DAILY MORNING POST.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.....JANUARY 11.

SYMPTOMS OF REBELLION.—The Melbourne Argus of the 11th, in calling attention to "the Estimates" for carrying on the Government there for the fiscal year, exclaims:

"Two thousand police now stare us in the face in one page; six hundred soldiers in another; myriads of clerks stand in frightful array upon the third; in a fourth, we find ourselves aghast at an army of four hundred and seventy gaolers, warders, and turn-keys! Millions and millions of expenditure glare upon us on all sides, till money seems to lose its value, and the paper is amply blotched with unmeaning representatives of numbers.

In such stupefaction as this we must have made our calculations of comparisons with the colonies of North America; and we accordingly were betrayed into a gross error, in showing the proportion which the expense of Government in those colonies bore to that of our own. The estimates of our expenditure for the next year are about fifty-five times as great as that at the time of the revolt, for the whole thirteen States of North America put together; but when we take their three millions of population, in comparison with our 250,000, the annual expense of government per head is about five hundred and sixty times to the Victorian Colonist what it used to be to the American.

And yet that people were not only "governed, but well governed," according to Adam Smith. At five hundred and sixty times the cost, can anybody say as much for us? Or will they ever be able to say it while we tolerate such pulpit nuisances as Executive Councillors, who have the impudence to tell us that laws are not enforced, because they are not laws, but "demonstrations."

GREAT CONFLAGRATION IN LOUISVILLE—IMMENSE DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.—We are indebted to the House Telegraph office for a despatch announcing a most disastrous fire in Louisville. It says that last evening at 7 o'clock, a fire originated in the box store of Sherley & Co's liquor store, these communicating with Moorhead's, Basham's & Buchanan's steamboat offices, all of which were destroyed. At eight o'clock, the flames were still extending, and it was thought the whole Commercial Row would be consumed. At last accounts the fire was fast creeping in towards Fifth street, threatening the buildings in that street.—Cin. Enquirer.
