A NEW-VIEW OF YO SEMITE VALLEY.

What a Woman Thinks About It.

A lady contributor to the Cincinnati Gazette, who has been to Yo Semite, differs considerably from all other travelers in her estimate of it. She thinks it "does not pay" to go there:

"What do we see? Tall rocks, a few tall trees, a high and narrow waterfall, a pretty little river! No more. A lovely natural scene, I grant you; but—let where in this broad and beautiful land of ours are not lovely natural scenes the rule? Words cannot tell the sense of cold disappointment we felt—we and all our party as we looked about us. Was it for this we had so suffered! in truth, and very truth, it does not pay.

"We never rallied from that first impression.

"But that stone wall is nearly a mile high; "it may be so, but it does not look it; and if it did, the stars are higher, and, thank God, the stars shine at home!

"That waterfall is eleven times higher than Niagara!

"Indeed! it looks like a fireman's hose playing over the top of Steeple's spire.

"And then we learn to our dismay that to see anything more than this in the Valley we have got to mount the unhappy brutes again, and, with Ferguson tugging at our heels at an exorbitant price daily, make trips as dangerous and as perilous, as rocky and as unpleasant in every way as that which with so much difficulty we had just now accomplished! In the house there is neither amusement nor comfort. We are dirty, sick, sore, and miserable, and at night, as we creep heartsick to bed, we can think of nothing but—the Yo Semite Fall, the Bridal Veil, El Capitan, the Cathedral Rocks? No! Of the weary distance which lies between us and civilization.

"But we try to make the best of it, once there. "Let us be jolly, we say, like the jolly Parley of our party. 'Yes, let's all 'on 'the banks of this lovely river.' We do so. A companionable but not welcome watermelon does so also, and we leave him in possession. Try again. There is a lovely place beside Hutchings'. It looks romantic from this point. Let us get nearer. A vile stench greets us. These filthy wretches since Beady, I'm sure, yesterday, and are now eating some of its carcass. There is one of the dirty rascals, with his dark-bearded hoof still hanging to it." Its entrails and other parts are strung out in the sun to dry for future use. Ugh! the black blood drips to the ground as a dog gnaws them greedily, until driven off by an Indian woman who is unwilling to share such a luxury. It will not do to approach these people too closely; they are covered with vermin. Their copper skins are black as soot in spots; this is caked over with dirt and smoke. Blackened in the discarded tatters of civilization; and how tattered the discarded garment of the Stern Nevada mountaineer is, no one can know who has not seen. The consequence is that the sight of these people is near a pleasure resort is an offence to decency. Indian men lolling under the trees are not the finest specimens. They glare at us as we approach. It is easy to see that these people (although Ferguson assured us they were tame) would have no humanitarian scruples about waging a war of extermination against the whites if they had the power.

"While the men play cards and loll under the shade of trees, the women sit in the broiling sun and grind acorns, beating them between heavy stones into the finest powder. These acorns, ground to meal, furnish the only food these poor creatures can get during winter; and together with roots and dirty pine-possession with the dogs is the work of the Indian's existence. Thus it is one part of their work, for that all work is done by Indian women is an old and established maxim. "By another day some of us are well enough to mount again and begin our search after Beauty. We are disappointed, undoubtedly, unlimited fatigue, and the tombstone of a man who was kicked to death by Indians. Our trips are very wearying, the scenery very grand, very beautiful, but we are in no condition to enjoy it. We never get in good condition, and the universal verdict with us is that if every one of the waterfalls in Yo Semite were changed, every one of its granite domes were an Olympus, if its rivers were the Jordan, and its valley the fairy gardens of Versailles, the sight of it would not repay one for the suffering involved in getting to it. And the plain truth is that the nine out of ten who visit Yo Semite think this, and they will not say what they think. Some people, it is true, never have an opinion of their own, but parrot-like repeat the refrain which has been set them to sing. You remember in the pages of Most Glorious Twain the ugly little girl they saw in the Holy Land, and Frank Mark's astonishment at everybody's bawling out in chorus, 'What Madonna-like beauty!' He knew there was an epidemic. He always had a ready word for the keynote. It was stuck in Old Grimes's (Dead) Book on the Holy Land. So with the Yo Semite. "I felt awed!—the spirit land—losing your own identity!

