THE CITY POST.

SATURDAY MORNING.....NOVEMBER 27.

DEATH OF JUDGE FORWARD.—JUDGE SHALER, on Wednesday, in announcing the death of Judge Forward, to the District Court, delivered a beautiful, but brief address on the character of the deceased. After the opening of the Court, Mr. SHALER said:

May it please your Honor, at the request of many of my fellow-members of the Bar, and as its oldest member, I rise to announce officially, a dispensation of Providence, which is well known to the public, and afflicting to us all: the decease of that great, venerable and distinguished Judge, who was so long your colleague. If there lazy individual member of the Bar, who labors under the influence of strong emotions on this occasion, it is myself. The lamented deceased is the last of those great, eminent and worthy men, who were practising when I entered upon my professional career. He died at the age of sixty-seven, and was admitted to the Bar in 1806, young, eager, active, able, eloquent, but poor. Sir, there were giants in those days, and to those giants Walter Forward opposed his indomitable courage and energy. Those were the days of Mr. Ross, Mr. Sample, Judge Wilkins, Mr. Campbell, Judge Baldwin, Mr. Foster and other distinguished men, who stood at the head of their profession. Mr. Forward had to contend with such men as these, in his rising career, but he brought to the profession a new feature—he was an idealist, a man of genius, and with an uncommon strength of imagination. In addition to this, his heart was susceptible of the finest feelings.

Instead of sinking down to his case, he raised it up to the level of his own greatness. He had the highest idea of justice, and therein was to be found the basis of his success.—His was the imagination of a poet, with the heart of an orator, and in all the cases in which he engaged, he himself believed that they were founded on justice; thus, was he enabled to enter into the contest with those great men, and to stand high at the Bar. In all the particulars of his public and private life, he was the same. In colloquial powers, he was not classical, but a classic. When he conversed, of Greece, you seemed to enter with him into the portals of the Acropolis; when he spoke to you of Socrates, one of his disciples appeared to emerge from the groves of the Academy; when of Thermopylæ, Leonidas appeared before you in his immortal panoply; when he alluded to Rome, a conscript father was in your midst. It seemed as if some great and mighty man was raised from the mausoleum to enlighten this latter age.

He had attained high honors in political life; you all know how many important offices he has filled, with credit to himself and benefit to his country; but, sir, he was not a man to worship party. The image he worshipped was not made of mortal clay; he formed it in his imagination, elevating it up to the great and sublime; and when he had touched its lips with a live coal, taken from the altar of patriotism, it became worthy of his own incense; and then, by his high powers of eloquence, he persuaded the people to fall down before it and worship it. He lived but as other men lived; he thought not as others thought. At last, after all these honors had been conferred upon him, he was called to the Bench and became your colleague, and what a colleague! You know how kind he has always been to the members of the Bar, and they are well aware of the justice and equity which governed his actions.

He has passed away! The places which have known him, will know him no longer. His death was like his life—cool, calm and collected he expired. I was with him all nearly his last hour. He died, as I trust we will all die, full of christian faith, with all the dignity and decorum which become a christian man. He is gone, leaving only his great example. He was an honest man, an incorruptible advocate, and an upright Judge. May we all profit by his example! may he rest in peace.

I move that, in accordance with the usual custom, this court do now adjourn. It is not a bereavement which happens every day, and this court should adjourn.

After the conclusion of Mr. Shaler's remarks, Judge Williams responded as follows:

This dispensation has come upon us so unexpectedly, that I have no words to express the sorrow of heart I feel. When I left Judge Forward last evening, it was with the confident expectation, on my part, if not on his, that I should find him better this morning. But he has gone! and his death is to us all a great private, as well as a great public calamity.

It is not a time for me to speak of him in the way of eulogy. I can only grieve for his death. When I think of him it is not of his talents, his genius, or his acquisitions—great as these confessedly were—but of his virtues, his kindness of heart. He was one of the kindest men I ever knew. Upon my coming upon the Bench, the distance caused by the great difference in our ages and acquisitions, soon dwindled away by familiarity and the most unreserved intercourse, and he was to me a brother, and more than a brother—ever ready with his advice and counsel.

Judge Forward had a strong sense of justice and right, and he was most conscientious in the discharge of duty—His great purpose—I speak of his judicial life, with which our intimacy commenced—was to do what was right and just. He loved what was right, what was just, what was true, what was beautiful and what was good.

