The Fire Fiend.

RICHMOND, Dec. 25.—Last night was the coldest felt here for thirteen years, and a fearful one for the calamity which occurred. The ground was covered with hard, frozen snow, and the thermometer stood at 5 degrees. The Spotswood hotel and all the buildings in that block, the finest in the city, were destroyed by fire at two o'clock this morning, burning in the ashes some half-dozen or more human beings. The businesss houses destroyed were Branch & Currant's crockery store, Adams' Express Company, office of Howe's sewing machine, and other smaller stores. The total loss by fire is $300,000, insured mostly in Northern companies.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Dec. 25.—A very destructive fire occurred here this morning between four and five o'clock, by which a large number of the principal business houses in the town were burned. The fire originated in Wall's store, and consumed a whole square before the flames were subdued. The following establishments were totally destroyed, with nearly all their contents: The First National Bank, the Semi-Weekly Enterprise office, Wall's liquor-store, Kelley's work-shop, Heller's liquor store, Smith's store and dwelling, Mrs. S. J. Coffman's dwelling, Maud A. Heller's dry-goods store, Tupton's clothing store, Messrs Sibert & Long's clothing store, Willman's barber shop, Switzer's clothing store, Andrew's livery stable, Worthman's book store. The American Hotel, on the opposite side of Main street, was considerably damaged. All the glass in the windows was broken by the intense heat. Mr. Switzer and son were badly hurt, but not seriously. The destruction of property will amount to $100 000, half of which is not insured.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 26.—A fire broke out in Connor's saloon, in Main street, this evening, and before the flames could be suppressed the following stores were burned: E. R. Pease, boots and shoes; Schwarz, clothier; Lambert, cigars; Van Wyck, hats and caps; Myers, photographer; Melrose, fancy goods; Farnum, drugs; Wilson, books and stationary; Hyde, shoes. These stores were all on Main street. On Garden street, the stores of the following named persons were burned: Kimball, engraver; Hyatt, umbrellas; also another engraving establishment. The contents were nearly all saved of Farnum's drug store, Wilson's bookstore, and Hyde's shoe store. The loss cannot be less than $75,000 to $100 000.

CORNWALL, Canada, Dec. 27.—The Conwall woollen manufactory was burned this morning. The building during the past year was thoroughly stocked with the most improved machinery. The cause of the fire is unknown. Over two hundred persons are thrown out of employment. The loss is estimated at $300,000; insurance, $153,000.

ST. THOMAS, Canada, Dec 17.—A large fire occured last evening, consuming two dry goods stores, three grocery stores, with several other buildings. Loss estimated at $70 000, to $80,000, mostly covered by insurance.

Two men are missing, supposed to be buried under the ruins.

BALTIMORE, Dec., 27.—Yesterday morning the coal oil establishment of Hamill, Fwynne & Co., at Canton, was damaged by fire to the extent of $10,000; insured. The same day the chemical works of Hazard, Zulick & Duvall was damaged by fire to the extent of $5,000; insured.

THE Rutherford Park Hotel, at Rutherford, N. J., was burned early Saturday morning. Loss estimated at $50,000.

The woolen factory of Edden & Co., of Boston, located on Creek Pond, in West Haverhill, was burned yesterday morning. Loss, $100,000.

The moulding factory of Russ & Eddy, at Worcester, Mass., was burned yesterday. Loss, $20,000; insurance, $5,500.

A FIRE last evening in the rope and hemp establishment of William Walls Sons, No. 113 Wall street, New York, caused a loss of $17,000, fully insured.

THE loss by the burning of the Pool Building, Rochester, Daily Democrat publishing and press rooms, and flour mill, will reach $100,000. Insured $75,000.

THE historic General Pillow, of Tennessee, again finds himself on the "wrong side of the ditch." In 1860 and '61 he was a very active rebel in the Mississippi valley. Long before the State of Tennessee had "seceded from the Union," Gen. Pillow was "doing military duty" at Memphis. Upon his own responsibility, not having orders from a superior he seized steamboats and their cargoes owned by northern men, and sold them for the benefit of the rebels. A Pittsburg firm, whose towboats, barges, and coal were seized by Pillow, brought suit against him for value thereof, and and have received a verdict in the United States Court in their favor. Pillow is immensely rich, and will be forced to pay for the stolen property. The effect of this verdict will be to induce other nothern men to prosecute similar claims against the rebel leaders, who, by self-constituted authority, captured the property of loyal citizens in the beginning of the rebellion.

REAR ADMIRAL SAMUEL L. BREEZE, late Port Admiral on the Philadelphia station, died at Mount Airy (Philadelphia), on Saturday morning a week, aged seventy years. He was born in New York, entered the navy in 1810, as midshipman, and was present at the battle of Lake Champlain, in "the war of 1812." During the Mexican war he took part in the capture of the towns of Tuspan, Tobasco and Vera Cruz. Having passed through all the intervening ranks, he was commissioned Rear Admiral in 1862.

