DAILY MORNING POST.

THURSDAY MORNING.....MARCH 8.

Machine Poetry.

Air—Ben Bolt.

Oh, don't you remember Alf. Keevil, friend Joe;
Alf. Keevil, the Hatter up town;
Who smiles with delight when you give him a call,
And who did up your order "so brown."

In the neat Hat Store on Wood street, Joe,
Near the new stone Church so fine,
He has filled up his shelves with Hats black and gray
And "Freedom's Flag" is his sign.

Under the trees' cool shade, Old Joe,
That spread their branches for all,
Together we've stood in the noon day time
And gazed on his Banner "so tall."

Many hatters have tried in vain, Old Joe,
But their efforts can never compare;
For the customers flock round his store to gaze
On his various styles so rare.

There's a change in the times I know, Friend Joe;
They have changed from the old to the new;
And I feel in the depths of my pocket the truth,
That prices down town have changed too.

Ten years have passed, or more, Old Joe
Since Alf. Keevil's name was first hailed;
And his store is deemed a blessing in truth,
For in "fits" he has never yet failed. [febo
