Two North Carolina farmers made comfortable fortunes on potatoes this season. One of them sold his crop for $80,000, five-eighths of that sum being profit. The other one cleared $35,000 on the same tubor. The present is said to be the best season for potatoes ever known, and as the crop of last year was a failure there was no old stock to go on and the new crop brought very good prices. The high price of meat and bread drove poor people to potatoes, and the result was that while they drugged in the New York market at the opening of the season last year at $2 per barrel, this year they brought $6,50 per barrel on the North Carolina coast, with lots of takers.

PENSION FRAUDS.—The charge has been made time and again that a considerable per centage of the pensioners are drawing Government money to which they have no shadow of a title. In order to expose these windlers a proposition has been made to publish a list of pensioners in every locality, so that people may know who they are and whether their record is right. This is certainly a reasonable proposition, but objection is made that it would humiliate the veterans. This is absurd. No man who has the right to draw a pension would be ashamed to have the fact known, and the men who bear the scars of honorable wounds are the most anxious to read the list of favorites and expose the unworthy.

For sometime the Philadelphia Press has been exposing the adulteration of drugs, and showing the extravagant prices charged by pharmacists for filling prescriptions. It is said that charges of fifty and sixty cents have been made for filling prescriptions, the material for which did not cost over five or ten cents. But the greatest imposition of all is the following:

℞ Sulphate of atropia, grain, i.
Distilled water, ounce, i.
Charge seventy-five cents.

Sulphate of atropia sells at eight cents a grain, and as for the charge of distilled water it is not necessary to say anything! It is evident from the exposures in the Press that great reforms could be made in the drug business.

Again the postoffice department is reported paying expenses, and it is announced that the last quarter show a profit of one million dollars to be turned into the treasury. Three times before the department paid for a brief period, first in 1849, from which healthy condition it relapsed through a reduction of postage, and again in 1850 and 1851, when a second reduction threw it back again. Then again in the first year of the war the cutting off of many southern routes and the stoppage of development in the north caused it to pay for a short time. And now that it appears to be fairly over the "dead point," with every section of the country undisturbed and business in full blast, it is hoped

The Duty of the Hour.

Every man has an opportunity to accomplish some special work for the advancement of the political principles, and if he is properly invested with a sense of his obligations to his State and nationality, he will be alert to take advantage of every favorable impulse both as regards himself and neighbor. No man lives who may not have a controlling power over some other person for weal or woe. In every community there are men who can control the masses, while others are not so widely gifted. The eloquent exposition of our principles at the mass meetings is not always able to convince men of the untenableness of their position. They gather at these meetings with their minds already surcharged with prejudice. Their antagonism is so strong that arguments have no more effect than moonbeams on an iceberg. Men on either side of them may be swayed hither and you, by the tide of enthusiasm, but they are unmoved and go away, not only unconvinced, but with their opposition intensified because of the argument. A few moments quiet reflection leads to a calm frame of mind. This is the opportunity, the golden moment that should be seized! with all the intenseness of a deep-seated conviction that it is right to say to that neighbor, "Are not these your principles? Are they not the same that has characterized the Republican party from the beginning? Wherein do they differ from those of last year, or for twenty years past? Methods for accomplishing certain ends may change and become questionable, and have a tendency to provoke animosities, but must principles suffer. Must the foundation be rooted up because a stone has been displaced in the cornice? Or even more apropos, shall every vestige of the old time-honored edifice be removed and replaced by an unsightly building that will stand for years as the monument of political folly? It is not as though we came with an empty pitcher to the cistern. There is a teeming fullness that is almost inexhaustible. The resources of argument are unlimited." "The fathers, where are they?" The names of the honored dead, Lincoln and Garfield, ought to evoke our sincerest veneration for the principles for whose maintainance they really sacrificed their lives. And shall we count these things small that cost such a price? But this is not the limit. Shall we stand by and see our neighbors go unchecked, who would fill their hands with the treasuries of our past victories; tear the laurels from the brows of our brave veterans; despoil their graves of the mementoes of the filial and fraternal regard, and carry the spoils over to the enemy? This is the meaning of every Republican vote that fails to plant yet higher the proud boast: "We toil for the public good." Every vote that is not cast for General Beaver and the Republican ticket, is a plain and clear revocation of past fealty, and devotion to principle and duty. Do we know of one who has purposed in his mind to make this sacrifice? Do we know of a Republican who has conceived that it will be for the good of the party, at some distant time, to place Mr. Pattison in the Gubernatorial chair? Then it is our imperative duty to say to the erring, not that he is an Arnold or a Judas, for not yet has the deed been done, but say, you are making a grievous mistake; one which will bring sincerest regret, when the result will place the action beyond control.

There is another matter of deep interest that enters into this individual personal effort, which becomes eminently the duty of the hour, and which can be reached by no other means so well. There are hundreds of young men who will cast a vote this year for the first time. They are not on the Assessor's books. Perhaps they are not fully impressed with the high privilege that the franchise confers, at least they have not the experiences to shun the wiles and sophistries that will be used by the Democracy to entrap them. They naturally belong to the Republican party—the party of progression—and must be cared for or given over to the opposition. This we repeat is every mans' work, and can no more be delegated to another than the depositing of our own ballot in the box. Look to the poll list and mark well that no name fails to find its place there, and that none are unlawfully erased.

The newest swindle upon farmers is as follows: Sharper No. 1 goes to a farmer and makes him an offer for his farm at a high price which is usually accepted, and $50 or so deposited to bind the bargain. Then Mr. Sharp's friend comes along and offers $1,000 or more in advance of the first price. Then the farmer goes to No. 1, and by paying a good round sum, say $500, secures a release. The enterprising fellow who wanted the land so badly at the highest figure neglects to come around, and the farmer is about $450 out, which of course, is divided by the sharps.
