Surplus Milk Is Problem Interstate Members Told

"Class one utilization will be less in the coming year than in the past year, and farmers will have to assume some of the blame for the surplus milk situation", dairymen were told by Dr. James Honan, asst. mgr. of the Interstate Milk Producers Cooperative at the annual meeting of district 11 at Quarryville on Thursday.

Speaking to the nearly 300 dairymen and their families, Honan cited an example of a cooperative group in Maryland producing slightly over a million pounds of milk on 106 farms. After the farmers installed bulk tanks, 68 of the producers produced over a million pounds of milk. Honan said that temptation is great to enlarge herds to help pay the costs of installing bulk handling equipment but he cautioned, "We must be careful not to produce more milk than the total market can use."

Honan said, "We in management can do nothing unless we are directed by the membership of the cooperative." Interstate has gone on record as opposing any relating of Philadelphia milk prices to the prices in the Midwest.

The Cooperative recognized four dairy club members for their outstanding work during the past year. Receiving show halters were Donald and Paul Trimble, Quarryville R1; Lucille Kreider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kreider, of Quarryville R1; and Carol Ann Krantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Krantz, New Providence R1.

Arrangements were in charge of Golden Davis, Oxford, fieldman for Interstate. Chairman was Daniel Trimble, Quarryville R1.

Poultrymen Schedule Meetings

Election of new directors and a resume of the past year's activities will be the two major items of business at the annual meeting of the Lancaster County Poultry Association scheduled for Monday night February 1st at the Poultry Center, 340 Roseville Road, Lancaster.

Speakers for the event, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., will be Robert F. Williams, district sales manager for the Lancaster Newspapers.

A series of six meetings with county poultrymen to try to develop ways to promote the poultry industry are being planned by the county association.

Several of the regional meetings have been scheduled and others are to follow in the New Holland, Denver, Quarryville, Lancaster, Elizabethtown, and Penryn areas. The meeting in the Quarryville area is planned for the night of February 9 in the Vocational Agriculture building at Quarryville. Another will be held on Feb. 15 at 7:45 in the Penryn fire hall.

The central committee from the poultry association is composed of Levi Brubaker, Mark Myer, Daniel K. Good, and Harry S. Sloat.

Carcass Better, Gains Slower With Alfalfa Hay For Pigs

Two series of experiments were conducted by ARS at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md. Researchers studied the effects of adding 16 or 28 per cent dehydrated alfalfa meal to the rations of swine weighing 100, 125, and 150 pounds and the effects of reducing protein levels during finishing in feedlots.

Carcass backfat, bacon thickness, and the percentage of total fat were significantly reduced by feeding extra alfalfa to hogs of all weights tested.

Progressive decreases in rate of gain and feed use efficiency took place at all weights, however, where the alfalfa content of the diet was increased from 4 to 16 or 28 per cent. Rate of gain dropped from 1.65 pounds per day with 4 per cent alfalfa to 1.55 and 1.40 pounds per day as the alfalfa content increased.

At the same time, in hogs of 100 and 125 pounds live weight, it took more feed (4.12 pounds compared with 4.22 and 4.59 pounds) to produce a pound of gain as the alfalfa content rose. Adding extra alfalfa in the diet of the 150-pound hogs improved carcass grade and increased carcass length but produced only slight effects on rate of gain and feed efficiency.

Protein level, in the other experiment, caused no changes in rate of gain or feed efficiency. The higher protein level did reduce the percentage of carcass fat and increased the percentage of preferred cuts of meat. In this test, the protein level of one lot of pigs was reduced from 18 to 15 per cent when the pigs reached 125 pounds, and another group of hogs had the protein level of their diet reduced from 14 to 11 per cent.

PREVENT EGG BREAKAGE

Care in handling can prevent egg breakage on the farm, says F. H. Leuschner, Penn State extension poultry specialist. Collect eggs 3 or 4 times a day. Do not fill egg baskets too full. Keep records that will show the results of care in handling and its effects on breakage.

Read the Lancaster Farming Paper, Lancaster County's own farm paper.

KILL STUMPS & BRUSH

Winter is a good time to kill brush and stumps. Penn State extension specialists recommend using a basal or dormant spray. You get effective root kill and don't have to worry about damaging growing crops with the chemicals.

USE A BROOM

When heavy snow falls on your ornamental evergreens and other shrubs, use a broom to remove it, suggests A. O. Rasmussen, Penn State extension ornamental horticulturist.

PROTECT FRUIT TREES

Don't let rabbits destroy fruit trees. Carl Bittner, Penn State extension pomologist, suggests using wire cylinders of hardware cloth, at least 2 feet high and loose enough to keep rabbits away from all parts of the tree trunk. Use a stake to prevent the wire from rubbing the trunk.

CARE FOR BATTERY

Cold weather puts an additional load on the battery of your tractor, truck, or automobile. Penn State extension agricultural engineers say it is especially important to have the battery fully charged and to take care of every need.

MULCH AROUND SHRUBS

Where there is no snow and the ground is frozen, some form of mulch should be placed around shrubs.
