Graphic Picture—A Good Work for Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Wm. P. Mitchell, Superintendent of Schools of the Pennsylvania Freedmen's Relief Association, writes from Nashville, under date of the 15th inst., as follows:

We have just received from Pittsburgh four boxes of nice second-hand clothing, with an excellent letter from J. S. Travelli. I have received thus far from our own association six bales of blankets and twenty-three boxes of shoes. From the Pittsburgh Association four boxes of clothing, and notice that $1500 worth more of new garments and shoes would be forthcoming; from Friends, of Philadelphia, (Wistar Evans,) seven boxes of clothing; and, per the same, four bales of clothing from Liverpool, England; from Cherry street Friends, Philadelphia, one box, and from Women's Aid, Philadelphia, one box.

You may recollect that I mentioned in one of my letters that "we were making arrangements for a dedication of our new school-house, at the contraband camp, in Nashville." There were to be the usual ceremonies—a poem, an address, singing by the children, &c.

The dedication was to take place as soon as the school was organized. It has taken place; not in the order we anticipated. The Divine Providence has consecrated the building, making it a "house of mercy."

The school was organized at a time when the distress among the freed-people had reached its height. So great was the destitution that it seemed almost a mockery of their suffering to invite them to attend an institution of learning. The house was filled on the first day; and on the next a nice lot of goods reached us. We continued the school, dispensing clothing when the sessions were over, for a week, when the school exercises were suspended, and the teachers devoted their time to the physical wants of the refugees. The Superintendent passed from tent to tent, ascertaining the wants of the people, and giving such as were destitute orders on the teachers for such articles of clothing as they stood most in need of. For several days the house has almost constantly been filled with the poor and the wretched.

With their orders in their hands they occupied the benches and waited to receive the warm garments. Thus the audience for the dedication gathered. They were willing that the ceremonies should be somewhat long, as there was such a nice fire, and the room was so warm. To describe such a company would be utterly impossible.

Poor cripples, women with puny infants, barefooted girls, emaciated old men, miserably wretched and motherless children. A girl of eighteen sat for two days near the fire, with a blanket over her head and shoulders. In her wretchedness, that seat by the school-room fire, the sight of the new dresses, and the faint hope of relief for even her, were rich favors. "There was a good time, and she was in it."

An aged woman, barefooted and almost naked came out of one of the tents, and seizing hold of the straps of my haversack, begged me to "take her where she could get warm." She trembled with cold. "I'm most frozen; and have four motherless children to take care of." Such was her simple complaint. To call a colored sergeant and ask him to get a cart and take her and her children to the school-house was the work of but a few minutes. When I next saw her she was sitting by the fire, with those little ones about her, part of the assembly to dedicate the building. I saw her again this morning, clothed from these precious boxes; the quivering all over, and even a smile upon her aged face. A mother of fourteen children, from all of whom she had been torn by the "traders," sat in that company.

As to the gospel part, they had been gathered from the highways and by-ways, and the house was full. Such was the audience. The services were simple, but the material for them had been contributed from all quarters. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were well represented, while from the old world, Liverpool, England, added their quota in the form of several bales of strong goods.

The ceremonies were conducted by ladies who, for the love of those to whom they ministered, had left home and friends a thousand miles behind them.

For a whole week the audiences came and went, over the same class. Hour after hour, always with care, every name being registered, the issue of clothing went on, not a person being supplied whose abode had not first been visited by the superintendent. Thus the second school-house for colored people in Tennessee was dedicated.

As we were about to leave the building at the close of the last day's exercises, we found a poor boy crouched by the stove, begging "to be allowed to stay all night." He was too ill to walk. We conveyed him to the nearest house, and he was kindly cared for. He was one of a group of nine, who occupied a poor tent. To one I had given a cordial few days before, I inquired, "Where is your tent?" I asked. The reply was startling: "Why, you gave that boy the medicine. He's dead. The rest covered up the fire from him, and he froze, and they are trying to serve me the same way." This boy was one of that company, first collected in the Keystone School, in Stevenson, last spring.

Last night he rested comfortably under the blankets, purchased with that money you raised in reviving Already the supply of blankets and clothing has reduced the rate of mortality in that camp. But the destitution is not yet over. One teacher is so reduced from excessive labor that she, too, is a sufferer. Could we ask a more impressive connexation than this?

The Pennsylvania Freedmen's Relief Association has been true to its name. A generous public and the sister associations who sided in the touching services of the past week, may rest assured that their charities are being faithfully dispensed.

The Spotted Fever.