Judge Forward had a strong and abiding faith in an overruling and superintending Providence. There was something personal in his idea of a Divine Providence. He did not simply believe that God rules the world by fixed laws, but that he governs, directs, and controls all things, and all events, and that he watches over, guides and protects all men with a father's care, and a father's love. He had that spirit of faith in a Divine Providence, which led him to believe that "not a sparrow falls to the ground without the notice of our Heavenly Father, and that 'the very hairs of our head are all numbered.'" It was for his kindness of heart, his largeness of soul, his purity of purpose, and his strong faith in a divine superintending Providence, that I loved and admired him.

In view of his death, and in respect to his memory, it is meet that this court shall now adjourn.

It is, therefore, ordered that this court now adjourn till Saturday next, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

The above proceedings, which had been prepared for our issue of Thursday morning, were accidentally omitted in our paper of that day.

CRACKER FACTORY.—We paid a visit the other day to the Cracker Factory of Messrs. Rhodes & Verner, on First st., near Grant's street. Few persons here, are aware of the extent to which this business is carried on in our city, or of the ingenious and simple machinery which is used in the manufacture of the various kinds of articles which are classed under the general head of "crackers."

The firm noticed above has been in operation less than a year, and yet the extent to which they carry their business is surprising. They occupy as a manufacturing establishment, a large three story brick. The lower story is used for the manufacture of their articles of merchandize, and the two upper stories as packing and warerooms. Sometimes may be formed of the extent of their business, when we state that they constantly employ fifteen hands; in the course of a day use upwards of barrels of the finest flour, and turn out on an average about one hundred boxes, kegs and barrels of crackers.

The dough is kneaded by hand, but rolled and cut to the proper shape, by ingenious machinery, driven by steam—The ovens are heated by furnaces, under the ovens, and thus a constant and regular heat is obtained. This renders the otherwise tedious operation of baking, a work of but little trouble. What is most to be admired, about the establishment, however, is the neatness and cleanliness which pervades it throughout.

On the second floor, the crackers are packed in boxes, and made ready for shipment. The articles are packed and manufactured in such a manner, that they are capable of preservation for a considerable length of time.

Messrs. Rhodes & Verner, though engaged in this business but the short time mentioned, export into adjoining States these articles, to a considerable extent. The surrounding counties are principally supplied by this firm, and large quantities of crackers are also shipped down the river for consumption in that quarter. The firm receives orders for their manufactures as far West as Evansville, Indiana.

The enterprise of the proprietors of the Duquesne Cracker Factory, (Messrs. JOSHUA RHODES and JAMES D. VERNER) is well worthy the encouragement it receives. It is the intention, we believe, of the gentlemen named, to enlarge their field of operations in a short time.

THE RESOLUTIONS passed at the Temperance Convention on Wednesday, advance, in strong language, the views of the Convention in regard to the necessity existing for the enactment of a law similar to the Maine Liquor Law. A committee consisting of five legal gentlemen and the Senator from this county, was appointed to prepare a prohibitory liquor law, to be submitted to the next Legislature for adoption. The following committee was appointed, who will submit a draft of their proposed law at the meeting on the 6th of December: Hon. Judge Williams, Thos. McConnell, Thos. J. Bigham, John M. Kirkpatrick, John Glenn, Dr. J. Crawford and George Parsis.

The following resolution was passed in regard to the death of Judge Forward:

Resolved, That this Convention has heard with profound regret, of the sudden death of the Hon. Walter Forward, who during a long life in our midst, has ever, by his example and eloquence, been a uniform and earnest advocate of all measures designed to promote the suppression of intemperance.

DEATH FROM MANIA POTU.—We find the following notice in the Greensburgh Argus:—John Moore, a Stage Driver, died at Blythe's tavern about five miles west, of Greensburg, on Saturday last, of mania potu. On Sabbath his remains were conveyed by railroad to Pittsburgh, where his relatives reside. The deceased was a young man, and was married about three years ago, to a young lady of Pittsburgh. The marriage proved an unhappy one, and he had separated from his wife for some time.

