Adventure of a "Bashful Lover."

One of the witty correspondents of the New York Spirit of the Times gives the following humorous dilemma of a certain "bashful lover:"

His name was Danphule—we used to call him 'Jack' for short. Heaven help me if he ever should see this story. I hope he don't take the 'Spirit.' Among his many misfortunes—for he was cock-eyed, red-haired, and knock-kneed—he numbered that inconvenient one of bashfulness; nevertheless he was fond of the ladies, although when in their presence he never opened his mouth if he could help it, and when he did speak he used both hands to help him to talk; in fact, he was a young man of 'great actions.' Jack, one warm day, fell in love with the sweetest, liveliest, most boyden-ish girl in the square; but how to tell his love! there was the rub. He had heard a good deal of the 'language of the eyes,' and he accordingly tried that; but whenever he looked particularly hard at the window where Miss Emily was in the habit of sitting, some person on the other side of the street would invariably bow to him, thinking he was endeavoring to catch their eye. He has despised expressive eyes ever since.

At length Jack obtained an introduction through his sister, and with her he called several times; but she was obliged to leave the city for a season, and as each interview had only increased his ardor, he finally determined upon 'doing it alone.' Long before the hour fixed upon by custom for an evening visit, he found himself arrayed in his best. Blue coat, metal buttons; black cassimere pants, (said pants being a 'leetle' tighter than the skin) and a spotless vest. The journals of the day states as an item of information that the thermometer ranged from 75 to 80 degrees. Jack swears it was a hundred! As the hour drew gradually near, Jack found his courage and perspiration oozing out together, and he almost determined to pull off and stay at home. He concluded, however, he'd take a walk past the house and see how he felt. By the time he reached the mansion, he firmly concluded not to go in; but on casting an eye towards the parlor window, and perceiving no signs of life there, he thought it probable that no one was at home;' and since he had proceeded so far, he'd proceed farther, and—leave his card. No sooner determined than concluded. In a reckless moment he pulled the bell—the darned thing needn't make such a 'cussed' noise. The door was opened as if by magic, and the servant politely asked him to walk in. 'Miss Emily was all alone in the parlor, and would be delighted to see him.'

Oh Lord, here was a fix! Go in a dark parlor with is pretty girl alone! It was too late to retreat; the girl had closed the parlor door where 'Miss Emily was sitting all alone." Being perfectly convinced that no choice was left him, into the dark room he walked, or rather slided.

All was perfect chaos to his eyes for a moment, but only for a moment, then from the deepest gloom came forth an angel voice 'bidding him welcome, and to draw near.' To obey the order was but the work of a moment, as he supposed; he dreampt of the obstacle Fate had thrown in his way. He knew full well the stream of love had many ripples, but full grown snags entered not into his calculation. Judge therefore, of his astonishment at being tripped up, almost at the fair one's feet, by a flat stool with plethoric legs, which chance or a careless servant had placed exactly on his way to happiness. Over he went, and as the tailor had not allowed for an extra tension of muscles and sinews, he not only 'procured' a tumble, but also a 'compound fracture' of the black pants aforesaid, said fracture extending all across that point which came in close contact with a chair. Having picked himself up as carefully as circumstances would allow, the smothered laugh of Miss Emily 'not setting him toward any,' he at last succeeded in reaching a chair, and drawing his coat tails forward to prevent a disagreeable exposure, sat himself down with as much grace as a bear would be expected to exhibit when requested to dance on nettles. The young lady, who was almost suffocated with laughter at the sad mishap of the bashful lover, felt truly sorry for him, and used all her powers of fascination to drive it from his mind, and eventually succeeded so far as to induce him to make a remark. And on this rock he split; for just at the moment she discovered that she had lost her handkerchief. 'What had become of it? She was sure she had it when she came in. Haven't you got it under you, Mr. Danphule?' Jack said sure that couldn't be so; but poor Jack in venturing an answer, could not possibly get along without raising his hands, and of course he must drop the coat-tail. In his anxiety to receive the missing 'viper,' he even ventured to incline his body so as to get a glance on the floor. As he did so the fracture opened, and behold there lay, so the lady supposed, her property. It was the work of an instant to seize the corner, and exclaim, 'Here it is, sir; you needn't trouble yourself. Raise a little, it's under you.' Alas! the tail was told, no escape; nothing short of a special interposition of Providence could save his shirt. But what should he do? Another and another, a stronger pull evincing on the part of the lady a praiseworthy determination to obtain the lost 'dry goods,' coupled with the request to 'Get up, sir; you're sitting on it,' determined him, and in the agony of the moment, grabbing with both hands a fast-disappearing strip of linen which encircled his neck, he exclaimed in heart broken accents, 'For God's sake, Miss Emily, leave my shirt collar!'

