DAILY MORNING POST.

MONDAY MORNING:::::::::::FEBRUARY 12

DECIDEDLY RICH!—A short time ago the opera of the "Barber of Seville" was produced at the Grand Opera of Paris. A certain Mr. Lecomte, being a great admirer of Rossini in general, and the "Barber of Seville" in particular, purchased a ticket for a reserved seat by paying five francs. He very quietly looked for his seat, and after some trouble found it—occupied by a gentleman, who peremptorily refused to give it up. Mr. Lecompte very quietly went to the Commissary of Police, who is generally, in Paris, very easily found—entered a complaint, and commenced a suit against the management. He claimed damages to the amount of 150 francs for being deprived from witnessing the performance of his favorite opera, and demanded a repetition as soon as possible for his own special benefit, and in addition 20 francs damages for every day's delay. Judgment was given in his favor, and the management was glad to settle with him by paying a few hundred francs. This very naturally led to some inquiries about the person who refused to give up the seat, and after a great deal of trouble it was found that said seat had been occupied by a dead head. The management, in all probability, had given him the seat expecting that he would quietly submit to being turned out if it were wanted.