"But traveled home? Dare to tell the truth, why do you not? Because you are afraid some other jeweled monkey will say you 'can't appreciate' the scenery which it makes your hand and the look of it, and your hopes are to get at. Because you are a coward, or because you know you have made an 'idiot of yourself, and throw away your money by hard, fatiguing and even dangerous journeys, and are ashamed to confess yourself so easily taken in and done for—man of the world that you are. But I am only a woman, and I confess all."

CITY BULLETIN.

—Two beetlebacks, named Jerry McNamee and James McNamee, were before Alderman Jones yesterday charged with breaking into the store of Cooper & Fry, southeast corner of Sixth and Minor streets, on Sunday morning last, and stealing therefrom postage and revenue stamps of the value of $50. Defendants, with two other boys, were seen lurking around in the neighborhood of the premises previous to the discovery of the robbery, one of them was noticed standing in the door-way, and a citizen approached he would whistle to the other boys. They were on the sidewalk of Cooper & Fry's store. The prisoners are suspected in other robberies perpetrated in the immediate neighborhood of Sixth and Chestnut streets. They were committed for trial.

—BEN. TURNER, colored, was yesterday nominated for Congress by the Radical Convention of the Fifth Alabama District. Some of the white candidates are said to be dissatisfied, and talk of holding another convention.

—The anti-Coolie League had a meeting last evening at the hall in Tilbert street, above Fifteenth, Wm. Mowbray, President, in the chair. Credentials were received from delegates of the Knights of St. Crispin, stonecutters, carpenters and joiners unions. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Trades' Union Anti-Coolie League, composed of ten delegates from each of the different Trades' Unions in the city and county of Philadelphia, irrespective of party, do hereby pledge ourselves not to give our suffrage or support, at the coming election, to any candidate for Congressional or Legislative office, who will not pledge himself to oppose in the halls of Congress the importation of Coolie laborers into the United States under the present contract system as it now exists.

Resolved, That we, as delegates, instruct our several Unions not to support any candidate for Congressional or Legislative office who is not opposed to the importation of Coolies into the United States, and who will not use every honorable means to have such laws enacted as will forever put a stop to the accursed traffic so detrimental to the interests of American mechanics and workingmen.

—The great game of Cricket between the Philadelphia and Germantown Cricket Clubs, which commenced on Saturday last, was concluded yesterday, and resulted in a victory for the former club. The game was closely contested throughout. The following was the score:

Philadelphia—First inning	113
Second inning	153
Total	266
Germantown—First inning	188
Second inning	76
Total	264

—Patrick Brady had a hearing, yesterday, before Ald. Kerr, upon the charge of having been concerned with a man named Glenn, in robbing the residence of Mr. D. L. Wood, No. 2100 Arch street, in May last, of clothing, of the value of $300. Glenn was arrested soon after the robbery was made known, tried and convicted, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Brady was not caught, but he was kept out of the way of the public. The testimony yesterday went to prove that Brady was aware of the occurrence, Glenn and Brady were seen walking out Arch street, the latter carrying two oil paintings, which answered the description of those stolen from Mr. Wood's residence.

—Congressman L. W. Booker, of Virginia, and A. J. Hamilton, of Texas, have called a convention of "native original Democrats in the South," to meet at Knoxville on November 1st. The subjects to be considered are the repeal of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, universal amnesty and restoration of civil and political rights, abolition of the iron-clad oath, a "fair distribution" of banking capital, and the payment of the public debt in coin, or its equivalent. The call says the convention is not to be partisan.

—The Indians are running in Arizona, and Tuscon, the capital of the territory, is reported to be virtually in a state of siege. Stolen animals and mails were received there from the end of June to the 20th of August, and the Indians were killing and depredating in all directions. At last accounts, however, volunteer companies were organizing to co-operate with the U. S. troops against the Indians.

—Dr. C. H. T. Peters, Director of Litchfield Observatory, at Hamilton College, N. Y., announces the discovery of the one hundred and twelfth asteroid on Tuesday morning. Its position is 10 degrees, 28 minutes of right ascension, and 10 degrees, 13 minutes North declination, and its brightness that of a star of the eleventh magnitude. It has been named "Iphigenia." The planet discovered on August 31st has been named "Ate."

—The suit of the old stockholders of the Covington and Lexington Railroad Company against the heirs of R. B. Bowler and others, involving the title of what is known as the Kentucky Central Railroad Company, was decided on Tuesday for the defendants in the Circuit Court of Kenton county, by. The case has been pending for several years. It will probably be carried to the Court of Appeals.

