CITY ITEMS.

THE COUNTRY NOW.—The Thirteenth of August has seldom ever found the country in a more lovely and luxuriant condition than is now. Both the fertile agricultural districts of our adjoining counties, and in fact the major portion of our State. The green meadows, under the effects of the recent rains, now present a crop ready for the scythe almost as heavy as that which they yielded in June, whilst the fields, in most cases, are covered with an aftergrowth of clover and timothy, that really gives the face of the country a May-like appearance. The pastures are rich. The brooks go murmuring along, not for any want of the crystal treasure, but laughing rather in the refreshing abundance with which the recent rains have supplied them. Fruit, as a whole, may be put down as less than an average crop, but if Eastern Pennsylvania may be taken as a sample, our people throughout the land have certainly cause to feel grateful in being blessed with an abundant yield of all the more substantial staples of the farm. The crops that have thus far been gathered certainly warrant us in saying as much, and from the present appearance of those still in course of maturing, nothing but extraordinary drought is likely seriously to affect them. So much for the prosperity of the country. And if this hope is realized, the intelligent reader need hardly be told that its fruition will be no mean item toward resuscitating the prosperity of the city. Our data for what we have here stated is what our eyes have seen in a flying trip—from which we have just returned—through an important section of the country we have referred to.

THE WHOLESALE CLOTHING TRADE.—Few persons are fully aware of the extent and importance the Wholesale Clothing trade of this city has attained. Having recently had occasion to visit the old established clothing house of Messrs. Chas. Harkness & Son, Fourth and Market streets, we found their present preparations to be of the most extensive character.

To many of our business men the name of Charles Harkness is well known as identified with the rise and progress of the clothing business in Philadelphia. As much as forty years ago he laid the foundation of this industrial branch of trade, which has since then become so important an item, not only to the commercial enterprise of our city, but to many thousands of mechanics of both sexes, who through this industrial avenue are enabled to earn a comfortable livelihood.

It is not saying too much of Mr. Harkness (as those who best know his generous nature will admit,) that considerations of humanity, as much as the spirit of commendable enterprise, entered into the plans from which the immense clothing trade of Philadelphia has since been developed. Being the oldest, and occupying from the commencement a prominent place in the front ranks of this department of trade, their patronage has steadily kept pace with their superior facilities for supplying the demands, until now their house is familiarly known all over the West and South. Their liberality, both in point of prices and time (having been some years ago the only house in this city from which a Southern merchant could purchase a bill of clothing on time) has won for these gentlemen an enviable reputation with buyers in all parts of the Union.

A LARGE IMPORTING HOUSE.—The house of Ridgway, Heussner, & Co, No. 203 Chestnut street—whose advertisement will be found under its proper head in another column—presents a card which, from the character of the manufactures represented upon it, will necessarily attract the attention of our jobbers in this, as well as other cities through the West and South.

The high tone and character of the gentlemen composing this firm may readily be inferred from the confidence which many years of business intimacy has secured from the widely-known European manufacturing establishments they represent. We take pleasure in commending their very superior stock to the early attention of the trade.

THE SHOWER which greeted us yesterday so gratefully, making the air purer, and the streets cleaner, and the grass greener, had very much the same effect upon the vegetable kingdom, that a salt water bath has on corporeal humanity, at either Cape Island or Atlantic City, dressed up in one of Sloan's inimitable bathing robes, with this single exception—humanity keeps all the greener for staying at home. The said Robes are to be had at 806 Market street, or either of the watering places above named.

ST. PAUL'S, LONDON.—The height of St. Paul's, London, is 340 feet; its greatest length within is 500 feet; its greatest breadth 223 feet. It would be difficult to state how many persons it will hold. You can form a general idea by allowing one square foot to each person, provided the person does not wear crinoline; for the wearer of hoops, five feet square will be needed; while only a moderate space would be occupied by those who are attired in garments from the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth.

PHILADELPHIA INSTITUTIONS.—Among the many noteworthy institutions of our city, and specially deserving a visit from strangers, may be enumerated the Hall of Independence, Franklin Institute, Academy of Fine Arts, Academy of Natural Sciences, Girard College, the Mint, Academy of Music, and last, though not least, Eldridge's "Old Franklin Hall Clothing Emporium." No. 324 Chestnut street, where may be found one of the largest and best selected assortments of ready-made Clothing to be seen in the city. No one visiting the "City of Penn" should fail to call at this justly celebrated establishment, and make the acquaintance of friend Eldridge.

THE RESUMPTION OF TRADE.—The present indications are that the fall trade will begin early, and be carried on with considerable vigor. Our citizens are already returning from the adjacent summer resorts, the hotels are filling up, and strange faces meet us in the thoroughfares. We yesterday happened in at the mammoth clothing establishment of Granville Stokes, No. 607 Chestnut street, and were surprised at the vastness and beauty of his stock of summer and fall goods for gentlemen's wear, ready made and in the piece. Strangers desiring a splendid outfit at reasonable terms should by all means go there and examine for themselves.
