VOLUME XLI.—NO. 24. WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 27, 1839. NEW SERIES, VOL. 8.—NO. 17.

Quacks and their Destructive NOSTRUMS.

THE united testimony of the physicians throughout the United States has fully proved the fact that Peters' Vegitable Pills are the only true Vegitable Pills which will stand the test of analyzation; hence the proprietor would most earnestly urge them for the notice of those who have been in the habit of using as cathartics or aperients, the destructive and irritating quack pills so generally advertised, and which are at best but slow consumers of the vitalunctions, and murderous agents even to the most hale. It is true, most of them produce a pu ty e effect, and sometimes transient relief; but in most cases they injure the digestive organs, and an habitual resort to them must terminate in confirmed dyspepsia.

It is true that cathartic and aperient medicines are often required but the nicest discrimination should always be observed in the selection and if this be done, nothing injurious can result from their use. al

To produce this much desired result, Dr. Peters has made it his study for several years, and feels proud to say he has succeeded at length far beyond his expectations. The object of his pills is to supercede the necessity of a frequent recourse to injurious purgatives, and to offer a medicine safe, certain, and pleasant in its operation.

Prepared by JOS. PRIESTLY PETERS, M. D. No. 129 Library street, New York.—Each box contains 40 pills. Price 50 cents.

Headache, Sick and Nervous.

Those who have suffered, and are weary of suffering from these distressing complaints, will find in PETERS' VEGITABLE PILLS a remedy at once certain and immediate in its effects.

IN DYSPEPSIA they stand unrivalled; many have been cured in a few weeks, after having suffered under this dreadful complaint for years.

In habitual costiveness they are decidedly superior to any Vegitable Pills ever yet discovered, and besides this they are recommended by all the eminent and leading members of the Medical Faculty.

A Catalogue of Reasons

For using Dr. Peters' Celebrated Vegitable Pills.

1. Because they are exceedingly popular, which proves them to be exceedingly good.

2. Because they are composed of simples which have the power to do good in an immense number of cases, without possessing the means to do injury in any.

3. Because they are not a quack medicine, but the scientific compound of a regular physician, who has made his profession the study of his life.

4. Because they are not unpleasant to take nor distressing to retain, while they are most effective to operate.

5. Because they are recommended as a standard medicine by the regular faculty.

6. Because by keeping the system in a natural state of action, they cure almost every disease which is incidental to the human frame.

7. Because they are cheap and portable, and will retain all their virtues in full vigor, in any climate and for any length of time.

8. Because, notwithstanding their simplicity and mildness, they are one of the speediest purgative medicines which has been discovered.

9. Because they are an unfailing remedy for procuring a good appetite.

10. Because in cases of spleen or despondency, by their healthy influence on the excited state of the body, they have a most happy effect, in calming and invigorating the mind.

11. Because they effect their cures without the usual attendants of other pills, sickness and griping.

12. Because as well as being an rivalled purifier of the general system, they are a sovereign remedy for sick headache.

13. Because they differ from the majority of medicines, in the fact that the more they are known the more they are approved.

14. Because as their application create no debility in the system, they may be taken without producing any hindrance to business or the pursuits of every day life.

15. Because when once introduced into a family, or a village, they almost immediately take the precedence of all other medicines in general complaints.

16. Because a number of the wonderful cures they have effected, can be substantiated without any undue means being resorted to, to procure invalid testimonies.

17. Because their composition is such, that they are equally applicable to the usual diseases of warm, cold, or temperate climates.

18. Because two, or three are in general sufficient for a dose—so that, as is the case with the generality of patent medicines—the patient is not compelled to make a meal of them.

19. Because each individual pill is put up under the immediate superintendence of the proprietor, so that no mistake in the composition, or quantity can possibly occur through the carelessness of a less interested agent.

20. Because they purify the frame without debilitating the system.

21. Because, notwithstanding their immense popularity, no person has ever ventured to raise against them the breath of censure, which would not have been the case, if envy could have discovered in them a single flaw to cavil at.

22. Because—(and this fact is of the utmost importance)—ladies in a certain situation may take them, (not more than two or three at a time however,) without in the slightest degree incurring the hazard of abortion. Were the virtues of Peters' inestimable pills, confined to this desirable end alone, it would give them a decided advantage over the medicines of all competitors, as in no cases is there more danger to be apprehended, or for which so few remedies have been discovered, as the one referred to.

23. Because while they are so efficient in their operations with adults, they may at the same time be administered to children and even to infants, in small quantities, half a pill for instance, without the slightest danger.

24. Because their virtues are acknowledged to stand pre-eminent, for their soothing influence upon young ladies while suffering from the usual changes of life, as directed by the laws of nature.

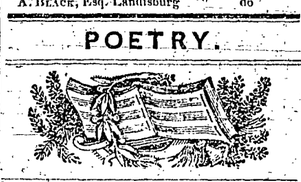
POETRY.



On the Death of a Sister.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE.

