AMERICAN ORGANS.

(From "Godey's Ladies' Book" February, 1866.)

REED ORGANS, &c.

THE following remarks and suggestions relative to this immensely popular instrument will doubtless interest and profit very many of our readers, we commend the article to their careful perusal:—

A hundred and one makers of Organs, Cottage, Parlor, Cabinet, American, School Organs, etc etc., are each claiming to make the best instrument in the world. Being comparatively a new instrument as at present constructed, we are convinced the public are much less capable of judging of its merits, or demerits, than of most other instruments. If there is really an essential difference in them, if there are some excellent and some worthless ones, the public should have some criterion for judging of them, some facts which will enlighten them. We cheerfully concede the space for this article knowing that there is hardly a family, or church, or school in all the land, but is more or less interested in this topic. We are also aware of its being a great misfortune, a real calamity, to any of them to purchase an inferior or worthless Organ, ruinous to good playing, and often a source of much annoyance and vexation. We know this article to emanate from a candid and intelligent source, and thus we give it to our readers.

The question is often asked, what are "reed organs?" We answer, they are, in most cases, nothing in the world but the old melodeon in disguise. Many of the so-called organs have the same bellows, the same reeds, and the same general internal arrangement. With the bellows turned on edge to gain room, they have simply put on a more pretentious exterior and a more high sounding name. But an organ, to be in reality an organ, must have a wind chest or reservoir for air separate from the bellows, into which wind-chest the reeds open, and the tone has room to expand and perfect itself into the full round tone, similar to the flute or pipe organ, even, smooth, firm, and mellow; and this tone from reeds cannot be obtained in any other way known. Nothing so annoys a true organist as to have the volume of sound swelling and jerking spasmodically with every variation of force on the bellows, which is always the case where the reeds open direct into the bellows or air passages, instead of a wind-chest or sound-box. And yet some makers even go so far as to claim this spasmodic or automatic jerking of the bellows on the reeds as an excellence, just as though they did not know that it must very soon throw the reeds out of tune, and injure the bellows; and as though it were not an easier matter to obtain a much better and more easily managed swell by other methods. The truth is, any organ, so called, or melodeon which has the wind acting directly upon the reeds, is nothing more nor less than a huge accordeon, dress it up as you may. And when organists and true musicians become aware of the fact that they can obtain those that are organs in fact as well as in name, they will buy no more of the objectionable ones. Then again the swell should always be separate and distinct from the bellows, so as not to be acted on by the hand, or soft blowing, but convenient so that the player can use it with the knee, separate from the hands or feet, and thus always under easy control, to be used ad libitum.

The large divided bellows, or double bellows, is also a very important improvement. By this means not only can the wind be supplied more evenly, but with far greater ease to the performer, from the fact that either bellows alone will be sufficient for the lighter melodies, thus permitting the player to change about and rest the feet at will; then, if the bellows is of the requisite large size, and having the wind chest or reservoir, all will be well. As to the reeds, they must be scientifically tuned and voiced, or all the other good qualities in the world cannot produce a good toned instrument. The inquiry now very naturally arises, where can the organ be procured combining all these essential and desirable qualities? There is only one possessing all these points, and that is the AMERICAN ORGAN, made by S. D. & H. W. Smith, of Boston. Sundry off Wholesale Agent, 748 Broadway, New York. These organs have a wind-chest extending the whole length of the instrument and so constructed as to act at the same time as a reverberating sound-box or board, and having the same important relation and part to perform that the sounding-board has to the piano. This feature the makers have patented, and to it are owing in a great measure the entirely unequaled fullness and richness of tone so highly prized by all who have used these organs. They also have the largest and best divided bellows in use, which is another important feature. No part of their work is slighted, no expense or pains spared to make the American Organs perfect musically, as well as mechanically, and, judging from the immense sale of them at present, they bid fair to long maintain the proud position they have won by superior merit alone. We would most heartily advise all interested to call upon or address Mr. SIMMONS OTT, the Wholesale Agent, at 748 Broadway, New York, and can assure them he will, in the most gentlemanly and truthful manner, impart to them all the information they may desire relative to this truly delightful instrument.
