(FROM YESTERDAY'S EVENING GAZETTE.)

The Burns' Anniversary.

The one hundred and sixth anniversary of the birth of the poet Burns, was celebrated on Wednesday evening, by a grand festival at Mr. K. Blair's saloon, Federal street, Allegheny. The company was unusually select, and the whole affair was gotten up in excellent taste. There were two features which rendered this festival unlike any other which has preceded it—the entire absence of "spirits," and the presence of goodly number of ladies. The festivities began at nine o'clock, at which time the company sat down to a splendid supper. A number of Scotch dishes were introduced, among them a "Haggis," which was in great request, particularly by those to whom the dish was a novelty. Mr. Arthur Kirk, upon serving the dish, recited by request, "Burns' Address to Haggis," which was received with uproarious applause.

After the tables had been cleared, the meeting was organized by the selection of the following officers:

President—John Brown, Jr.

Vice Presidents—Messrs. Wm. Semple, Arthur Kirk, Robert Henderson, James Lockhart, James McCurdy and Duncan Dallas.

Secretaries—Messrs. A. Leggate, Wm. Hamilton and Andrew Carnegie.

The following regular toasts were then read:

1. The Day We Celebrate—the 106th Anniversary of the Birthday of Robert Burns.

This sentiment was responded to by Rev. J. B. Clark, D. D., who spoke as follows:

One hundred and six years ago, on the banks of the Doon, a man was born, whose memory will live through all the centuries of the race. He did not come into being amid the regal splendors of a palace, or to be dandled in the lap of luxury and ease. But a mud-walled cottage was his home, and the wealth to which he was heir was a mind of varied and brilliant powers. In his early years he was the son of poverty and toil. Once and again, he came under the tuition of adversity, discouraging enough to have blasted all hope in an ordinary mind. But Robert Burns was set in the decree of heaven for fame, for a high place in the affections of his countrymen and of the world! In youth, and during the greater part of his life, he was occupied with husbandry. But if he had succeeded no better as a poet than he did as a farmer, I am sure we would not be here to-night in honor of his memory. No wonder that he wrote those memorable words, "The best laid schemes of mice and men, gang aft agley." As the poetic fire quickened the activities of his mind, he cared less and less about lowing herds or the tillage of the soil. Scotland you know is famous for "bonnie Lads and Sonsie lasses." Burns, like a' the rest, was "unco" comely. The rich tones of his voice fell like sweetest music on delighted ears while the glance of his "een" made many a maiden's heart thump like the wings of a pheasant. He was alike independent and social. He was sought by the rich and the poor, and was the object of attraction in every social circle. As I ponder upon his native genius and talent, I feel regret that his education had not been more liberal. I feel like saying, O, Burns, had thy gigantic mind and generous heart come under the splendid advantages of this day, thou mightest not only have been unequalled in song, but unblemished in morals.

How wonderful his originality. There is perhaps not another poet so perfectly free from the charge of imitation. Though his themes were all familiar, yet in all his works there is scarce a line which is not his own. He did not rise to fame on the poetic crutches of others. The melody of his songs was struck from the chords of his own great heart. In his poems was reflected the light of that fire enkindled in his heart by the inspiration of the Almighty, and hence he never failed to excite the interest of all classes, whether he wrote of things national or things personal.

His social qualities were splendid. Those born above him in rank were delighted, while among the common people his wit and humor gave him the power of a charm. When he first went to Edinburg, the flattering attentions which he received from all classes would have made any man crazy except the Scotchman. Cards of invitation from fair and titled, gay and learned, flew thick and fast. But this storm of delight soon lulled into calm indifference among the titled gentry of that famous city. Critics tried to ruin him with threats at taste and style. Nobility professed to stand in holy horror, because wounded in her delicate sensibilities by the Peasant Bard. But in spite of all, his fame increased, until within the whole realm of the Scottish people, in highland and lowland, in palace and cottage, the songs of Burns became as familiar as household words. He soon stood in the esteem of the people "the Shakspeare of Scotland," and like that poet, he could, with words that cut, utter thoughts that burn.

As a writer of prose he was exceedingly natural and forcible. Many of his letters to his friends are perfect gems of thought and expression. In these, perhaps, you may see more of the real man than in his poems. Sometimes in these he talks like a christian whose mind had been bathed with the dews of the Spirit. Sometimes you would think his the voice of a regular Scotch Covenanter, in no very "cantie" strains, reproving the "bastie" practices of his countrymen. Whether he wrote to parent, brother, sister, wife, or friend, it was with elegance of phrase and often with expressions of feeling and friendship, tender as love in wooing and touching as the wail of helplessness.