Our speech forms the picture by which others see the character of our mind.

OAKLEY'S

DEPURATIVE SYRUP.

THE valuable properties of Oakley's Depurative Syrup of Sarsaparilla, as a purifier of the blood, is so well known to the public generally, that it is unnecessary to occupy much space in setting forth the advantages to be derived from its use; wherever the medicine has once been introduced, it takes precedence over all others; every one that has taken it, have derived so signal beneficial results from it, that it is recommended by them with the utmost confidence. Physicians of the highest standing in the profession, prescribe it to patients under their care; containing nothing deleterious, but being composed of the most mild, yet efficacious vegetable materials, it is offered with confidence, as the cheapest and most efficient purifier of the blood now known. The use of a few bottles especially in the spring months, will be attended with a most decided improvement in the general strength of the system, eradicating any seeds of disease that may have been generated, besides giving health and vigor to the body.—For the cure of Scrofula or Kings Evil, Rheumatism, Tetter, Pimples or eruptions of the Skin, White Swelling, Fistula, Chronic Cough Asthma, &c. The numerous certificates in the possession of the subscriber and his agents, from physicians and others, are sufficient to convince the most skeptical of its superiority over all preparations of Sarsaparilla.

MR. OAKLEY:—I believe it the duty of every one to do whatever in their power lies, for the benefit of their fellow men, and having had positive proof in my own family, of the wonderful properties of your Depurative Syrup of Sarsaparilla, I most conscientiously recommend it to the afflicted. We had the misfortune to lose two of our children, by the breaking out of ulcerous sores that covered the face, head and neck, although we had some of the most scientific physicians to attend them and had tried all the known remedies, including Swain's Panacea, without avail. Another of my children was attacked in the same manner, her face and neck was completely covered; the discharge was so offensive, and the disease at such a height, that we despaired of her life. Seeing the wonderful effects of your Depurative Syrup of Sarsaparilla, we were induced to make trial of it as the last resort; it acted like a charm; the ulcers commenced healing immediately, a few bottles entirely restored her to her health, which she has enjoyed uninterruptedly ever since. As a purifier of the blood, I verily believe it has not its equal.

MR. OAKLEY:—My son Edmund Leaf, had the scrotula in the most dreadful and distressing manner for three years, during which time he was deprived of the use of his limbs, his head and neck were covered with ulcers. We tried all the different remedies, but to no effect, until recommended by Dr. Johnson of Norristown, and also Dr. Isaac Hiester, of Reading, to use your Depurative Syrup of Sarsaparilla, of which I obtained several bottles, the use of which drove the disease entirely out of his system, the sore healed up, and the child was restored to perfect health, which he has enjoyed uninterruptedly ever since, to the astonishment of many persons who seen him during his affliction. I have thought it my duty, and send you this certificate that others who have a like affliction in the family may know where to obtain so valuable a medicine. Yours truly,

AMELIA D LEAF.

MEDICAL APPROBATION

OF THE

Rose Ointment, for Tetter.

ALTHOUGH the superiority of the preparation over all others is fully established, the proprietors take pleasure in laying before the public the following certificate from a respectable physician, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Baugh, having found in this remedy that relief for a tedious and disagreeable affection which the means within the range of his profession failed to afford, has not hesitated to give it his approbation, although the prejudices and interests of that profession are opposed to secret Remedies.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19, 1836.

I was recently troubled with a tedious herpetic eruption, which covered nearly one side of my face, and extended over the ear. Mr. Vaughan, proprietor of the Rose Ointment, observing my face, insisted on my trying his preparation, of which he handed me a jar. Although in common with the members of my profession, I discountenance and disapprove of the numerous nostrums palmed upon the public by ignorant pretenders, I feel in justice bound to except the Rose Ointment from that class of medicines, and to give it my approbation, as it entirely cured the eruption, although it had resisted the usual applications. DANL BAUGH, M. D.

A PROOF OF ITS EFFICACY.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27th, 1839.

THIS is to certify that I was severely afflicted with Tetter in the hands and feet for upwards of forty years; the disease was attended generally with violent itching and swelling. I applied to a number of physicians, and used a great many applications without effecting a cure. About a year since, I applied the Rose Ointment, which entirely stopped the itching, and a few applications immediately cured the disease, which there has been no return of, although I had never been rid of it at any time for forty years.
