Weekly Review of the Markets.

OFFICE OF THE POST,
FRIDAY MORNING, June 30th, 1848.

We have but little to say to the readers of the Weekly, in relation to commercial matters. There is but little doing in the city, though perhaps quite as much as could be expected at this season. We notice but little change in prices. By a reference to our report it will be seen that Flour is declining. There is some decline in other articles, but nothing of great importance. The canal lines appear to be enjoying unusual prosperity for the season, and we presume the companies are making as much money for their private purses as before the burning of the Aqueduct. The greatest sufferers by that fire are the farmers of the west, whose produce, &c. have been reduced in prices for want of facilities in reaching the Atlantic markets.

Have t is close upon us, and we notice farmers rushing in Flour, Butter, &c.; and they are just beginning to make purchases of Groceries, &c. for the season. This gives some activity to business in the city, but in a few weeks all will be dull enough.

ASHES.—There is very little doing; the market is well supplied with all kinds. We quote this:—Pots and Scorchings 3½@3¾; Saleratus, 6;@6½c; Pearls 6½@6¾c; Soda Ash 12@1½c.

ALE.—Regular sales at Breweries at $7@8.

BACON.—The market has been somewhat steady, though we occasionally heard of sales during the week, which presented a wide range in prices. Hams were generally sold at 4c. by the cask; some sales at 3½c, and 4½c. Shoulders 2½@2½c. It is not expected that any change will occur for some weeks; the completion of the Freeport Aqueduct and the turn of the season will no doubt cause an advance. We frequently hear dealers say "If I had money I would buy Bacon at present rates," which shows a confidence in the improving tendency.

BUTTER.—There is now a very good demand for good Butter in kegs or jars, and we think the prices have improved some since last week. Sales have been made at 8@10c.

BEANS.—Nothing doing; market well supplied with good quality small white, but no demand; offered at 85c.

BEESWAX.—We heard some little enquiry for Beeswax, with one sale at 20c. cash.

BUCKETS.—There has been a fair demand for Beaver Buckets; and receipts continue liberal. Sales regular at $2,20@2,25.

BROOMS.—The market is well supplied, with good, bad and indifferent qualities. Sales present a wide range; $0,75@2,25.

CORN MEAL.—There have been regular sales of kiln dried Corn Meal at $1,62 per bbl., from stores; of Common we hear of numerous sales of small lots from first hands at 37c. per bu.

COTTON YARNS, &c.—The following is a card from one of the manufactories:—

FLAX.—Sales at 6½c per lb.

FLOUR.—The tendency is still downward. There is but little hope of an advance this season. We understand that the lines refuse to receipt through to Philadelphia at less than $1,12½, and as prices are declining in the east, the shipping business will be suspended for the present. The quotations for yesterday are; from first hands, $3,25@3,50; from store $4,00.

—Since the above was written we have received a Telegraphic Despatch from New York, which reports Flour on the advance. We have also noticed that large lots have been put into keel boats for shipment east. Perhaps an improvement may take place in a few days.