FUNERAL OF JUDGE FORWARD.—The funeral of Judge Forward, was attended by a few friends of the deceased, in carriages, to the family burial place, in Peebles township, and by the greater portion of the members of the bar. The funeral procession moved from the residence of Mr. Forward's son-in-law, Mr. Marks, on Wylie street.

FIGHT.—William Johnston and Lewis P. Holmes were committed by the Mayor, on Thanksgiving day, the former in default of a fine of $25, and the latter in default of one of $5, imposed on them for disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

AN INVITATION.—At the Temperance Convention on Wednesday, an invitation, on motion of Thomas Steel, Esq., was extended to Hon. Neal Dowe, to visit Western Pennsylvania.

THE LADIES of the First Cumberland Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh, will hold a festival in Lafayette Hall, on Thursday, the 2d of December.

THE SPLENDID STOCK of Ladies' Dress Goods, has arrived at M'Kenna's Auction House, and will be offered at private sale, this day.

PATENTS.—A patent has been reissued to Cadwallader Evans, of this city, "for improvement in steam boilers, and apparatus to be used on board of steamboats, to prevent the explosion of boilers." The invention of Mr. Evans was first patented on the 19th of April, 1839; and the reissue bears the date of November 23, 1852.

A patent, which has been described before was also issued during the week, ending on the 9th, to Solomon Shutter, of Allegheny city, on improvements in horse shoe making.

While speaking of patents, we may as well notice an invention called "Shurgart's & Larimer's double acting Railroad car axles and wheels, which has been invented by Mr. John Shurgart, of this city. Those who have seen a model of this improvement, states that it promises to be an invention of great utility. It is described as follows:

"The wheel revolves, as well as the axle, and therefore when the car meets with any obstruction, the wheel revolves on the axle, and thus prevents the car from being thrown off the track. In going around a curve, the wheel revolves as well as the axel, and thus prevents the dragging of one wheel, which is so destructive to the rail and the wheel, and so great an obstruction to the train. A car thus constructed, it seems to us would pass around a curve as easily as on a straight line, and with no more wear and tear to the machinery." The proprietors are preparing a track for an exhibition of the advantages of the improvement.

DEATH OF CAPT. HAZLETT.—Our readers are aware of the death of this excellent man. The following paragraph from the Gazette, gives the particulars:—

We are pained to learn by telegraphic despatch, received here on Tuesday last, that Capt. James Hazlett, of the steamer Hartford, was killed by the falling of the jack-staff, while lying at the landing at Portsmouth. It seems that the Hartford and the Forest Rose had landed at the port together, and the latter boat, in backing out, by some means or other, knocked down the Hartford's jack-staff, which struck Capt. Hazlett on the head, killing him instantly. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him, and leaves a young wife and a large circle of acquaintances to mourn and lament his death.

OFFICIAL LIST.—The Western Agriculturist publishes a list of the medals and plats awarded by the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, as recommended by the committees of the State Fair, held at Cleveland. In this list, we find the following premiums awarded to persons in this neighborhood: Singer, Hartman & Co., silver medal, for patent axels; Heron & Conwell, two bronze medals, for water and steam gauges and brass work; M'Elroy & Rock, of Washington, Pa., bronze medal, for sash door fainer; J. P. Brown, Monongahela city Washington county, bronze medal, for lot of leather; James Reed, silver medal, for a set of instruments.

THE FREE DEMOCRACY.—The Free Democracy of this City met yesterday morning in the Diamond Hall, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Mayor, and temporarily organized by calling Mr. James Robb to the chair and appointing Charles A. Hugus, Secretary. After the transaction of some unimportant business, a motion was made that the Convention should adjourn until Monday, on account of the death of Judge Forward, which motion was carried, and the Convention accordingly adjourned to meet again on Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

DAVY CROCKETT.—T. B. Peterson & Co., of Philadelphia, have issued a fine edition of this eccentric man's life, as written by himself. In the rude style of the author, a great many observations of general utility are made. In one of his journeys, Crockett passed through this city, of which he expresses quite a favorable opinion. He says, "the marks of industry are everywhere visible in Pittsburgh. It is a perfect workshop, and is increasing every year in extent, population and beauty." Miner has the work for sale; price 50 cents.

