NEW GRENADA.

Prof. George Alloway, who has been principal of the schools at Youngstown, Ohio, for 26 years, is visiting his many old friends and schoolmates in Wells. When he was a boy he had his home with grandpap John Alloway, near New Grenada, and a studious bright scholar of No. 4 school he was. Another boy that Wells may be proud of.

Mrs. Rowe McClain and four children are spending a week here.

John Mills, who left a couple of week ago to superintend a job of concreting in New York state is home on the sick list.

E. G. Smith's circus was the great attraction on Saturday evening.

Among the many who were here from a distance on account of the funeral of Edward Alloway (one of the victims of the explosion at Woodvale) were Harry Truax and wife, Curtis McClain and wife and Daniel Alloway—all of Altoona; Dr. Robert Hunter, of Saxton; Dr. Wm. Hunter, of Reedsville; Dr. C. A. R. McClain, of Mt. Union, and Jesse B. McClain and family, of Huntingdon. This was the largest funeral ever held at Bethel cemetery. There was a host of friends and relatives and eight lodges of I. O. O. F. and one P. O. S. of A. camp were represented. He was in the prime of his usefulness, beloved by all who knew him, a kind husband and father. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss. The benevolent orders of which he was a member, loses a useful and good member. His age was 32 years, 10 months and 7 days.

Prof C. E. Barton and Squire L. H. Wible, of McConnellsburg, were registered last Friday night at the Houck House.

Lizzie Watkin is on the sick list.

Maude Baumgardner, of Wells Tannery, and lady friend, Miss Snafer, visited the family of F. G. Mills Monday evening.

Cromwell Lodge F. & A. M., of Orbisonia, held a banquet or "blow out" at Broadtop City at City House (James R. Edwards proprietor), on Saturday night. A special train on E. B. T. R. R., was secured for the accommodation of the members to Robertsdale and return, where they were met by hacks and conveyed to the city. They were met by that famous Broadtop City Band that furnished excellent music for the occasion. The gathering was in honor of the members who reside at Broadtop City, namely, C. K. Horton, Adam J. Black and Jack Griffith. Forty members of the masonic fraternity were present. Dr. R. B. Campbell, L. C. Cunningham J. A. McDonough, of New Grenada, being among the number. A royal good time was had, and that feast in the dining room, which Mr Edwards and wife well know how to prepare, was a sight; but a sight didn't suffice; a feed was on hand, and just think what 40 able bodied men could do when squared and seated at the table. A collection was taken up among the gang for the band, amounting to $25.50.

Fall Term Opening.

LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

pending battle will force them to unconditional surrender, will emancipate the Republican organization which they still absolutely dominate, and leave the whole people of the State free to govern themselves uncheated and unbossed.

Variant views may be held as to economic theories and federal policies; but all true men may and ought to be filled with consuming ardor for the redemption of the Commonwealth from the grasp of her spoilers.

To this righteous crusade I pledge all my power.

In this crisis we must be more and better than Republicans and Democrats.

We must be champions of the glorious cause of re-establishing constitutional representative free government.

Indifference to civic duty has for forty years kept the State in bondage to an unholy alliance of political corruption and corporate greed. The militant spirit of crusaders is needed.

Theodore Roosevelt, the incarnation of moral back-bone, leads the way.

The example of such stalwart official integrity as that of Mayor Weaver, of Philadelphia, and Mayor Guthrie, of Pittsburg, is an inspiration. Animated by the same lofty sense of patriotic duty, the people of Pennsylvania should wrest the State from control of the men who have despoiled and disgraced her. So long as lawless corporations control political organizations, and so long as these organizations are composed of men banded together for illicit purposes, popular government is a mockery and honest administration is impossible.

We do not aim to destroy, but to regulate and make it impossible for the corporations to do wrong. The first step is to break the political machinery by means of which the wrong is accomplished. Instead of submitting to a system under which the corporations make the laws, we should see to it that the corporations obey the laws justly conceived and fairly drawn so that neither the interests of the public nor the rights of the corporations shall be endangered.

The first duty of the citizen is to free the Commonwealth. Legislative reforms will follow as a logical sequence. While the Chief Executive is powerless to do more than recommend needed legislation, and interpose his veto between the people and legislative wrong, it is essential that he be in hearty sympathy with reform and in no wise obligated to or associated with men whose interests would be subserved by perpetuation of existing conditions.

