AN ADAM CITIZEN.—We see that our exchanges, in different parts of the country, are mentioning the old man living in their respective counties and neighborhoods. Bucks county has also produced some remarkable citizens, who, in point of age, will compare favorably with those of other parts of the State. The most aged one which we now have in our mind is Mr. Safety Hughes, of Northampton township, who is now almost ninety-six years old. He was born in Southampton township, and lived for several years with his uncle, Thomas Folwell, in the house in which Horatio G. Yerkes now lives. He possesses all his faculties to a remarkable degree, and has a distinct recollection of events which took place nearly ninety years ago. Some time since, when on a visit to him, he related to us, the following incidents connected with the battle of the "Crooked Billet," now Hatboro, to-night on the first day of May, 1778, and of which he was an eye-witness. He said: "I was living with my uncle, Thomas Folwell, in Southampton township, in the house where Horatio G. Yerkes now lives. On the morning of the battle of the Billet, now Hatboro, I heard the firing very distinctly, and a black man, named Harry, and myself concluded we would go and see what was going on. I was then about thirteen years. We started from the house, and went directly toward where the firing was. When we came near where Johnsville now stands, we heard a heavy volley there, which brought us to a halt. The firing was in the woods. The British were in pursuit of our militia and chased them along the road that leads from Johnsville to the Bristol road, and also through the field from the Street road to the Bristol road. They overtook the militia in the woods at the corner of the Street road, and the one that leads across to the Bristol road. When the firing had ceased, we continued on to the woods, where we found three wounded militia-men near the wood; they appeared to have been wounded by the sword, and were much cut and hacked. When we got to them they were groaning greatly. They died in a little while, and I understood they were buried on the spot. They appeared to be Germans. We then passed on, and in a field near by we saw two horses lying dead—they were British. One of them was shot in the head, and the gun had been put so near that the hair was scorched. While we were on the field, Harry picked up a cartouch box that had been dropped or torn off the wearer. Shortly after, we met some of the militia returning, and when they saw the black fellow with the cartouch box, they became very indignant, and accused him of robbing the dead, and took it away from him. These dead horses were on the farm of Col. Joseph Hart. Soon after this we returned home. The last man was killed on the Bristol road, at the end of the road that comes across from Johnsville. A British officer, who was wounded in the battle of the Billet, was taken to the house of Samuel Irvine, who lived near by. His wounds were dressed there, and he afterwards returned with the troops to Philadelphia. This affair created a good deal of excitement in the neighborhood."—Doylestown Democrat.

"A KEEPSIT, SHEPHERD."—Mormonism is still in practical operation amongst us. A few days since a tall, raw-boned Saint, with a complexion very strongly resembling that of boiled tripe, arrived here from Pittsburg with a couple of wives, but declaring his flock too small to start Salt Lake, and, with, held forth as follows to an admiring audience, at a house over the canal, with a view to the complete oness of his domestic felicity. His text was:

"'Man is S'eerce and Weeman is Plenty."

"Brothers and Sisters—pertickler the Sistern: I want to say a few words to you about Mormonism—not for my own sake, but for yourn, for men is s'eerce and weemen is plenty.

"Mormonism is built on that high, old principle which sez that it aint good for man to be alone, and a mighty sight worse for a woman. Therefore, if a man feels good with a little company, a good deal of it ought to make him feel an awful sight better. . . . . .

"The first principle of Mormonism is, that woman air a good thing, and the second principle is that you can't have too much of a good thing. Woman is tenderer than man, and is necessary to smooth down the roughness of his character, and as man has a good many rough pints in his natur, he ought n't to give one woman too much to do, but set each one to work smoothin some particular pint.

"Don't think I'm over anxious for you to line us for I saint. I'm rich speakin' for my good, but for yourn; for men is s'eerce and weemen is plenty.

"I said woman was tenderer than man, but you needn't feel stuck up about it, for so she ought to be; she was made so a purpose. But how was she made so? Where did she git it from? Why, she was created out of the side-bone of a man, and the side-bone of a man is like the side-bone of a turkey—the tenderest part of him. Therefore, as a woman hat three side-bones, and a man only one, of course she is three times as tender as a man is, and is in duty bound to repay that tenderness of which she robbed him. And how did she rob him of his side-bone? Why, exactly as she robs his pockets now-a-days of his loose change—she took advantage of him when he was asleep.

