WILL BE PUBLISHED on Saturday, July 29th, by Morse, 85 Fourth street, Pittsburgh, a new humorous work, entitled POLLY VOO FRANSAY. It will be filled with southern scenes and stories of irresistible humor. If any one wants to be amused by what may be called right down tearing fun, of the most direct and decided kind, he cannot do better than buy a copy of Polly Voo Fransay. The cost of the book is only 25 cents, and it is certainly worth considerably more merely as a means of promoting health by laughter. The stories are depicted with truthfulness, one by a writer who possesses a quick perception of the ludicrous, and a keen relish for every variety of humor.
The author is well known as a soldier, a man of deep knowledge of human nature, with keen wit and eloquence and proficiency in composition. The book is written after the model of Carey & Hart's series of humorous American works, and excites laughter while it instructs. This work will undoubtedly have an enormous sale, and to those at a distance, I would say, send in your orders soon. Address, M. F. MORSE, Publisher,

MORGAN'S WORM KILLER is far superior to all other remedies for Worms.
June 14th, 1848.
This may certify that I gave two of my children, three and five years old, two teaspoonfuls of Morgan's Worm Killer, to each of them. The youngest passed 64 large worms, the smallest 3 or 4 inches long, the largest about 8 inches. The eldest passed so large a number that we could not begin to count them. I have used all the popular remedies before for worms, but nothing has given with a clear conscience, Morgan's Worm Killer is far superior to any other before the public.