—Six more deaths are reported from cholera—two between the whites and freedmen in Laurens county, S. C. Both parties are armed and organized, and several colored men have been killed. The Reform party charge that the disturbances are planned by the secret leagues, for political effect, but this is denied by the Republicans.

—Advices have been received, at London, of the total loss of the Bedford whaler Alice. No date is given. She was wrecked off the Falkland Islands. The Alice, Captain White, was a bark of 300 tons burthen, and left New Bedford, June 7, 1867, for the Pacific. She was at Tuckahanoe, Chile, on the 22d of February, 1870.

—Policeman John Dougherty, of the Fourth District, was arraigned before Recorder Gavin, yesterday afternoon, for a hearing, charged on the oath of T. W. Rodrigo, a Division Canvasser of the Sixth Ward, with conspiring with Thomas Hardy to violate the election laws. Dougherty entered bail in the sum of $800 for his appearance this afternoon.

—The Cincinnati Industrial Exhibition was formally opened last night. All the available space is occupied, and the display of machinery is remarkable, Philadelphia being among the cities represented. There is also a fine display of household furniture. The arrangement of articles is not yet completed.

NEW JERSEY MATTERS.

—Marshals Phifer, Pine and Brown have completed the work of taking the census in Camden. They have done the work thoroughly, and suspect that the statistics will be quite accurate. This is in consequence of the uniform kindness with which the citizens assisted them by answering promptly such questions as the law made it necessary for them to ask. Only in two or three instances did they meet with any difficulty. For this courtesy they return their thanks.

—A learned discussion is now in progress between Rev. Mr. Burbank and Rev. Ralph Lee, of Camden, on the questions "Do the Scriptures teach that man is unconscious between death and the resurrection?" "Do the Scriptures teach that the wicked will be destroyed?" Mr. Burbank, affirmative; Mr. Lee, negative.

—The Independent Order of Good Templars in Camden is a very flourishing institution. Crystal Fount Lodge, No. 2, at last meeting had a membership of 300. Its finances are in good condition, and about fifty more will also be received.

—The Camden County Republican Executive Committee organized yesterday afternoon, in Camden, and resolved to prosecute the campaign with vigor and a determination to win.

—A largely-attended Democratic mass-meeting was held at Mount Ephraim, last evening. Addresses were delivered by several able speakers.

—The canning-factory, on Second street, between Market and Thurn, employed about two hundred hands, most of whom are females. All kinds of canned fruits are put up.

—Two half-grown rowdy boys have got into trouble in consequence of stoning houses. This kind of malfeasance fun ought to be severely punished, and these boys will be made an example of. Serves them right.

—Among the historical facts connected with Verdun, it is narrated that during the wars of the French Revolution fifteen girls of that town, all under fifteen years of age, were sent to the guillotine for having danced at a ball given by Prussian officers.

COMPOUND REDUCTION.

How a Large Man was Found to be Small.—The Binghampton (Republican) says: A man, giving the name of Edward Curtis, had been arrested for burglary and larceny, in the house of William Bennett, in Rickwood "Mr. Bennett and his family were absent from home on Thursday afternoon, when they returned they found that their house had been entered, and that numerous articles of clothing and a gun had been stolen. The matter came to the Sheriff J. S. Parsons, of Kirkwood, who made a search for the thief, and on Friday afternoon soon he succeeded in finding a large man with a portion of the clothing on him, who also had the gun on his shoulder. The prisoner claimed that he should surrender, unconditionally, with all the other accoutrements and toggery, but was told that such things are generally decided by fortunes of war, and that his case would not be an exception to the general rule. But when Curtis became convinced by dismal probabilities, that fighting is a game that two can play as they once cluded, like the Third Napoleon, that it was better to surrender than to put himself in danger, and so he handed over his gun, and was invited to be handcuffed.

"When Curtis was brought before the Recorder he did not deny the charges preferred against him, but objected, that he was made up the stolen clothes. Finally he surrendered in detail.

"The first articles taken off were 'a coat, a vest, and a pair of pantaloons. He was a changed man, when he put them, but he stood before the officers fully attired.

"That not being in accordance with their orders, the officers ordered him to the strip. Then Curtis took off a coat and two vests, a pair of pantaloons and two pairs of socks. His shirt being recognized as the property of Mr.
