NO ALCOHOL OR BAD WHISKY!

Induced by the sale and universal popularity of Hoofland's German Bitters, (purely vegetable) hosts of ignorant quacks and unscrupulous adventurers, have opened upon suffering humanity the flood-gates of Nostrums in the shape of poor whisky, vilely compounded with injurious drugs, and christened Tonics, Stomachics and Bitters.

Beware of the innumerable array of alcoholic preparations in plethoric bottles, and big-bellied kegs, under fine modest appellation of Bitters; which, instead of curing only aggravates diseases, and leaves the disappointed sufferers in despair.

YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU:

YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE!

DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION!

DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL!

DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS!

DO YOU WANT ENERGY!

Do you want to sleep well?

Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?

DO YOU USE

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

From J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects; I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. A gentleman indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper facts, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility, the use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for years before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.

J. NEWTON BROWN.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23, 1861.

From the Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church.

DR. JACKSON—DEAR SIR:—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with commendations of different kinds of medicine, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system, and especially Liver Complaint it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail, but usually I doubt not it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes. Yours very respectfully,

J. H. KENNARD,

Eighth below Coats street, Phila., Dec. 24th, 1861.

From the Wife of ALDERMAN WUNDER, Germantown.

GERMANTOWN, June 1, 1861.

DR. C. M. JACKSON—Sir—It gave me pleasure years ago, to give you a certificate, testifying how perfectly cured of all those diseases your medicine professes to cure, viz: Dyspepsia, Chronic and Nervous debility, disease of the Kidneys, &c. The powerful influence it exerts upon Nervous prostration is surprising. I have been consulted frequently in reference to your Bitters, and without hesitation, have recommended it for the above complaints, and in every instance it has effectually cured. Your medicine has a great reputation in Germantown, and is sold in every Drug Store, and in most of the Grocery stores here. Many one should question what I say, let them come to Germantown, and I will prove to their satisfaction, that the Bitters have cured in this vicinity more than twenty cases of the above diseases.

Respectfully,

HANNAH WUNDER,

Main street, above Rittenhouse, Germantown, Penn'a.

JUST THE THING FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Will build up the constitution, and give health and strength to an overtasked and diseased health.

THE TESTIMONY FROM THE ARMY.

PHILADELPHIA, August 12, 1862.

DR. C. M. JACKSON—Dear Sir: While in Virginia, owing to the change of water, I was taken with a severe diarrhœa, which seemed incurable, and which greatly weakened me. When we reached Martinburg, I feared I should have to leave home; but medical advice and your Bitters in the store Mr. H. H. Price, in that town, I purchased a supply, and on taking it was speedily restored to health. The diarrhœa was quickly checked, and I experienced no return of it. A number of my comrades, who suffered in the same manner and from the same cause, with whom I shared the Bitters, join me in this certificate. I expect to return to the seat of war with the Legion, and shall certainly take a supply of the Bitters in my knapsack. I would not be without it for its weight in gold, particularly on going into a Malarious region.

Yours, truly,

A. R. ALTEMUS,

Company H, Scott Legion.

PORK PACKING ITEMS.

Cincinnati.

Large sales of Mess Pork—old city packed—at $11 2. At $11 there is a strong speculative feeling for. Holders, for the greater part, stand for $11 50.

For delivery in suitable weather, Hogs appear to be quite as firm as they were before it got too warm to slaughter, though with the crowded condition of the pens and the packing houses, it is not easy to affect sales. The range of quotations is given at $3 90 to $4 40. In some instances it is thought that extra heavy would command $4 50.

Philadelphia.

Hogs were steady. The offerings and sales reached about 4,500 head, including 2,400 Illinois at $5 50@5 75 and 675 at the Avenue Yard, at from $5 50@7 00 ⅌ 100 lbs net, as in quality.

Philadelphia Cattle Market.

The arrivals of beef cattle continue large, reaching 2,100 this week, most of which were disposed of. Good Pennsylvania cattle realize fuller prices, but owing to the poor quality of which the bulk of the offerings consisted, were 50c ⅌ cwt for common to prime.

Grain in Store in Chicago and Milwaukie.

The following statement exhibits the amount of grain in store in Chicago and Milwaukie on the 9th instant:

	Wheat,	Corn,	Oats.
Chicago	634,762	706,460	442,811
Milwaukie	1,170,076
Total	2,975,128

bushels, of which, it appears above, 1,825,895 bushels are wheat. The amount of corn and oats in store at Milwaukie is trifling.

Pittsburgh.

The steamers Mariner and New York were to leave Cincinnati on Tuesday for this port.