I knew that we must part; day after day
I saw the dread Destroyer win his way.
That hollow cough first rang the fatal knell,
As on my ear its prophet-warning fell;
Feeble and slow the once light footstep grew,
Thy wasting cheek put on death's pallid hue,
Thy thin, hot hand to mine more weakly clung,
Each sweet 'Good night' fell fainter from thy tongue.
I knew that we must part—no power could save
Thy quiet goodness from an early grave;
Those eyes so dull, though kind each glance they cast,
Looking a sister's fondness to the last;
Thy lip so pale, that gently pressed my cheek,
Thy voice—alas! thou couldst but try to speak;
All told thy doom; I felt it at my heart;
The shaft was struck—I knew that we must part.

And we have parted, Mary—thou art gone!
Gone in thine early bloom, meek suffering one!
Thy weary spirit breathed itself to sleep
So peacefully, it seemed a sin to weep,
In those fond watchers who around thee stood,
And felt, even then, that God was greatly good.
Like stars that struggle through the shades of night,
Thine eyes one moment caught a glorious light,
As if to thee, in that dread hour, 'twere given
To know on earth what faith believes of Heaven;
Then like tired breezes didst thou sink to rest,
Nor one, one pang the awful change confessed.
Death stole in softness o'er that lovely face,
And touched each feature with a new-born grace;
On cheek and brow unearthly beauty lay,
And told that life's poor cares had passed away.
In my last hour be Heaven so kind to me,
I ask no more than this—to die like thee.

But we have parted—Mary—thou art dead!
On its last resting-place I laid thy head,
Then by the coffin-side knelt down and took
A brother's farewell kiss and farewell look;
Those marble lips no kindred kiss returned;
From those veiled orbs no glance responsive burned;
Ah! then I felt that thou hadst passed away,
That the sweet free[illegible] gazed on was but clay.
And then [illegible] glory, with her busy throng
Of tend[illegible] forgotten long;
Yes[illegible] back, and as they swiftly rolled,
I [illegible]nce—heard thee, as in days of old;
Sad and more sad each sabred feeling grew,
Manhood was moved, and sorrow claimed her due;
Thick, thick and fast the burning tear-drops started,
I turned away, and felt that we had parted.

But not for ever—in the silent tomb,
Where thou art laid, thy kindred shall find room;
A little while—a few short years of pain,
And, one by one, we'll come to thee again.
The kind old Father shall seek out the place,
And rest with thee, the youngest of the race;
The dear, dear Mother,—bent with age and grief—
Shall lay her head by thine in sweet relief;
Sister and Brother, and that faithful Friend—
True from the first, and tender to the end—
All, all in good time—who placed us here—
To live, to love, to die and disappear—
Shall come and make their quiet bed with thee,
Beneath the shadow of that spreading tree;
With thee to sleep, through death's long dreamless night,
With thee rise up and bless the morning light.

The Hills, The Sea, The Sky.

BY JOHN NEAL, JR.

O, what a throbbing joy to tread
The everlasting hills,
And drink unbroken melody
From dashing crystal rills!
To follow in the hind's rough track,
And watch the eagle's flight
Up, mounting on his pinion strong,
He soars to realms of light!

O, what a pomp to ride the waves,
And court the tempest's play,
When flashing in the morning sun,
Up darts the feathery spray;
With varying colors, softly touched,
Most gorgeously unwoven,
Displaying to the captured sight
The rainbow hues of heaven!

O, what a holy charm to scan
The meteor-kindling sky,
And fancy in the azure vault,
The all-pervading eye!
To think of worlds untold, unseen
As caves beneath ocean's flood,
And force the rebel heart to praise
The mighty power of God!

MISCELLANEOUS.

ROBERT ON THE DOME OF ST. PETERS, AT ROME.

[Translated from "Memoires de Madame la Duchesse, d'Abrantes."] One must have nerves of steel to read without trembling, this account of Robert's perilous enterprise. Robert was an enthusiastic young painter, a pupil of the French academy, sent to Rome to study the frescoes.]

Robert was one day at St. Peters. The hour of divine service was past, and he was almost alone. The silent and religious quiet of that vast edifice, was interrupted only by the footsteps of a few casual visiters. Robert cast on all sides his look of ardent enthusiasm in search of new wonders. On a sudden, he saw a rope descend from the opening at the top of the grand cupola; a workman having approached, fastened to it a bucket of water, and it again ascended. The roof was out of repair, and some masons were at work upon it. This gave him the idea of ascending the cupola.

"I was curious," said he, "to examine as closely as possible the injury done to the colossus of modern architecture, which, shooting up towards heaven, seems contemptuously to say to the ruined monuments around it, I am eternal. Its pride seemed to me much lowered. That rope, that bucket, and that solitary workman, struck me as contemptible." He ascended the dome. On his arrival at the summit, he was struck with admiration and wonder at the magnificent prospect before him.

It was a splendid and living panorama, lighted by sunbeams so different from those of every other country, covering nature with a bright and glorious veil of beautiful colors, which floats over the buildings, trees, and land of Italy alone. He then looked more nearly around him, and perceived a few workmen repairing some slight damage done to the roof of the dome. To obtain water with greater ease, they had
