DAILY MORNING POST.

TUESDAY MORNING.....MARCH 21.

Extraordinary Discovery.

Experience has proved that those in easy circumstances, or those who pursue employments within doors, use their lungs but little, and breathe but little air in the chest; and by the foundation for the loss of stature and beauty. All this can be obviated by a little attention to the manner of breathing. Recollect the lungs are like a bladder in their construction and can stretch open to double their size with perfect safety, giving a noble chest and perfect immunity from consumption. The agent and only agent required, is the common air we breathe, supposing however that no obstacle exists external to the chest, such as twining it about with stays, or having the shoulders lie upon it. On rising from bed in the morning, place yourself in an erect posture, with your head thrown back, and your shoulders entirely off from the chest, then inhale all the air that can be got in; hold your breath, and throw your arms off behind; hold your breath as long as possible. Repeat these long breaths as often as you please. Done in a cold bath is much better, because the air is much denser, and will act much more powerfully in expanding the chest. Exercising the chest in this manner, it will become flexible and expansible, and will enlarge the capacity and lungs.—Ex. paper.

Improved Non-Explosive Camphene Lamps.

HAVING PURCHASED THE right for the above LAMP in the counties of ALLEGHENY, BEAVER, WASHINGTON, FAYETTE, and GREENE, we are prepared to furnish Lamps, or sell the right to responsable persons. These Lamps are so constructed as to render explosion impossible, and the public may rest satisfied that they will be safe and reliable. NEW PATENT MAGAN PENS.—This important invention removes the most obstacles to the universal use of the Steel Pen, viz: their rigidity, and their rapid destruction. The Magan Pen, (which, upon minutely examining the quill pen in the act of writing, it will be seen that the action is compound, consisting, first, of a gentle yielding from the side pressure, and second, the nib of the pen, and, second, the "scissors" action, or spreading open of the points to permit the flow of the ink. This compound movement has been the great desideratum heretofore never have had—gives to the quill its flexibility, and that peculiar springy action which is so much prized by all, and which seems to suit the action of the muscles of the fingers; yielding, as it does, to the slightest pressure, without damaging the hand, the pen, or the paper, and without impairing the hand. Its certainty on the part of its capability of flexibility, and they have had reason to be well pleased with the results they have found to attain it. The inventors of the Patent Magan Pen found, from a series of experiments, that the ordinary steel pen was defective in this respect been erroneous—that no combination of "cracks" and "piercings" could produce the desired action, if it were made of the best of steel. Having arrived at this point being gained, they avoided the plan hitherto adopted for attaining flexibility, and, as a consequence, they have not been able they managed to combine the "scissors" action of the ordinary steel pen with the agreeable flexibility of the quill. The pens are made in the usual sizes of less magnitude, but still of great importance to the consumers of steel pens. Every one is aware of the correctness of the tin on a fine quill, which is found to be the greatest care, it specially destroys the delicately smooth surface of the tin. So strong is this feeling, that the utility of the steel pen, that thousands are induced to purchase gold pens, at an enormous cost, almost exclusively because of the self-acting action of the quill. The inventors have removed this evil by their compound metal, which possesses all the qualities of the quill, with the additional merit of resisting the chemical action of the ink.

These Pens will last many thousands times longer than the Steel Pen, thus rendering them decidedly cheaper.