Cincinnati.

A contract for carrying 700 tons of Government stores to Helena was awarded to the steamers Henry Frederick and Wadi on yesterday, by Captain Schmidt—the former at 55 cents and the latter at 56 cents per hundred. We understand the Government will ship 1,000 tons additional to Columbus, Memphis and Helena during the next five days. The Moderator came in from Louisville yesterday. The Ella Pabor from St. Louis also passed up for Pittsburgh. The steamer C. E. Hillman, recently seized by the U. S. Marshal for confiscation, on the charge of having been engaged in the rebel service, has been bonded out by Captain Corbett and chartered to the Memphis and St. Louis Packet Company, at the rate of $2,000 per month.

St. Louis.

The heaviest rain of the season set in on Saturday evening. When the aurora drew her curtain yesterday morning, the storm still prevailed, with thunder and lightning. It is believed the storm is wide-spread, and will raise the rivers somewhat rapidly, but that a sudden and complete freeze will immediately follow.

Nearly all the river business but that of the Government is over for the season. Plenty of boats would be ready to do general business from and to this port, but Government has monopolized everything that can float.

Capt. Bentley sold, on Friday, the John Bell to Messrs. John T. McCord and Lewis, for some $8,000.

Nearly everything else is going into the Southern trade including, we are informed, the Lacon and Lasalle, Lacoosee, Jessie Deans and Warsaw, and the two latter, laying in winter quarters at Quincy have been sent for. It seems the boats, like the Army of the Potomac, will not pass the season in winter quarters.

A dense fog laid the river and nearly all the boats from view yesterday. The gloom was deepening steadily up to the time we left the wharf. At four o'clock it was hardly possible to discover a boat without stepping on board. This fog prevented some boats from leaving, and others from getting into port. Among these are the Sunshine, which left Cairo on Friday evening, the Lasalle and Lacoon, from Illinois, and the Lacrosse, from Hannibal or Quincy, besides others.

SELECT TALE.

MARRYING A FARMER.

"And so, to-morrow you leave us? Oh! Amy, little did I think, when I saw you wedded to Henry Kingsley, Representative from ——— District, New York, that he would ever take you to such a home?"

"And why not, sister? I knew that he was a farmer, and when I promised to be his bride, I expected to be a farmer's wife. Nor would I change my lot if I could. I expect to be very happy there. All I shall miss will be the loved ones at home, and I could not expect to carry them with me to my new home."

"But just think of it, sister! You, who have been reared so tenderly, to work like aunt Rachel, perhaps. I expect, if I ever come to see you, to find you out milking the cows, or feeding the pigs; or, at least, in the kitchen, cooking for great, hungry men, who do not know jelly from custard. It is too bad!" And here Nelly broke down and sobbed outright.

Amy tried to soothe her by telling her of her kind and noble husband; and that he would not suffer her to be unhappy anywhere. But she could not be comforted; and when she met her brother-in-law at tea her eyes were red with weeping. She took, too, but little pains to conceal the fact, that she thought him a tyrant of the worst kind. He ascribed her strange mood to be grief at parting with her only sister, and, with true delicacy, made no reference to it. The next day Amy Kingsley went out from her old home to her new one, and old and tried friends to new and untried ones.

Nelly fretted herself really ill over the fancied unhappiness of her sister. And when letters came, bright, glowing letters, filled brimming full of happiness, she was still unconvinced.

"Oh! yes;" she said to her mother. "I know how it is! She is too noble to complain; and she knew I was so troubled about her."

"But," said the mother, "she sends an invitation, endorsed by her husband, to have you come and see for yourself."

"Oh! I should die in a little while; I know I should! But for poor Amy's sake I will go and stay as long as I can, if you and papa think best."

They did think best. For the sisters had never been separated before, and poor Nelly was pining sadly. The morning on which she was going her mother came in and proposed assisting her in packing her trunk.

"A trunk, mamma? A traveling bag will be all I need take. I can put one dress in that. A home dress is all I shall want." But Mrs. Conway insisted, and a trunk was nicely packed, and, in due time, accompanied its fair owner to the residence of the Hon. Henry Kingsley.

When the first warm greeting was over, Nelly looked around in mute surprise at the luxurious surroundings of her sister's home. Carpets, curtains, mirrors, paintings—and all superior to those in her father's house. And then the library!—Tiers of the choicest books, reaching from ceiling to floor, were relieved by portraits, maps and statues in every niche and corner. "But there must be a skeleton somewhere!" thought the obstinate little Nelly, as she followed her sister to her room; her own room, as Amy insisted on calling it. How sweet and pure it was, with its white and blue hangings, and blue and buff carpet, with furniture to match! And then those vases with violaets and mignionettes! Amy knew she would miss them and had placed them there herself.