The realization of genuine reforms depends upon the election of a legislature which will work in harmony with the executive branch of the government.

Our election laws must be so amended as to eliminate the party square on the ballot, restrict the giving of assistance to voters except in cases of physical disability and checkmate fraud by providing for a recount of the ballots when the ends of Justice demand.

The enactment of adequate penal laws, and their rigid enforcement, as a means of correcting the evils which have grown up under the regime of the corrupt machine, are imperatively demanded. Imprisonment for offenses against the public is more essential than the infliction of punishment for crimes against the person. The responsible heads of corporations should be amenable to penal law for granting unfair rebates, for discriminating among shippers and for other transgressions against the public. We demand government by enlightened public opinion in place of government by bosses and corporations. We demand a State government in which those in power shall remember that their authority is delegated by the people. The people are the masters, the office holders are the servants. There should be no place outside a prison for a venal official. Compared with him who uses his political power for dishonest ends, the common thief is almost a respectable citizen. The rule should be—Places of trust for honest men, prison stripes for grafters. The higher the position of the offender, the greater the need of punishing him. The certainty that imprisonment would follow the corrupt use of power, would purge the State of degrading practices.

It is especially incumbent upon Pennsylvania to take vigorous action along these lines. This State was the pioneer in the anti-discrimination movement. It was my privilege more than a quarter of a century ago to assist in wringing from the political powers at Harrisburg an anti-discrimination law. The fight was long, hard and bitter. The people of the oil regions were being reduced to poverty and their property was being confiscated by a conspiracy between the Standard Oil Company, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the bosses. The act was not all that could be desired. The striking out of the imprisonment clause destroyed its effect, and the relations existing between the political machine and the corporations nullified the law in a great degree.

To Pennsylvania belongs also the credit for having taken the first step toward the enactment of the Inter State Commerce law. The idea was born out of the travail of the people who were oppressed by the corporations and robbed by the transportation companies. I had the honor, in 1872, to be a member of a committee to carry to Washington the draft of the bill upon which, thirteen years later, the Interstate Commerce law was modeled. It is worthy of note that the same influences which killed the penal clause of the Pennsylvania anti-discrimination bill, also caused the penal clause to be stricken from the Interstate Commerce act.

For thirty-four years, therefore, have I, and others who are associated with us, fought along the same lines upon which President Roosevelt has taken his stand. Pennsylvanians were first to feel the crushing effects of rebates and discriminations. Pennsylvanians were early victims of the Standard Oil Company, whose methods, gradually extending throughout the country, have borne fruitage in the creation of the many trusts which oppress the public. By Pennsylvanians the shackles will, next fall, be stricken from the State, and the message carried to President Roosevelt that we have struck a mighty blow to aid him in his warfare for pure politics for the rights of the public and for the cause of good government.

In the fight of the people it is noteworthy that among our leaders are found no grafters, none with necks scarred by collar of boss, no franchise grabber, no political contract manipulator, none whose names are associated with political pollution or public infamy. The horde of ballot-box stuffers, macers, camp followers of the army of pillage, are against us to a man. This fact cannot fail to have a powerful moral effect upon the intelligent citizens of the Commonwealth.

Of equal significance is the fact that against us, and our most active foe, is the corporation which more than any other has amassed colossal fortunes by means of special privileges granted at the cost, and in violation of the rights of the people of this State, and by means of advantages seized and enjoyed in defiance of both the moral and the statute law.

As a mean of carrying into effect the principles of good government, additional legislation is needed along the lines of the merit system in the public service, revision of the revenue laws with a view to equalizing taxation, granting to electrical railroads the right to carry freight and express, effective pure food laws, prohibition of the owning by railroads of the products they transport, fixing a maximum rate of two cents per mile for passenger traffic, the abolition of the system of extortion practiced in exacting fifty per cent. excess of the regular rate in the sale of mileage books, and other measures needed to secure to the public a just share of the benefits of progress and the blessings of prosperity.

The closer we get to the people in matters of legislation, the more securely do we safeguard the State against abuses, and the more nearly do we approximate to an ideal republic.

The principles of the referendum afford a practical means for ascertaining the popular will concerning questions of special interest to the public. A referendum
