OLD JONES IS DEAD.

I sat in my window, high overhead,
And heard them say, below in the street:
"I suppose you know old Jones is dead?"
Then the speakers passed, and I heard their feet
Heedlessly walking their o'ward way,
"Dead!" What more could there be to say?

But I sat and pondered what it might mean
Thus to be dead while the world went by;
Did Jones see farther than we have seen?
Was he one with the stars in the watching sky?
Or, down there under the growing grass,
Did he hear the feet of the daylight pass?

Were day time and night time as one to him now,
And grieving and hoping a tale that is told?
A kiss on his lips, or a hand on his brow,
Could he feel them under the churchyard mold,
As he surely had felt them his whole life long,
Though they passed with his youth time, hot and strong?

They called him "Old Jones" when at last he died;
"Old Jones" he had been for many a year;
Yet his faithful memory Time defied,
And dwelt in the days so distant and dear
When first he had found that love was sweet,
And racked not the speed of his hurrying feet.

Does he brood, in the long night under the sod,
On the joys and sorrows he used to know;
Or far in some wonderful world of God,
Where the shining seraphs stand row on row,
Does he wake like a child at the daylight's gleam,
And know that the past was a night's short dream?

Is he dead, and a clod down there below;
Or dead and wiser than any alive?
Which? Ah! who of us all may know,
Or who can say how the dead fell thrive?
But the summer morning is cool and sweet,
And I hear the live folk laugh in the street.

—Louise Chandler Moulton.

The Last Entry on the Political Slate

In one of the newly settled counties of Dakota the few residents were fixing up a political slate so that all would have a place at the public crib.

"There," said one, "I guess about everybody has something except old Tom Billows."

"Might make him constable."

"No, he can't read—can't serve a warrant."

"Justice of the peace?"

"That won't do, because he can't write either. Guess the old man will have to go hungry."

"That won't never work," said another; "he will throw his influence against us. I should think the school board is the place for him."

"Didn't think of that. Put him down for the best place on the board."

Marrying Drinking Men

Marrying men to reform them has never been a successful enterprise on the part of women. Girls are worth too much unmarried to sacrifice themselves to beat sense into the head of any man on God's footstool. Such a man does not wear so easily as a calf. He will go home only to sober up, and then not till the other places are closed. A girl will marry such a man, hoping that on next year he will be better; but the next year he will be worse. There are sober boys enough for all the girls, and there is no need for marrying a drunkard.—New York Sun.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner. Free Trial Bottles of this Standard Remedy at G. M. Shindel's Drug Store.

Interesting Experiences.

Hiram Cameron, Furniture Dealer of Columbus, Ga., tells his experience, thus: "For three years have tried every remedy on the market for Stomach and Kidney Disorders, but got no relief, until I used Electric Bitters. Took five bottles and am now cured, and think Electric Bitters the best Blood Purifier in the world." Major A. B. Reed of West Liberty, Ky., says: "Nothing has ever done me so much good as Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by G. M. Shindel.

MORE APPRENTICES NEEDED.

The Christian Advocate in treating of the labor question, says: "One of the greatest crimes against the youth of our country is the refusal of the trades-unions to allow boys to learn trades. It is evident to every one that every boy, and girl, too, for that matter, they should have some trade or profession by which they can earn an honest living. The general tendency of the times is too much towards looking upon manual labor as degrading, or at least, as a last resort. There are thousands of young men who would be glad to learn a good trade, and who would do their work well, if they only had an opportunity to thoroughly learn the trade. No greater tyranny was ever seen than this attempt to prevent the thousands of young from preparing themselves properly for the duties of life; and no greater display of selfishness than to get into a good trade and then in order to control the question of wages by limiting the number of laborers refuse to let any others enjoy the same opportunities. Such conduct so outrages all sense of what is right that we feel like seeing some move made to destroy this tyranny. Let the doors of all trades, all professions, be opened wide, and let each select that which suits him best; and if any one seems unwilling to learn a trade let him be urged to do so, instead of prevented."