"It is nice after all, Amy! and I have been silly to worry about you. But," and she looked up and down the long dusty road edged with green, and shaded with trees, "you must be lonesome! There is no house near you, and but few in sight!" And the troubled look came back to the young face.

"No, Nelly, I am not lonesome. I have all the company I wish for, especially since you have come. But come, let me assist you in laying aside this traveling dress, and show you into bath room; and then you must rest, while I go and prepare supper for those "great hungry men."

"Oh, then you have to cook for the men, just as I expected!" And the tears came into the poor tired eyes once more.

"Yes, and I eat at the same table with them, too, and I like it."

"There, did I tell you so? This comes of marrying a farmer. Poor aunt Rachel! When I used to pity her so, I did not think my sister would have to drudge in the same manner!"

"I do not need a bit of sympathy; I am just as happy as I can be. But come now, rest awhile and then dress. I want you to look your best. Did you bring that blue silk I like so well? Oh! yes, here it is.—Shall I send up Fanny to help you?"

"No, Amy, if she is your girl, and you must take her place in the kitchen."

"Now, don't fret any more, please; and in half an hour I shall send Fanny."

And Fanny came, and her nimble fingers soon convinced Nelly that it was no new employment to her. When Nelly entered the parlor she found her brother-in-law waiting to receive and welcome her; and then, turning, he introduced a brother to her, who was standing by his side. He was a fine looking man of twenty-five, perhaps, and just the one to make an impression on a loving heart like Nelly's.—The tea-bell soon rang, and Nelly, taking Mr. Kingsley's arm, went out, dreading the staring eyes of the workmen. But the little tea-table laid only for four, and fairly glistened with its snowy napkins, lucid china and shining silver.

Fanny, in a white apron, and with almost as white hands, attended the table; and Nelly gave a sight of relief as her last bugaboo vanished, and chatted like herself with her friends.

"How do you like us in our home, Nelly?" said the husband glancing at Amy.—"Do we answer your expectations as farmers?"

Nelly was sure he was quizzing her, and answered with some show of spirit: "I think it is a shame for a man of your talents, and taste, yes, and wealth, to bury himself in such a solitary place as this!—Why, I would not be compelled to pass my days here for the world."

The happy couple only laughed, and Nelly began to think she was very silly, and laughed too, and wished she had been a little less demonstrative.

After tea the husband proposed a walk in the garden; and here, as within the dwelling, the most artistic taste marked every arrangement. A perfect wildness of flowers, and yet not a thing was out of place. Nelly felt that she should never tire of its beauties; but Amy soon spoke of returning, as Nelly was quite weary. "And," she said, glancing at her husband, "I shall want her to go with me to milk the cows."

"I shall do no such thing. The horrid things, with their great sharp horns and ugly feet—I always was afraid of them at aunt Rachel's. One of them came at me once, and would have hit me, if I had not screamed loud enough to scare her away. Aunt said it was the clover blossoms I had in my hand that she wanted, and not me; but I didn't think so. At any rate, I have had a perfect antipathy to cows and clover blossoms ever since."

Henry laughed. "Well, if you are so afraid of cows, Amy need not go for them nor milk them to-night."

Nelly saw that they were laughing at her again, and, looking up, she saw a pair of magnificent eyes, beaming with mirth, fixed upon her; and her own eyes and cheeks burned until they pained her. As soon as she reached the house she hurried away to her own room to give vent to her outraged feelings. But Amy suspected her and quickly followed, to find her in tears.

"This is too bad; poor, tired Nelly! I did not dream that I was grieving you!"

"Oh! I do not mind you, Amy, nor even your husband. But that great, overgrown brother, who don't even speak to me; but, if he dared, would laugh at me all the time—I don't like him one bit!"

"Oh! don't say so, Nell. He is the kindest, best brother in the world! You must like him for our sake. And now I will tell you about our arrangements here. We have a large farm, with none of its cares; or, at least, I have none. The land is all rented to four men with families. You can see their pretty cottages from the door, all built on the farm. Half of the property belongs to Arthur; and he lives with us, as you see. We keep three servants, and they are excellent, attending to everything that servants should attend to."

"But where are those great, hungry men you spoke of?"

"Did you not see them at the table; Henry and Arthur! They are large and usually hungry."

"And the cows? Was that, too, a joke on poor me?"

"Yes, darling. I could not milk a cow any more than you could."