In his letters as in his poems, we see his

"Strong sense, deep feeling, passions strong,
A hate of tyrant and of knave;
A love of right, a scorn of wrong,
Of coward and of slave."

But it is as the poet that his memory is cherished by his countrymen. In this character his name is engraven on every Scottish heart. His themes were always simple. One chief secret of his power was that he caught up the things with which men were familiar in every day life and moulded them into charming verse.

"There have been loftier themes than his,
And longer scrolls and louder lyres,
And lays lit up with Poesy's
Purer and holier fires.
Yet read the names that know not death;
Few nobler ones than Burns are there;
And few have won a greener wreath
Than that which binds his hair."

He wrote of meetings and partings—of joys and sorrows—of city and country—of mountains decked with God's own hand, and valleys watered with the circling stream—of big and little—of louse and calf—of lad and lass—of love and hate—of courtship and marriage—of Nannies "awa" and Jessies at "hame"—of "bonnie" Jean and "Dainty Davie"—of "twa Dogs and the Deil cam fiddlin thro the toun," and "a that and muckle mair." Such is the variety of his themes, that we may say that Burns wrote poetry not only for Scotland, but for the world. Exceptions I know may be well taken to both expression and sentiment in many pieces. But what sun is without its spots? And as we drop a tear over his moral defects and wish that such a soul as his had worn the white robes of the redeemed, still let us in charity exclaim

"A nation's glory—be the rest
Forgot—she's canonized his mind;
And it is joy to speak the best
We may of human kind."

No heart more keenly hated hollow pretense, as we see in his poem addressed to the Crown, or more thoroughly despised religious shams. In Holy Willie's Prayer he breathes his hate of piety pretended. The illustrious christian contemplated, on a certain occasion, drank more than was needful, (as Scotchmen sometimes will do,) and falling into a ditch, was found dead in the morning. Whereupon Burns wrote in the disgust of his heart, at all such saints—

"Here holy Willie's sair-worn clay,
Takes up his last abode;
His saul has ta'en some other way,
I fear the left hand road.
Stop! there he is, as sure's a gun,
Poor, silly body, see him;
Nae wonder he's as black's the grun,
Observe who's standing wi' him."

Though in his eyes there flashed a spirit high, though yet quite young, receiving the plaudits of a nation, the hand of disease marked him for death. At the age of thirty-seven, a silver chord was cut and a golden bowl was broken, which caused a kingdom to heave a sigh.

"Yes Burns, though brief the race he ran,
Though rough and dark the path he trod,
Lived, died—in form and soul a man,
The image of his God.
Praise to the man! a nation stood
Beside his coffin with wet eyes;
Her brave, her beautiful, her good,
As when a loved one dies."

But, though he sleeps with the buried gone, it seems but yesterday since he lived. His name and verse are still fresh in the Scottish memory. Where breathes the Scotchman who does not repeat his verse or sing his songs with as much impulse as if the great poet yet lived. No matter into what far off land he goes, or on what sea-girt isle he roams, you may hear him warbling "Bonny Doon" or "Auld Lang Syne." And during the century of his sleep, to the consecrated spot where sleeps his dust, or to the cottage of his birth, have gone and departed, not only those whose homes are lit by fortune's dimmer star, but mighty warriors and sober sages—the world's kings and queens and mitred priests. Yes—

"Pilgrims whose wandering feet have pressed
The Switzer's snow, the Arab's sand,
Or trod the piled leaves of the west,
My own green forest-land;
They linger by the Doon's low trees
And Pastoral Nith and wooded Ayr,
And round thy sepulchres, Dumfries!
The Poets' tomb is there.
But what to them the sculptor's art!
His funeral columns, wreaths and urns!
Wear they not graven on the heart—
The name of Robert Burns?"

His funeral columns, wreaths and urns?
Wear we not graven on our hearts
The name of Robert Burns?"

Song—"John Anderson My Joe." Mrs. Rev. T. X. Orr.

The addresses were in excellent taste, and were well received. Dr. Clark's response was highly eulogized; while that of Rev. Mr. Reid took the palm for mirth and humor.

The vocal performances by the ladies were warmly applauded, as were those of the gentlemen who participated in the singing.

After the regular toasts, a number of volunteer sentiments were offered, responses elicited, songs sung, etc., and the festival was kept in full tide until the "Wee short hour ayont the twal," when the party dispersed highly pleased with the entertainment.

