GOOT EYE WHISKY.

BY JOHN B. WILLIAMS.

If a body drinks a body
Mit some goot old rye,
Unt if a body take a toddy,
Sometimes he get shdy,
Or it makes sicker, radder mulley,
Tricks till he gets hicky,
Vatever dis licker should be pallin'!
So much foot ain't.

CHORUS—ALL SINGS.

Shmy baby loves his toddy,
Frandy, gin or vine;
Unt dey say he has got his boppy,
Goot old rye lah mine.

Down in dje shdreet I often stank
Some Dutchmen on der shbree,
Unt if one of dem should shtand a treat,
Its good old rye for me;
Of all der drinks dare vunce I think
So goot vas one lah try,
Dere boiling vas your shbirits sinks,
Can raise dem lite old rye.

CHORUS—ALL SING.

Shmy poddy loves his toddy,
Frandy, gin or vine;
Unt shmy one has got his boppy,
Goot old rye lah mine.

Ven funds ish flush, den off I rush
To Nymdorf's liquor shdore,
Put dere I never trinks too mushh
A quart shmall and no more;
Ven on der shbree I happy be,
Dough in der shreets I lie,
Unt all der world is nix to me,
Ve trinking goot old rye.

CHORUS—ALL SING.

Shmy poddy loves his toddy,
Dun vy shouldn't I,
Unt shmy vife has got his hobby,
Mine lah good old rye.

BARGAINS.

BY MRS. GEORGE WASHINGTON WILLYS.

There—I've blistered the soles of my feet, besides wearing a hole right through these new gaiters. Somebody has stolen my parasol, too, or else I've laid it down somewhere and forgotten it. If Mr. Hazel appreciated all the trouble I take to save a cent or two for him, it would be some comfort. What's the use of being economical in this world? Is that you in the hall, Hazel? Do come in here, and see what a bargain I've got to-day. Twenty yards of merino for fifty cents a yard, and only this little hole in the middle of every fold. I got it cheap, you see, because it is damaged. What do I want of merino this hot summer weather? Well, I suppose winter's coming some day, isn't it? and it will be the very thing then. You wish I wouldn't spend my time running about after things that are cheap, when there is so much for me to do at home? Now, if I didn't know how unreasonable you are, Hazel, I should take offense at that very unkind speech of yours. However I've got something here that will please you. Didn't you say something about wanting a new straw hat last night? Here's the very thing—and only a dollar. What's the matter with the brim, did you ask? Now, Hazel, don't give it such a twitch—it's only raveled out a little, or I never should have got it at that price. You won't wear such a scarecrow! Of course not. That's right—break your poor wife's heart when she tries so hard to economise for you.—You'd a great deal rather I would mend your coat for you? Ha-se! you don't mean to tell me that you've worn through that coat already? That beautiful cloth that I got so cheap? You guess it was one of my cheap bargains? Hazel, I've almost a mind to declare that I never will try to save money for you again. Well, Bridget, what's the news in the kitchen? The baby has crawled against the bars of the range and burned himself? Why upon us, Bridget, how can you be so careless? The cat has knocked the tray down, with all the best china upon it, and some beggar has contrived to get it, and steal two of the silver spoons? Hr. Hazel's new Marseilles vest scorched to a cinder in the ironing—the preserves molded, so that you had to throw them away—the pies and cake forgotten in the oven—the refrigerator out of order—there, Bridget, don't tell me any more, unless you want to have me go crazy at once. What are you smiling for, Hazel? I don't see anything to laugh at. You would have liked to know how much I have saved in my bargains today? Well, let me see—twenty yards of merino—wet muslins—hat. Seven dollars at least—and I hope you appreciate all the trouble I have taken. It's what I call a pretty good day's work—don't you? Oh, certainly you do—only, since the damage in the kitchen can't be less than forty dollars, and forty is greater than seven by just thirty-three, you think I would find it rather more economical, in the long run, to stay at home and mind my own business? Oh, Hazel, Hazel!—That's just the view a man takes of things—as though I was to blame for all these accidents.—Well, I suppose it is the duty of us poor women to suffer and be silent. But I must say, it is sharper than any serpent's tooth I ever saw, to have a thankless husband!—Life Illustrated.

DRY goods stores are sometimes the scenes of ludicrous conversations. The other day a young lady stepped into a well known establishment in town and inquired of a fine-looking young clerk: "Sir, have you any mouse-colored ladies' gloves?" "Mouse colored ladies', miss?" "Yes, a sort of grey—just the color of your drawers, here," meaning the store drawers, of course, which were painted grey. "My drawers, miss," ejaculated the young man, glancing downward to see if everything was right and tight. "My drawers, miss! why I don't wear any!" The young lady was carried home on a shutter.

A SENSIBLE OFFICER.—An English volunteer rifle captain, desiring to cross a field with his company, came to an opening in the fence large enough to admit two persons, but no more, to pass two abreast. Unfortunately he could not remember the words of command which would have accomplished the difficult task of filing through; but his ingenuity did not desert him, and, therefore, he ordered a halt, and then said:—"Gentlemen, you are dismissed for one minute, when you will fall in on t'other side of the fence."

"MISS JOSEPHINA," said a thick, cherry-looking lipped negro, to one of Africa's daughters, "Miss Josephina, will you do dis nigger de anticipation of dancin' a Werginia reel wid 'im?"—"I doesn't assent to dance wulgarscious dances ob dat sort, Mr. Caesus," said Miss Josephina, turning up still higher her well rounded lip. "I dances only de polker."