(Conclusion To-morrow.)

A PASTOR was making a call upon a parishioner, an old lady, who had made it a habitual rule never to speak ill of another, and had observed it so closely that she always justified those whom she heard evil spoken of. Before the old lady made her appearance in the parlor her several children were speaking of this peculiarity of their mother, and one of them playfully added: "Mother has such a habit of speaking well of everybody that I believe that if Satan himself was the subject of conversation mother would find out some virtue or good quality even in him." Of course, this remark elicited some smiling and merriment at the originality of the idea, in the midst of which the old lady entered the room, and, on being told what had just been said, she immediately and involuntarily replied: "Well, my dear children, I wish we all had Satan's industry and perseverance."

Texas not to be Conquered.

The Vicksburg Whig said that "Texas was drained of her troops till she was as helpless as a child," the Houston (Texas) Telegraph gets off the following:

Texas has undoubtedly been drained of her troops to a greater extent than any other state in the Confederacy; but still we hope we shall be able to show our brothers of the Whig that our state is not helpless, and that we shall do some responsible fighting before the abolitionists get undisputed possession of any portion of our territory, which, thus far, they have not succeeded in doing. We still dispute with them what little they claim, and they may get over a good deal of ground and not conquer much, as they will find to their cost. It would take more than fifty thousand men yet to conquer and hold Texas, helpless as she is.

Statistics of Longevity.

The author of a work on the "Curiosities of Civilization" remarks: It sounds strange to hear that the most healthy class of men are the scavengers, but such is the fact. Of the upper classes, the clergymen live the longest—the physician next—the lawyer next. The gentry may be reckoned as long-lived as the clergy; but the higher aristocracy are below the learned professions; and the members of royal houses, again, average three years less existence than even the aristocracy. Hodge, under his hedge, has a chance of thirteen years longer life than a Bourbon or Guelph, on the authority of those learned in vital statistics; so that we have contrasts to ponder on in modern times which our ancestors never preached.

A Beautiful Sentiment.

Shortly before the depature of the lamented Herber for India, he preached a sermon which contained this beautiful illustration:

"Life bears us on like a stream of a mighty river. Our boat at first glides down the narrow channel—through the playful murmurings of the little brook and the winding of its grassy borders. The trees shed their blossoms over our young heads, the flowers seem to offer themselves to the young hands; we are happy in hope, and we grasp eagerly at the beauty around us—but the stream hurries on, and still our hands are empty. Our course in youth and manhood is along a wilder and deeper flood, amid objects more striking and magnificent. We are animated at the moving pictures and enjoyments and industry passing us; we are excited at some short lived disappointment. The stream bears us on, and our joys and griefs are alike left behind us. We may be shipwrecked, but we cannot be delayed; whether rough or smooth, the river hastens to its home, till the roar of the ocean is in our ears, and the tossing of the waves is beneath our feet, and the land lessens from our eyes, and the floods are lifted up around us, and we take our leave of earth and its inhabitants, until of our future voyage there is no witness save the infinite and eternal.

TO THE PUBLIC.

ESPECIALLY the ignorant and afflicted, Modest of all denominations, treat secret and delicate disorders, self-abuse and diseases or constitutions common and incident to youths of both sexes, and adults, single or married. Because Dr. BRANDRUP publishes the fact of his doing so, the ignorant and falsely modest are deadfully shocked, and think it a great sin very immoral and for contamination and corruption among their wives, promising sons and daughters. Their family physicians should be cautious to keep them in ignorance that they do the same as Dr. BRANDRUP, (except publishing) lest a lucrative practice might be spoiled. Upon this now-called cheek. CERTIFICATES.

I THINK IT IS NOT MORE THAN justice for a person that has been sorely afflicted for years, when he has completely relieved of his sufferings, but completely relieved of his sufferings, but completely relieved of. I have been afflicted with a very malignant inflamatory Erysipelas for nearly two years. I have called on several of our regular Physicians, but all without any benefit. I called on Doctor Brandrup, some time past and have taken his medicine which, however, is all composed of herbs. I am now as well as I ever was. Any person wishing to see me will please call at THOMAS DUNLAP'S.

Refer to Mr. Clayton, Diamond Alley.

I HEREBY CERTIFY THAT I HAVE been afflicted since I was very small, of a disease called Epilepsy, or Falling Fits. I have tried the best physicians in the Old Country and in this Country, but never received any benefit. I was advised to call on Dr. Brandrup last year and have had no spells or fits since then. I therefore consider myself completely cured. For further information please call at No. 2 St. Clair street.