The Western Pennsylvania Hospital—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the contributors to the Western Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, at Dixmont, was held on Wednesday, for the purpose of electing seven managers to serve for the ensuing year, and filling vacancies in the Board. But two changes were made, and the Board of Managers is now constituted as follows:

Life Managers, by subscriptions of $1,000 each: —Thomas Bakewell, John Graham, J. H. Shoenberger, A. Stewart, Charles Knap, Jr., John Harper, Isaac Jones, E. W. H. Schenley, John Bissell, James M'Candless, Joseph Penneck.

Managers, by Election of Contributors: Three years—J. I. Bennett, James Marshall, Wm. F. Johnston, C. Zug, W. S. Haven, John Holmes, Jas. Park, Jr. Two years—W. H. Lowrie, Calvin Adams, J. B. M'Fadden, B. P. Bakewell, F. R. Brunot, Reuben Miller, Jr., Geo. A. Berry. One Year—J. K. Moorhead, Wm. A. Herron, Wm. Wilkins, W. W. Wallace, I. M. Pennock, J. T. Kincaid, W. M. Darlington.

State Managers, by appointment of the Governor: B. L. Fahnestock, Pittsburgh; Hon. Daniel Agnew, Beaver; and Dr. Thomas McKennon, Washington.

The other officers of the Institution have been continued, and are as follows:

President—Thomas Bakewell. Vice-Presidents—John Graham, Hon. Wm. F. Johnston. Secretary—John A. Harper. Treasurer—John Harper. Assistant Treasurer—John A. Harper. Solicitor—Wm. Bakewell. Superintendent and Physician—Dr. Joseph A. Reed.

The institution, we are gratified to learn, is kept in most admirable condition; and the great object aimed at—the amelioration of the condition of the insane—is being most happily accomplished.

There are now one hundred and fifty-eight insane patients in the hospital, and nearly all the wards are occupied. Arrangements are now being made for building an extension, which will be commenced as soon as the weather permits. The contributors and managers who attended the meeting expressed themselves highly gratified at the condition of the institution, and award great praise to Dr. Reed for the admirable manner in which he has discharged the duties of Superintendent and Physician.

The old Hospital building in the Ninth ward is still in the possession of the United States as a Military Hospital, and contains some eight hundred patients.

Counterfeiters Sentenced.

John Crittenden and Edward Howard, who were convicted of passing counterfeit Treasury notes, and whose trial lasted for two days, were sentenced by his Honor, Judge McCandless, of the United States District Court, at ten o'clock to-day. They were each sentenced to pay a fine of one thousand dollars and undergo an imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for and during the term of seven years, and in all respects to be subject to the same discipline and treatment as convicts sentenced by the Courts of the State; and whilst so confined therein, shall be exclusively under the control of the officers having charge of the said penitentiary.

The prisoners, though evidently not expecting so severe a sentence, received it with apparent indifference, and seemed to be less affected than were some of those who were mere lookers-on. They both live in Potter county—one at Coudersport and the other at Hebron, and they were regarded by those familiar with their past history as old offenders. They were fully aware of the penalty for counterfeiting the national currency, and when they disregarded that knowledge they had no right to expect any leniency when once detected in their nefarious transactions. Their sentence, though severe, is generally regarded as just, and should serve as a warning to all others.

A Curious Discovery.

On Saturday last, as a couple of young men, James Hummel and Wm. Lineaweather, were out gunning in Lebanon county, they came across a depression or hole that they thought might be the harbor for a rabbit. They inserted a stick and on withdrawing it, a piece of brass clung to the snow on the stick. They examined farther and being satisfied that it contained other articles, returned to their houses with the information. Others then went to the place, and on removing a mass of brush and leaves, a most curious deposit was exposed, embracing about one hundred and fifty different articles, among which were spoons, buttons, old coins, a couple of muskets, pocket compass, &c. There seems to be no fixed theory about the matter. Some think that a murder has been committed in the vicinity, and that those articles belonged to the individual made way with. Altogether it is a very strange affair.

WHY THREAD IS DEAR.—In the good old times, before the days of prohibitory tariffs, the price of spool cotton was as low in this country as in England. "Coats'" was sold at four cents a spool. Notwithstanding the advance in cotton, the retail price in England is still two pence (2c.) a spool for the best threads, or only four cents in American coin. Making due allowance for the rise in exchange, a spool of thread would not cost us more than nine cents, if it were not for the excessive tariff. The other six cents which we pay when we give fifteen for an American thread, is the profit of our spinners, for that is the amount which the foreign maker pays in to the United States Treasury.—N. Y. Evening Post.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday morning a little boy named Charles Helpert, was seriously injured by being struck with a sled, on which a boy was coasting down James street, Allegheny. The boy was in attendance at the Third Ward schools, and at recess attempted to cross James street, when he was knocked down, his leg being fractured, besides sustaining a severe contusion on the forehead. He was picked up in an insensible condition, and carried to the residence of his parents on Third street. His injuries, although severe, are not considered dangerous.

