have been committed, and you have knowledge of them, you may make presentments to this Court, and we will take such action as the case may require.

The law against horse racing, in this State, is no new thing. As long ago as 1820, (and it has remained in full force ever since,) it was enacted as follows:

"All racing, running, pacing or trotting of horses, mares or geldings, for money, goods or chattels, or other valuable things, shall be, and are hereby declared common nuisances and offenses against this State; and the authors, parties, contrivers and abettors thereof, shall be prosecuted, and proceeded against by indictment."

By this, we desire you particularly to observe first, that the racing of trotting of horses "for money or other valuable things," is a common nuisance, a misdemeanor; and second, all persons engaged in it, either as "authors, parties, contrivers or abettors," are liable to be proceeded against by indictment.

But in addition to this, the second section of the same act, provides "that each horse, mare or gelding used or employed by the owner thereof, or with his consent, in any race on which any bet or wager shall have been laid, or any purse or stake shall have been made, shall be liable to be forfeited for the proper county, within which such horse, mare or gelding shall have been employed contrary to the foregoing provisions; and the said horse, mare or gelding so forfeited, shall at any time within two months thereafter be seized by any overseer of the poor, or supervisor of the highways of the township in which such race shall have been run, or by the sheriff, or by any of his deputies of the county within which such township shall be situated; and in case of seizure as aforesaid, the officer so seizing shall make information thereof to the next court of common pleas for the county, and such court shall proceed to hear, and decide upon such seizure; and in case such horse, mare or gelding shall have been adjudged to be forfeited, such court shall order a sale thereof at public auction, and shall direct the proceeds, after the costs of condemnation shall have been deducted, to be paid to the treasurer of the proper county."

So that, gentlemen, we find law enough here, if enforced, to prevent horse racing or trotting upon any wager, in any part of our county. We quote the sections entire, to show how the lawmakers regarded this matter fifty years ago. They provided, as before observed, not only for the punishment of the offenders, but also for the forfeiture of the horses. Nay, they went even further, and provided in the 5th and 6th sections of the same act, that every person contributing to make up a purse, "to be run, paced or trotted for," or printing or setting up advertisements mentioning the time and place of running or trotting of any horses, or allowing such advertisements to be put upon his dwelling or outhouse, should be subject to certain penalties, to be recovered in actions debt by any person who might sue for the same.

Horse-racing, for wagers, is to-day what it was years ago. Its character and influence upon society, are unchanged; and although some may regard it as a harmless recreation, and claim that its object is the improvement of the stock of horses, &c., yet we must not forget that the law declares it to be a misdemeanor—an offense against the State, and, in the administration of justice, we have no right to regard it in any other light. It is a misdemeanor, and the persons engaged in it are liable to be prosecuted and proceeded against by indictment; and if you have knowledge of offenses against this law, it is your duty to make presentment to this Court, giving the names of the persons who are the "authors, parties, contrivers and abettors thereof."

This is an age of swindles. The country is full of scoundrels who depend on their ability to cheat for a livelihood. Among the most dangerous imposters is the counterfeiter, who is continually devising means to circulate bogus money successfully. As soon as the spurious character of one note is discovered he sets his head to work in getting out another. Among the latest counterfeits in circulation are $5 bills on the Ninth national bank of New York. They are very good imitations and are very likely to deceive. They can be readily detected by a careful examination of the engravings of the face of the female figure upon the left, which is scratchy and out of proportion. There are several counterfeit issues of United States treasury notes, the most prominent being $20 bills, of March 10, 1863. A third fraudulent plate of $10 United States treasury notes has just come to light, but it does not come up to the second plate, though the imitation is good. There are a number of $10 United States treasury notes of the second issue, so well executed that the best experts can hardly tell the difference between the counterfeit and the genuine. A large number of $50 treasury notes, well executed, in several instances have passed as genuine. Twenty dollar bills of the same denomination of March 3, 1863, are extensively circulated. There are also a number of $2 and $1 bills.

