THE DEMOCRAT.

MONTROSE, PA.:

Thursday, February 15, 1849.

Another "Mare's Nest."

[illegible]

The Tioga Eagle's Aspersions.

The editor of the Tioga Eagle, who we expose in some, we trust on rather hard two weeks ago, [illegible] coming home or attempting to slink in unobserved [illegible] down upon us in his last issue with a tirade [illegible] which we have to make to him with the gentleman, and want now that some points in his fiendish memorandum, we in turn require a word in reply, which we will give.

He says—and upon first blush it may appear [illegible] Mr Wilmot, [illegible] he supposed we actually entertained a malice [illegible] or ever was, or that it in any manner possessed us or controlled our conduct, we have only to pronounce simply and in plain terms—false as the course of the editor of the Eagle has been corrupt and illiberal, also false, which will not, and so certainly bad enough. They are the first sentiments on truth about, and did we imagine how we were put to our wits end to compound we should spare our indignation little and trust to such a power as the reader will do our sentiment. His fiendish charge, also, is based upon the process and his belief, [illegible] have nothing to do with Hon. [illegible] interests—he paid money [illegible] and dispose of the mass to him [illegible] best.

As to the aspersions of a desire to make Mr Wilmot [illegible] Post, a power, by [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Mr Wilmot [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Mr Wilmot [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Mr Wilmot [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Mr Wilmot