A correspondent, writing from Canfield, Ohio, gives the following description of the symptoms attendant upon the disease known as the "spotted fever," which is now prevailing in some sections of the country. The account was published in the papers some time ago, but may be found useful at present:

The "Spotted Fever" attacks persons of all ages of life; but is chiefly prevalent among the young, from twelve to twenty-five years of age. The patients are taken down with a chill, which is generally preceded by uncomfortable feelings for a few hours. The chill is followed by an intense headache, pain in the back of the neck, passing down the spine, and fever. In about twenty-four hours an eruption in reddish spots appears beneath the skin, commencing, however, no elevation. It consists of little points of blood, varying in size from a pins head to a quarter of an inch, and sometimes larger. The eruption was found to be precisely similar to spots found in the interior of a body examined at Manayunk some days ago. If the patient is suffering from a severe attack he generally becomes delirious, and often becomes insensible. When death takes place, it occurs from twelve hours to four days. If the disease lasts for a few days the patient recovers. The treatment which has thus far been successful is this: Avoid blood-letting, put the patient on stimulants, such as brandy, wines or whisky; also give quinine freely, and apply to the back of the neck and down the limbs mustard poultices. Keep up external warmth, promote perspiration and make cooling applications to the head. Upon examination after death, it is quite evident, from the presence of the spots on the exterior, as well as on account of the dissolving condition of the blood, that it is strictly a blood disease, and ought to be treated accordingly.

Oil Struck at Cleveland.

The Cleveland Herald, of Tuesday, says: The Liverpool Company have met with great luck, having struck oil at the Deming well. Some pieces of iron that had been fast in the hole were pulled up, and the work of pumping commenced, when a large yield of heavy oil was obtained. The pump was stopped in order to adjust some defect in the machinery, but is this morning to be set at work in earnest. The new well near the old "oil spring," is gone down rapidly, and considerable oil and gas have been found. There is a great demand for Liverpool Oil Company stock this morning, and the unsold shares were nearly all taken.

THEBIBLE REVENGE.—On Sunday night, the 15th instant, the extensive grocery and provision store of John H. Fritchey, in Altoona, was entirely consumed by fire. The loss is heavy. It was the work of an incendiary, as a basket containing cotton waste, saturated with oil, was found to be burning in the cellar, the flames having been communicated to some barrels of oil. Mr. Fritchey, some few days ago, published the names of those who owed him, and it is supposed that some of these persons took this method to be revenged for his publishing their names.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Information is wanted of the whereabouts of Isaac William Gray, a boy between fourteen and fifteen years of age, with dark hair and dark complexion. Any information of his whereabouts will be thankfully received by his father, Isaac L. Gray, at Huntingdon, Pa.

A SAD SCOUT.—Mr. John Minick, of Dublin township, Huntingdon county, recently arrived at home from the army, having in charge the bodies of two of his sons, Peter and John—the former having been killed in battle, and the latter having died in hospital.

ACCIDENT.—A passenger car on the Citizens' Railway was struck by a locomotive, last evening, at the crossing on Penn street, opposite the Union depot. The car was somewhat damaged, but no one was injured.

THREE SCOUTS, Family Secrets, Lost Love, Enoch Arden, and many other new books, just received at Pitlock's, opposite the Post office.

The Duck Creek Oil Regions.

A correspondent, writing from Duck Creek, Ohio, says: "The eligible lands have been nearly all absorbed by the large number of companies formed in Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and elsewhere, and have commanded what would seem to be large prices, but which will soon be repaid, if such results follow as indications warrant parties to expect.

Of the companies formed, or in process of formation for operating along this creek, a few may be named to illustrate how wide-spread the interests have become. In addition to several Ohio companies, there are the Ohio Valley, the Acme, the Duck Creek, and the Duck Creek Valley Companies, of Pittsburgh; the Empire, the Meteor, and others, of New York; the Buckeye, the Bay State, the Great Western Oil and Land, of Boston; the New Jersey, of New Jersey; the North American, of Philadelphia; the Finley, of St. Louis, and others.

These companies are mostly of recent origin, and are more or less advanced in their operations. The success of the only two deep wells, the Finley, 697 feet deep, and the Duck Creek Company's, 500 feet deep, has instigated the sinking of many of the old shallow wells through the underlying sandstone, a process now going on. The developments thus far are such as to justify the belief that this region will prove quite as great a mine of wealth as Oil Creek has been, and that many, if not all, of these companies will reap large returns from their investments and improvements, as the percentage of wells finding oil in paying quantities here is very much greater than at Oil Creek.

Railroad Accident.

On Monday evening last, as the fast train east on the Pennsylvania Railroad was taking coal and water at Conemaugh station, quite a serious accident occurred, resulting in the injury of a brakeman named Alfred Hill, who lives near Mechanicsburg, Cumberland county. The engine was disconnected from the train, and the pusher shoved the train up against the front engine, knocking the brakeman across the track, and smashing his left leg to such a degree that amputation became necessary. The great toe of the right foot had also to be amputated. At last accounts the unfortunate man was slowly recovering from the pain and shock consequent upon the injuries received.

A young man named Henderson was slightly injured by the same accident, but is able to move around, being but slightly injured. One freight car was badly smashed.

Railroad Accident—Loss of Life.

An accident, evidently caused by the gross carelessness of the officials, occurred on the Corry and Titusville road on Thursday night last. The facts, as near as ascertained, are as follows: The regular passenger train left for Titusville some three hours behind time, and when out about twelve miles collided with the engine of a freight train. Both engines became total wrecks, and one passenger car was entirely demolished. The newsboy was instantly killed, the engineer of the passenger train badly injured, and several of the passengers severely bruised. There appears to have been criminal neglect on the part of the officials, who allowed the freight train to leave Titusville on the time of the passenger train from Corry.