SCHOOL AFFAIRS.—On Monday last the pupils of the highest department of the Fifth ward public schools presented to Mr. A. Burtt, the principal, as a token of their esteem, two very costly and valuable books, being finely bound and beautifully illustrated copies of "The Court of Napoleon," and the works of Ben Johnson. Miss Martha Taylor, on behalf of the donors, made a very neat and appropriate speech, which was replied to by the principal.

ENDOWMENT.—The effort to endow the Seminary of the U. P. Church is meeting with good success. Rev. J. B. Clark reports some $12,000 as having been already subscribed, which is about one-third of the required amount. In furtherance of the object contemplated, there will be a meeting of the Joint Committee at the U. P. Publication Rooms, Pittsburgh, Tuesday, January 31st, at 3 p. m. All friends are cordially invited to attend.

LADIES, if you wish to procure the most elegant Hair Restorative dressing in market, get a bottle of Hewitt's Pollytricum. Price 50 cents per bottle. For sale by Druggists generally.

ROBBERY.—A shoe store, located at the corner of Liberty and Canal streets, in the Fifth Ward, was entered last night, by means of a key, and eight or nine pairs of boots stolen.

REMARKABLE.—Not a single case was to be found in the lock-up this morning. The cold weather is having a quieting effect upon the roughs and rowdies.

IN THE CITY.—Colonel George Gallupe is now in this city, on a brief visit to his friends. He reports the "Fifth Heavy" in excellent condition

THE GREAT PURIFIER.

HEMAPANAKA.

Since the introduction of medicine, the origin of disease has perhaps been the subject of more serious and scientific consideration by the most learned of the profession than any other connected with the laws of the Great Creator; not a few have contended that all diseases have their origin in the stomach; others, the solids of the body; others again, and by far the greatest number, contend and reason that the BLOOD itself is the very fountain of life—that if it becomes impure, then disease in its worst forms—Scrofula, Cancer, Ulcers, &c., appear; and indeed, experience in treating this class of diseases by purifying the blood and thereby effecting their eradication and cure, prove this to be the correct theory: acting upon which theory, the medicine now known as HEMAPANAKA, was composed and brought into practice producing the most gratifying results.

Its use soon exercises such a mastery over SCROFULA, ULCERATIONS, PIMPLES on THE FACE, TETTER, SALT RHEUM, LIVER COMPLAINT, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, RHEUMATISM, GENERAL DEBILITY, &c., &c., &c.

as to give, from the time it is first taken, encouragement to the patient, by making both seen and felt the good it is about to accomplish. It was thought best to put it up in bottles at 50c. and $1.00 each—as many persons are disposed to try an article, but are often deterred at the expense—so the trial here can be made at a moderate outlay, and satisfy the purchaser that the article is what is claimed for it to be, viz: the greatest BLOOD PURIFIER ever brought before the people. Delicate Females will find in it the medicine they need.

That the public may form some idea of its peculiar curative merits, we subjoin a list of the principal articles of which it is composed, with a short description of the uses and adaptation of each, taken from the highest authority known to medical science.

HONDURAS SARSAPARILLA

Is used with a beneficial effect in cases of Rheumatism, Scrofulous Affections, Cutaneous Diseases and other depraved conditions of health.

DANDELION

Is tonic, diuretic, and aperient. It has a specific action upon the liver, exciting it when languid, to secretion. It has been much used in Germany in diseases of the digestive organs.

IODIDE POTASSIUM.

There are few diseases in which it has not proved beneficial; it is used in Scrofulous Affections with great benefit; it has also been used with much success in treatment for Inflammation of the Eye. It generally increases the appetite and flesh.

LAVENDER FLOWERS

Are aromatic, tonic, and highly invigorating cases of Nervous Debility.

WINTER GREEN

Is especially valuable in cases of Scrofula Rheumatism.

CHAMOMILE FLOWERS

Are advantageously used in cases of Enfeebled Digestion, but are especially applicable to cases of General Debility with weak appetite.

MEZEREON BARK.

It acts favorably as an alterative in Chronic Affections, Chronic Rheumatism and obstinate Diseases of the Skin.

The balance of the formula is withheld as a protection against fraud.