The Effects of War.

The gigantic war now being waged between France and Germany has already served to paralyze the industry between both countries. It has also a very depressing effect on many departmentt of trade in Great Britain. The silk trade of Lyons is almost entirely ruined, and the Large silk dealers of London, who formerly obtained their suplies from this source, are now without busines for lack of goods. Formerly it was the custom for the great manufacturers of Lyons to send the bulk of their fabrics to London and Paris. By this means they get more prompt returns than by selling them directly to consumers; besides these heavy houses purchased their whole product, taking entire lines of dress of all the various paterns made. In the articles of laces and embroideries, porcelain and fancy goods, the shopkeepers of Britain also miss their accustomed supplies and severely feel the drawback it is having on trade. In the United States, the stock of French cloths, silks, gloves jewelry, procelain, &c., &c., is very greatly diminished; and besides, these articles have all very rapidly appreciated in price.

The draft made on the Germans to meet the requirements of the war has almost as disasterous an effect as that on the French. Everywhere industry is demoralized, and business ruined. Factories are closed and operatives have become warriors, who, instead of being engaged in the peaceful avocations of life, are, at one and the same time, destroying the enemy and closing up the avenues of traffic. German hardware, toys, leather and leather goods, woolens, musical instruments, &c., &c, are in greatly diminished production, and in some of these wares the manufacture has almost entirely ceased.

The aggregate value of French manufacture before the war averged about five hundred millions of dollars annually, while the imports and exports for a corresponding period respectively reached about the same amount.

Of the value of German productions we have no reliable statistics: but we imagine that in the entire country it did not fall far short of France.

We imported from France merchandize to the amount of about eighty millions of dollars annually for which we returned of our own products about fifty millions, paying the difference in bonds. From Germany we also imported largely, and the balance of trade was always against us. The vast commerce with both these nations is now interupted, and if the war should continue for some months longer the loss of business would seriously affect many branches of trade.

In the manufacture of silks, gloves carpets, ribbons, embroideries, and cloths we have already made wonderful progress, and some the best domestic goods are in every respect equal to the best manufactured in France. In many descriptions of hardware we excel the English, Germans, and French, but in bronzes we are far behind the French and English. In laces, wares, procelain, jewelry, leather and fancy goods, the production is either very meagre, or else the goods are of interior quality. The war presents a fitting opportunity for us to encourage the growth of many of those industries with a view to their permanence, excellence, and future cheapness. That it will be comparatively easy to accomplish some, if not all of these aims, we have entire confidence. The terrible struggle through which France and Germany are passing has already in a great measure exhausted their resources, and it will take years of peace, self-denial and industry to place the commerce and manufactures of either nation in as favorable position as at the beginning of the contest.—N. Y. Mercantile Journal.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S ADMINISTRATION.—We can remember no administration of the General Government so wise, so consistent, so incorruptible and so economical as that of President Grant. No one can deny, however hostile he may be as a political opponent, or unsuccessful in obtaining an office, that he has, regardless of consequences, faithfully executed the laws. When he came into office he found the civil service debauched; dishonesty was the rule of public life, and the country seemed to be at the mercy of unprincipled adventurers, who plundered the Treasury and trafficked in the nation's honor and faith. Reform come in with the fourth of March, 1869; reform has so grown with the administration that the public debt has been reduced more that one hundred and seventy eight millions dollars, and the country is generally prosperous and progressive. And this is the policy he is determined to pursue in the future. There may be croakers in the republican party; there will naturally be bitter fault finders and denunciators in the Democratic party; but they will all fail to drive him from his marked out path of strict integrity, retrenchment and economy which he pursued from the beginning.—Germantown Telegraph.

AN exchange says that the Ku Klux are making it lively in Sandersville, Ga. Of three hundred and sixty healthy negroes who once flourished in that community, nothing is left but one barrel of ham bark and a hatful of horn buttons.

Report on Indian Affairs.

The report of the United States Commissioner of Indian affairs, which has been printed, gives in thorough detail interesting facts concerning the Indian policy of the government and the administration of the Peace Commissioners which is regarded as perfectly satisfactory, and as having resulted beneficially both to the government and to the Indians. The former has received practical good through the workings of the Quaker Commissioners, in an honest expenditure of the appropriations at their command, as well as in a reduction of the bureau expense by careful supervision of the annuity goods, &c., to be disposed of to the Indians. The report claims a most economical expenditure of the appropriations, and the adoption of a system which will enable the bureau to transact its business under a much less estimate during this fiscal year than was called for in the last report. The decrease in the present estimate is a little over a thousand dollars. The general tone of the report concerning the character and disposition of the tribes is satisfactory.

