THE WORKING MAN.—He is the noblest man of whom our free country can boast; whether at the workshop or at the plow, you find him the same noble-hearted, free, and independent being. And if there is a man in society upon whom we look with admiration, it is the independent, sober, working man. We care not whether he be farmer, mechanic, or laborer—whether his toils are endorsed in the workshop, the field or the coal mine—whether his home is in the backwoods, or the neat cottage—our admiration is the same. What a happy picture he presents; what a reward for his labor, who, by his own unaided exertion, established for himself a respectable position in society; who, commencing in povery, by his skill and assiduity, surmounts every obstacle, overcomes every prejudice, and finally succeeds in forming a character whose value is enhanced by those who come after him. Such a man we prize as the noblest work of which nature is capable—the highest production she can boast. And let it be borne in mind by the young working man just entering upon the stage of life—let it ever lie at the foundation and be the moving spring of all his efforts—that for this situation he must strain every nerve to attain. It can be attained by all. Untiring industry and virtuous ambition never fail to have their reward. They never yet were exerted in vain, and never will be while honesty and justice find a home in the human heart.

A SEARCH FOR HAPPINESS.—A wealthy epicure applied to an Arabian doctor for a prescription that would restore the body to health and give happiness to the mind The physician advised him to exchange shirts with a man who was perfectly contented with his lot—Whereupon the patient set out upon his journey in pursuit of such a person. After many months spent without accomplishing his object, he was told of a certain cobbler of whom everybody had spoken as a model of contentment and happiness. Pursuing the direction given the traveler was at length rewarded with seeing the cobbler enjoying a comfortable nap on a board. Without ceremony he was aroused from his slumber, and the important interrogatory whether he was contented with his lot, was answered in the affirmative.

"Then," said the seeker of happiness, "I have one small boon to ask at your hands. It is that you exchange shirts with me, that by this means I may also become contented and happy."

"Most gladly would I accede to your request," replied the cobbler, "but—"

"Nay, refuse me not," interrupted the man of wealth, "for any sum that you name shall be thine."

"I seek not thy wealth," said the cobbler, "but—but—"

"But what?"

"But—the truth is—I have no shirt!"

LOVE AND FORTUNE-TELLING.—A rich old widower, in Canada, is said to have practised an artful scheme to gain the hand of the belle of the village. He got an old gipsy to tell the young lady's fortune in words which he dictated, as follows:

"My dear young lady, your star will soon be hid for a short time under a very dark cloud, but when it reappears it will continue to shine with uninterrupted splendor until the end of your days. Before one week, a wealthy old widower, wearing a suit of black, and a fine castor hat, will pay you a visit, and request your hand in marriage. You will accept his offer, become his wife, and be left a widow in possession of all his property, before the close of this year. Your next husband will be the young man of whom you think the most at present."

Three days after, the old gentleman, dressed in the manner described by the gipsy, presented himself to the young lady, and the marriage followed. The year is more than out, but the tough old widower still lingers.

HATED BOTH.—"Did you attend church to-day?" said a planter to his late slave.

"Sartin, sah," was the reply, "and what two awful big stories that preacher did tell."

"What stories were they?"

"Why he tell de people no man can serve two masters; now dis is de fust story, kase you see once I serve you, my old massa, and also young massa John.—Den de preacher says he will love de one and hate de odder, while the Lord knows how I hate you boff!"

WITMER'S BALM.
Lancaster Tp. July [illegible]
MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON: Gentlemen—The small size No. 1 Salamander Safe I purchased from your agent, Mr. [illegible] Barr, in Lancaster City, on July [illegible] has been subjected to a very severe test which it withstood in a most [illegible] manner. This Safe, containing all [illegible] together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and [illegible] and representing a value of over Twenty [illegible] and Dollars, ($20,000) was in our [illegible] was destroyed on the night of the 2[illegible] ly, 1860, and passed through the fire unscathed. The Safe was on the second story and fell to the basement of the Mill, [illegible] subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of [illegible] confined within the brick walls. When the fire the safe was opened and the [illegible] papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being [illegible]. This fact was, however, to many [illegible] a better recommendation of your Safes than could be expressed in any other way [illegible] me. Yours Respectfully,
SAMUEL [illegible]
