Women as Beasts of Burden.

It has been said that women and dogs, harnessed together, do more hauling in Germany than the railroads and wagons put together. Throughout the German Empire women and dogs may be seen harnessed together to small carts, pulling heavy loads, all through the country. The men of the family are in the army, and the peasant women have the home work to do.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's New Double-track Lire to Atlantic City.

With the new schedule of early summer trains in effect May 28th, the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad practically opens to travel its new double track line from Camden and Broad Street Station to Atlantic City.

During the Winter and Spring the line from Camden to Atlantic City has been actually rebuilt. The old light rails have been replaced by new steel rails weighing one hundred pounds to the yard, and an entirely new road bed been constructed by the grading necessary for the double tracks.

The grade crossing over the tracks of the Jersey Southern Railway at Winslow has been eliminated by the building of an elevated roadway high above the intersecting tracks, and thus enabling the fastest trains to pass this point without slackening speed. An absolutely new roadbed has been constructed across the meadows. Upon the magnificent foundation of the old Camden & Atlantic roadbed, which has been building by the accumulated work of forty years, thousands of carloads of gravel and sand have been placed to the depth of six feet from the surface up, so that the tracks are elevated above the height of the storm tides. In order that the elevated tracks may the better withstand the action of storm tides, canals have been opened at intervals to carry the accumulated water beneath the roadway and the exposed sides of the embankment have been thickly coated with the heavy and adhesive soil dug from the meadows. The new track is as firm as the old ever was, and with these protections and reinforcements it will stand firmly the brunt of any ordinary storm. The new roadway has been coated with an application of oil so as free it from the dust naturally incident to the new grading.

Under these improved conditions the West Jersey and Seashore's double-tracked lines to Atlantic City form the finest and best line of railroad to any Summer resort in America. The speed of trains both from Broad Street Station and Camden will be materially accelerated and the time of transit proportionately reduced. The rolling stock and equipment will be fully up to the high standard maintained by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Summer traveler to Atlantic City by this popular route will enjoy the finest facilities offered by any railroad.