MRS. PARTINGTON says: "I haven't any desire to live longer than the breath remains in my body, if it isn't more than eight years. I wouldn't wish to be centurion, and the idea of surviving one's factories always gives me a disagreeable consciousness. But whatever is to be will be, and there is no knowing a thing will take place till it expires."

A LADY observing a little one, apparently lost in the street, accosted her with the question: "Whose child are you?" "Child of wrath, ma,am," cried the little urchin, dropping a courtesy, as if addressing a parson. The lady resumed and said, "Where was you born?" "Born in sin, ma'am," persevered the diminutive theologist.

CHARLOTTE SMITH was walking along Piccadilly, when the tray of a butcher's boy came in sudden contact with her shoulder, and dirtied her dress. "The deuce take the tray," exclaimed she, in a pet. "Ah, but the deuce can't take the tray!" replied the young rumpsteak, with the greatest gravity.

"AH," said a pious Sunday School teacher, "ah Caroline Jones, what do you think you would have been without your good father and pious mother?" "I suppose, mum," said Caroline, who was very much struck with the soft appeal: "I suppose, mum, as I should ha' been a horphan!"

AN enraged gentleman addressing from his chamber window a youth who had been serenading his daughter half an hour, said, "You are a great bore, and I think you mean to keep on boring until you get water," adding, "here it is," emptying a pitcher full upon his head.

NEVER be so rude as to say to a man "There's the door;" but say, "Elevate your galgotta to the summit of your pericardium, and allow me to present to your occular demonstration, that scientific piece of mechanism which constitutes the egress portion of this apartment."

"I do not wish to insult you, gentlemen, but I must take the liberty of telling you that there has been a good deal of hard lying under this roof to-day." "Yes, sir," was the reply, "and it has pretty much all been done under the roof of your own mouth."

YOUNG PUDDLEFORD fell in love the other day. He says he felt like a barrel and a-half of new maple sugar sliding down a rainbow, greased with butter at forty cents a pound. Pea-pod soon after left to get his life insured.

WE know of a very pretty young lady who has a bashful lover named Joy. She is impatient to have him "pop the question," and thinks of availing herself of the female privilege of leap year. In that case, it would be a "leap for Joy."

'Bos, did you hear that my father gets married again next Easter?"

'No, Tom I did not. Does he get an old woman?"

'No sir-ee! He gets a new one.'

THE GREAT REMEDY.—CERTIFICATE.—MESSRS. R. F. HUNTER & Co.—Sirs:—My son, two years old, having been unwell for a considerable length of time, and my rest lost at night, I was induced by the persuasion of a friend to try your "Worm Cakes." After taking one dose he passed at least half a pint of worms of various sized. One week has elapsed since I commenced giving him the cakes, and his health is perfectly restored. In my experience in life I have never known a medicine to act with such certainty. Its popularity as a Worm Remedy is destined to a success that no other medicine has ever attained. Yours, Truly, HENRY L. ACKER. (Mr. Acker is editor of the "Democratic Standard," and Postmaster of Pottsville.) May 19, '60 20-3m*

A RARE CHANCE For Profitable Investment of the most Valuable Property in the Borough of Pottsville.—THE subscribers offer the following valuable property at Private sale: No. 2. All that well known tavern stand situated on Centre street, known as the NORTHWESTERN HOTEL, and kept for many years by DANIEL HILL. This valuable property will be sold with the adjoining property—the two containing in front on Centre street 54 feet 6 inches, and extending back of equal width 240 feet wide alley 230 feet to Second street, and northwardly along Second 4 by 62 feet 9 inches, with the improvements consisting of a two-story frame tavern house, with a large and commodious three-story brick building thereto attached. This building has been erected within a few years, and the whole arrangement is complete. The subscriber, who prefers the cooking department, it is believed, will compare with any hotel in the country. Also, A large and commodious two-story brick stable, with extensive yard room. Also, A large three story stone and brick building fronting on Centre street, with a store-room on first floor and dwelling on the second and third stories. This property, as a business stand, cannot be surpassed. No. 3. That old and well known business stand situated on Centre street and for many years occupied by N. L. Loose and others, as a flour and feed store. This valuable property adjoining Bright & Lerch's iron store on the north and James Slippy on the south, containing in front on Centre street 28 feet 3 inches, and extends westwardly at the same width 85 feet with right of alley way from Centre street through the arched alley now used for the hotel and adjoining properties. The buildings on the property consist of a good and substantial two-story stone building forty feet deep, the first story occupied as a store, and the second story as a dwelling, all conveniently arranged and in good order. To this is attached a large two-story frame store house with extensive granaries for storing grain. This property from its location for business, is well worth the attention of persons desirous of going into the flour and feed business. If this property is not sold before the 15th day of March it will be for rent. Possession will be given on the first of April next. No. 4. Five lots of ground on Mahantango street, extending from the brick building in the rear of Hofel, along said street, to the three story brick building on the southeast corner of Mahantango and Second streets. This property is too well known to require any remarks. Nos. 1 and 2, adjoining three story brick building, containing in front on Mahantango street, 42 feet, and in depth 40 feet, with frame market house, occupied by HENRY ROSENGARDEN.