LARCENY.—William Wolff was committed to prison yesterday, by the Mayor, to answer a charge of larceny preferred against him by Thomas Graham. Wolff is charged with being connected with three others, in the robbery of the canal boats Rolling Billow and Iowa. The robberies are charged to have taken place between the 1st day of May and the 15th day of November, and the property stolen amounts in value to $200. One other person connected with the robbery is yet at large.

OBTAINING GOODS.—Joseph Saller was committed to prison yesterday, by Ald. Major, for obtaining goods under false pretences. It was charged by Moses Ward, a clerk in the store where the goods were obtained, that Saller obtained $50 worth of merchandize, by falsely pretending that another person, whom he gave as security, was indebted to him in that amount. Saller is proprietor of a store in Bayardstown.

A SPECIAL SALE of Fancy articles, jewelry, gold watches, French clock, twist fowling piece, fine cutlery and stationery, suitable for Christmas gifts, will be held at M'Kenna's Auction House, this evening. We refer our readers to the advertisement.

RECOVERED.—We are glad to learn that our friend PRYOR, the obliging assistant to his Honor, Mayor Guthrie, in dispensing justice to the denizens of the smoky city, has recovered from his late illness, and is once more at his post.

GILDENEVET & Co., of Fourth street, have sent us the Life of Crockett, illustrated with numerous engravings. The volume is well worth reading, written as it was, by the actor of the events which the book narrates.

FURTHER HEARING.—James and Henry Eckenrod were each committed yesterday, for a further hearing on the charge of larceny, which had been preferred against them by Thomas Graham.

GAS IN ALLEGHENY.—Gas will be introduced into the pipes, now laid, in Allegheny City, on Tuesday next, on which occasion the stores will be illuminated—with a new article of light.

DISCHARGED.—Joseph Saller and Maxwell Cornelius were discharged from prison yesterday, by order of the County Commissioner.

GOOD FOR TWO DAYS.—On Thanksgiving Day and yesterday, there were fifteen commitments for drunkenness, to the county jail.

VALUABLE FURNACE PROPERTY FOR SALE

THE undersigned offer for sale that valuable Iron property known as JEFFERSON FURNACE, situated in Clarion county, Pa. This property consists of FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY ACRES OF LAND; on which is erected one Furnace Stack, Steam Engine, and the necessary buildings for the carrying on of the Furnace business.

The Furnace has been in successful operation for several years. The ore on the land in the vicinity, is convenient to the Furnace, and in great abundance, and much of the land is still covered with timber, which abounds in the immediate neighborhood. The Furnace is arranged for blast both by steam and water power, being situated on Beaver creek, within three miles of Clarion river, and consequently in the midst of the great iron region of that country, and near the surveyed route of the Allegheny Valley Railroad. This property will be sold on liberal terms, and an indisputable title given. If not sold by the 10th of December next, it will then be open for rent. Apply to I. PAINTER & CO., Liberty street, Pittsburgh; or to SAMUEL F. PLUMER, Callaundyn Post Office, Clarion county, Pa.

COMMERCIAL POST.

DAILY REVIEW OF PITTSBURGH MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY MORNING POST,
Thursday, November 27, 1852.

Yesterday was one of those wet, and otherwise disagreeable days; notwithstanding, however, the inclemency of the weather, business was quite stirring, both on the streets and on the wharf. From present appearances we may look for a large freshet in our rivers—it having rained pretty steadily since noon yesterday. We notice, with pleasure, our first class of steamers at the wharf, receiving freight and passengers for below. Our Allegheny boats have also hauled up, ready to receive freight for the head waters of the Allegheny, as soon as there is a sufficiency of water, which is hourly looked for.

ASHES.—We note sales at 3¼ for Pots; Pearls 5½ to 5⅝; Saleratus 4¾ to 5¼.

FLOUR.—Receipts yesterday were large. Prices exhibited less firmness than previously; sellers were disposed to accept a slight decline. We have sales of 200 bbls @ $4; 200 do $4,05; 39 @ $4; 150 from stores at $4,12@4,25; 100 bbls do $4; 50 bbls from wagon $4,12 for extra.

SOAP.—We notice a further sale of 100 boxes Cin. at 4½ cash.

COFFEE.—Sales of 150 bags, in two lots, at 9¾—time.

OATS.—Sales of 218 bushels at 33c; 200 do. 33½.

APPLES.—Sales of 50 bbls from store at $1,75.