The following is a list of the counterfeit bank notes which are also said to be freely circulated: $10 bills on the First national bank of Boston, Massachusetts; $20 on the Fourth national bank of Philadelphia; $20 on the Fourth national bank of Indianapolis; $5 on the People's national bank of Michigan; $10 on the Farmers' and Mechanics' bank of Poughkeepsie; the Albany city national bank $10 bills; $10 and $2 Winchester county national bank. There are a number of well executed counterfeit notes on the National Union bank, Linderpark, Utica city national bank, Oneida national bank and Central national bank, for $20, $10 and $5.

Parables Unfolded-Bishop Stephens.

"For poetic beauty and practical force, nothing can surpass the parables of the New Testament. Their pre-eminence over all similar productions is as marked now as in the day when they were first uttered. Their charm is as fresh and their lessons are as applicable. Called forth by some passing incident of the remote past, they exactly meet the necessities of every age. None who study them can fail to recognize this wisdom even in a worldly point of view, of the precepts they inculcate any more than they can be indifferent to the exquisite grace of the narrative in which they are conveyed. But while few or none can read the parables without gathering something of the great truths they were designed to illustrate, only an earnest student can draw from them their full significance. For such, therefore as have not the time nor the ability to penetrate their inner recesses such a work as Bishop Stevens' has large value, while even to the advanced student and possessor of leisure it will prove a welcome assistance. The Bishop manifests a more than ordinary sympathy with the spirit of the parables and a singularly clear insight into their meaning. In each case prefacing his exposition with a few explanatory remarks enabling the reader to clearly comprehend the circumstances under which the parable was called forth and the imagery employed, he proceeds to disect its purpose and to unfold the great principles underlying every portion of its structure. This he does in the simplest, but withal elegant and forcible language, manifesting his usual scholarly grasp of his subject, his usual earnestness and impressiveness of manner. There is no display of education nor attempt to make it a storehouse of exegetical criticism. Its purpose being eminently practical, the manner of its execution is such as brings all classes, cultured and uncultured within its beneficial influence. He understands the spirit of the age and addresses himself to it. He is alive to the progress of events, and his remarks are at once timely and convincing. These features invest the work with unusual value, and should secure for it wide attention. In bringing it out the publishers have shown much liberality and taste. It is elegantly printed upon rich toned paper, embellished with numerous finely executed steel engravings, and handsomely bound in crimson and gold."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Exuberance of Health.

Is a blessing vouchsafed to few. Even those who have been favored by nature with strong constitutions and vigorous frames are apt to neglect the precautions necessary to preserve these precious endowments. Indeed, as a rule, the more healthy and robust a man is the more liberties he is inclined to take with his own physique. It is some consolation to the naturally weak and feeble to know that they can be so invigorated and built up, by a proper use of the means which science has placed at their disposal, as to have a much better chance of long life, and exemption from disease and pain, than the more athletic of their fellows who are foolish enough to suppose themselves invulnerable, and act accordingly.

It is not too much to say that more than half the people of the civilized world need an occasional tonic, to enable them to support the strain upon their bodies and minds, which the fast life of this restless age occasions. In fact, a pure, wholesome, invigorating tonic is the grand desideratum of the busy millions, and they have the article in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a staminal medicine, i. e., it imparts permanent strength to weak systems and invigorates delicate constitutions. Its reputation and its sales have steadily increased. Competitive preparations have been introduced ad libitum, and, and as far as the public is concerned, ad nauseam, in the hope of rivaling it; but they have all either perished in the attempt, or been left far in the rear. It has been the great medical success of the present century, and it is quite certain that no proprietary medicine in this country is widely known, or as generally used.

Ten lightning presses, running incessantly (Sundays excepted,) the whole year through, barely supply the demand for the Illustrated Almanac, in which the nature and uses of the preparations are set forth, the circulation now being over eight millions a year.
