull returns to give a series of concerts in this country."-Lycoming Standard.

THE DUTCHMAN'S CIDER .- In the small village of B-, ln the state of Pennsylvania, there lived a Dutchman who was famous for making the best eider in the neighborhood, and was equally femous for keeping it; and as yet no, person, but himself and tamily had ever been permitted to taste the good stuff. At last, one of his neighbors said he was bound to taste. Accordingly he went to the Dutchman's house, and entered into conversation with him cencerning his crops, &c., and by degrees led him to speak of his cider. He then said to him.

"I understand you make very good ci-

"Yaw, replied the Dutchman; "Hans, my poy, go bring a mug full-"

Hans soon returned with a mug briming full, and handed it to the Dutchman, who drained it to the bottom at one draught; then turning to his astonished visitor, said:

"Dere now, if you dosh not dink dat good cider, joost schmell of to mug."

Cause of Stonewall Jackson's Death.

Hunter McGuire, late Chier Surgeon of the editors of the Old Dominion.

Colston's Division the second line and Hill with a part of his division in line and a part in column, the third line During the attack and rapid pursuit of the enemy Rhodes' and Colston's divisions became commingled and moved in one confused mass. Rhodes, finding how disordered the troops were asked Jackson to send Hill forward to take the advance, and permit the first and second lines to be reformed. While this was being done Jackson, accompanied by some other officers and a courier, rode forward to reconnitre. He advanced as far as the Federal pickets, and then turned to come back to his own line, when his party, mistaken for Federal cavalry, were fired into by the Confederate line of battle The been placed in position, and who did not know Jackson and his party were in front

"I think this was the general's impression in speaking of it afterwards. Several of his party were killed and wounded by this fire, but the General escaped, and turning to his left entered the forest and continued to approach his own line. When within thirty or forty yards of it a second volley was fired, which wounded him in right hand, the others in his left arm. The ball causing the first wound lodged under the skin upon the back of his hand-It was around ball such as was used for the smooth bore Springfield muskets. The been made by the same kind of bullets. The Confederate troops who fired the volleys at the general and his escort were arm ed with smooth-bore muskets.

"I will add that General Jackson did not die from these wounds. His death was the result of pneumonia, and occurred eight | no tough meat. days after the wounds were received."

OUR PRECIOUS LUNATIC.

Mark Twain on McFarliand.

Under the heading Mark Twain reports some of the reasons which influenced the jury to acquit McFarland. 1. His great grandfather's step father was tainted with insanity, and frequently killed people who were distasteful to him Hence, insanity is hereditary in the family.

2. For nine years the prisoner at the bar did not adequately support his family. Strong circumstantial evidence of insan-

These be evidences of insanity.

4. He once took his young unmarried sister-in-law to the museum; while there Lis hereditary insanity came upon him, to such a degree that he hiscuped and staggered; and afterward, on the way home, even made love to the young girl he was protecting. These are the acts of a person not right in mind.

For a good while his sufferings were so great that he had to submit to the incouveniences of having his wife give public readings for the family support; and at times, when he handed these shameful earnins to the barkeeper, his haughty soul was torn with anguish that he could hardly stand up without leaning against something. At such times he has been known to shed tears into his sustenance until it was diluted to utter inetileiency. Inattention of this nature is not the act of a Democrat unafflicted in mind.

6. He never spared expense in making his wife happy during her occasional confinements. Her father is able to testify to this. There was always an element of unsoundness about the prisoner's generosities charmed, and had not his cries brought asthat is very suggestive at this time and be- sistance he would have fallen a victim to fore this court.

Great Snake Hunt in Ohio.

On the 10th ult., at Big Island township, Jackson's Command, writes as follows con- in Marion county, on the ferm of Alexan. cerning the death of Stonewall Jackson, to der Campbell, a great snake hunt occurred. The party was headed by Captain Jackson "General Jackson made the actack May Brady, who led his gallant compay down into the tall prarie grass, and surrounded a twenty acre lot, set fire to the outer edge of the grass at 4 o'cleck P. M. The grass burned well, the flames rolling up ten feet high, and as the fire advanced the snakes retreated to the centre, sometimes making desperate efforts to spring through the flames, but the plaze being too heavey they were instantly killed in the attempt. At 6:45 P. M. che ground was burned over, and Captain Brady went over the field of carnage and picked up the debris of the great army of snakes, and by actual count, there was found to be 13,983 snakes of all sizes. One black racer was nine feet and > four inches in circumferance! This may be considered a good day's work for this neighberhood, as the snakes had become so bad that small children were afraid to go to school, and they even attacked some adults, several having been bitten on their boots. Some imagined snakes in their boots, and it had become a common thing for fifty or a hundred snakes to chase men, women and children across this prairie. The milk snakes were constantly milking the cows, and thereby interfering with the dairy busines in that section. - Marion (Ohio) Mirror.

EMBARRASING TO THE OLD UN .- A friend was coming to New York from Boston, and just opposite to him sat a lady and her child, the latter a beautiful little girl, with wonderfully bright eyes and a sweet wirsome face-the very picture in minuture, of her mother. She attracted much attention, and won many smiles and tender glances as she moved about the seat. An elderly gentleman looked into the witching thing,s eyes, and was facinated at once. Stooping, he lovingly patted her cheek, and asked : "Won't you give me a kiss, pretty one? I like little girls." She looked at him very archly for an instant, and then propounded the rather embarising question, "Wouldn't you rather kiss mann-

SNAKE CHARMING .- Here is an item for those who are sceptical cuncerning the charming power of black snakes. The youngest son of Joseph Riden, near Kelley, was playing a short time ago, in a field near his father's house when he alarmed the neighborhood by his loud screaming. His father ran to his relief, and found him gazing steadily into the eyes of black snake without power to remove his eyes from those of the snake.