The missionary exercises, which have been carried into practical effect by the Quaker agents are highly eulogized, as having tended to render the tribes much more amenable to the requirements of the government, and the dictates of civilization than formerly. The principal features in the advancement of the various tribes, are the consideration paid by them to the establishment of mission-schools and to education. The commission has reason to believe that with the constant endeavors of the Quaker officials, backed by the support they have from the government, the system of Indian affairs is rapidly being reduced to an excellent standard, and that the precepts of civilization and Christianity will work a wonderful change in their character. The present quiet aspect, there is reason to hope, will continue, and that the stories of raids and ravages which has been so frequent of late years, will have no repetition. Interesting documents from Indian officers accompany the report of the commission. The usual statistics of different tribes are given, and full information upon all subjects relative to the present Indian policy is submitted by the authors of the different reports accompanying that of the commissioner.

KNAVES AND FOOLS.—For the benefit of whom it may concern, we copy the following from the New York Star:—"The police are making a vigorous raid on the adroit swindlers who from their headquarters in this city manage to cheat the verdant in the rural districts from Maine to California and from the Canadas to the Gulf of Mexico. It is astonishing how many knaves are taken in by the pretended sale of counterfeit notes. With these we confess we have little sympathy. When a man makes a purchase with intent to cheat, and is himself bitten, he fully deserves it.—Nevertheless, the rogues here ought not to escape for that reason. Innumerable fools are taken in by the advertisement which offers to send for $3, a musical instrument which plays forty tunes. In return for the $3, a child's mouth organ is sent, on which the ass who gets it may play an indefinite number of tunes if he only knows how.—There are a hundred other just such tricks as these and a hundred thousand fools who are ready to be played upon. When the knaves out of New York make up their minds to be honest, the knaves here will go out of business; and when all the fools learn that when a man offers to sell an article at a price far below its real value, he is bent on swindling, that branch of knavery will also be discontinued. The fool-killer has much to do before all the subjects of his intentions are out of the world.

Senatorial Elections.

On the 17th of January fourteen States will elect members of the United States Senate. Six States have already elected, so that there will be twenty new members in the Senate of the Forty-Second Congress. Of the fourteen Senators to be elected the only two about whose election there seems to be any certainty are Wilson, of Massachusetts, and Thayer, of Nebraska. The election of these gentleman seems to be conceded. In Arkansas, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, and other States, there is considerable of a contest. The Legislatures of all the States above named are Republican, and the only difficulty is as to the choice of the man. The Democrats in the Senate will receive an accession to their ranks of six Senators. If Missouri sends a Democrat, as it is expected she will, in place of Drake, the Democrats will have seven out of the twenty new Senators.

THEODORE TILTON has relinquished the editorial chair of the New York Independent, and is succeeded by Henry C. Bowen, the proprietor and publisher. Mr Tilton will be a special contributor to that paper. The Independent was an excellent paper under Mr. Tilton as editor, and no doubt will continue to grow in excellence under the editorship of the publisher and proprietor.

AT the term of Bucks county Court held at Doylestown week before last Judge Chapman imposed the following severe penalties upon horse thieves burglars, and other violators of the law:—George Woodward and James Johnson, horse stealing, each 14 years and 6 months' imprisonment; John Williams horse stealing, 9 years; Lewis H. Landis, horse stealing, 14 years and 3 months; Fredrick Steele, Robert Devine and Joseph Haimer, burglary, each 8 years and 6 months; Charles Bauce and John W. Stopp, larceney, each 1 year and 8 months; Henry Felt and George Dino, larceny, each 2 years and 3 months, and Jacob Garcia, larceny, 3 years and 6 months.

GEN. SCHENK, of Ohio, was on Thursday last, confirmed by the United States Senate, as minister to England.

ANOTHER disaster occured on the Mississippi on Sunday night a week, which it is reported forty persons were drowned. The steamer Nick Wall struck a snag above Grand Lake, during a storm, and the cabin on which were nine hundred barrels fell in preventing the escape of the passengers. The boat was finally met by another steamer and the surviving passengers and crew were taken off.

GEN. MANSTEIN commands a North German corps. He is remarkable for his coolness under fire. At Saarbrueken he was in chief command. Wandering over the field the morning after the battle, he came upon the burying parties who were busily at work. He asked one of the solders if his company had lost heavily. "Very heavily, your excellency," was the answer. "To what company do you belong?" The name was given. "Where is your Captain?" "We have just burried him." Manstein turned away for a moment, then said "take up the body. Your captain was my only son." When the corpse was brought to him he kissed the cold forehead, ordered a coffin, chose a place of burial, and with unaltered countenance, returned to his command.