"But sp. women is more tender than man, so is man more forgiveness than woman, therefore I won't say anything more about the side-bone, or the small change, but invite you all to jine my train, for I'm a big shepherd out our way, and I've a sumptuously every day on purple and fine linen.

"When I first landed on the shores of the Great Salt Lake, I wasn't rich in weemen, I had but one poor old ewe, but I was s'eerce and weemen is plenty, and like a keerful shepherd I begin to increase my flock. Weemen heard of us and of our lovin' ways, and they kept a pourin in. They come from the North, and they come from the South, they come from the East, and they come from the West; they come from Europe; they come from Alshey, and a few of 'em from Afrikey, and from bolin' the miserable owner of one old ewe, I become the joyful shepherd of a mighty flock, with a small smart sprinkin of lambs, friskier and fatter than anybody else's, and I've still got room for a few moro.

"As I said before, I'm not talkin' pertickler for my benefit, but for yourn—for men is s'eerce and weemen is plenty. Still, I'd a leetle rather you'd go along with me than not, pertickler you fat one with the caliker sun-bunnet. Don't hesitate, but take the chance while you can git it, and I'll make you the bell-ross of the flock. I'll lead you through green pastures and the high grass; show you where you may saper in the sunshine, and lay down in pleasant places; and, as you are in pretty good condition already, in course of time you shall be the fattest of the flock. Jine in, jine in; jine my train; jine it now; for men is skeerce and weemen is plenty."

The appeal was irresistible. At the last account, the fat woman with the caliker sun-bunnet" had "joined in," and two or three others were on the fence, with a decided leaning toward the "Keerful Shepherd."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

RELIABLE TESTIMONY.

We call the attention of the reader to the following letter from President Smith, of Wesleyan University:

SETH W. FOWLE & Co.—Gentlemen: I first made use of the OXYGENATED BITTERS some seven or eight years ago. I was suffering from a cough, which was in form of DYSPEPSIA, which was attended with a bad liver headache, so an average of one week in each three days in a week, I was induced by the unprotecting recommendation of Dr. Green, to try one bottle, and if no benefit was received to discontinue the use.

The use of one bottle warranted a further trial, to the extent of some three or four, with a careful observance of the accompanying directions. The result was almost entire relief from the usual dyspeptic symptoms, and their depressing, painful consequences. I believed these bitters produced an entire change in the habits of my system, and upon the active operation of the digestive organs. I now deem myself as exempt from dyspepsia as most persons. These bitters have also been of service to other members of my family.

Very respectfully yours,

AUGUSTUS W. SMITH.

YONKERS, Livingston co., N. Y., Oct. 1, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & CO.—Sirs: I have been solicited by more than one person to procure a supply of the restorative qualities of your "Oxygenated Bitters," to which I cheerfully comply, in a limited way, and in the hope that many more may experience its invigorating effects.

Dyspepsia, with its numberless associates, took up its abode with me, in opposition to the skill of many of the most celebrated physicians, until it was thought by some (if no relief could be found) to surrender, and bid adieu to its earthly tabernacle, when I was induced, by the urgency of a friend, to try a bottle of your preparation that the Gilead was in the boundless sea of patent medicines, as it was the first bottle I ever thought proper to quaff, but, thanks be to God, was a balm, and a most efficient and grateful one, too. The most aggravating symptoms in my case were the immediate relief from a bar beating of the heart immediately after taking food, attended with great prostration, and frequent, painful, violent attacks of palpitation, lasting from twelve to twenty-four hours, leaving the stomach so perfectly powerless that even a glass of the purest cold water would seem burdensome. I commenced the use of the Bitters by taking half a tea-spoonful, twice a day, to a full one. I was very perseverING until I had taken three bottles; since then, at intervals, I have taken two more.

I began to realize its genial effects immediately; besides it is extremely grateful and refreshing as a beverage, which is a charm that but few medicines can boast of. I would, sire, most heartily and correctly beg all who are afflicted with Dyspepsia in any form, to try your Oxygenated Bitters, as I do esteem them invaluable.

Very respectfully, Rev. M. STOCKING.

No certificate will be issued for any less sum than ten dollars, nor for any fractional part of one dollar. Sums less than ten dollars will not be thus ascertained, but are credited to the insured on the books of the Company, and if within any period of ten years, the said credit amount to ten dollars, certificates therefor will be issued.

Certificates of Profit are liable, equally with the Capital stock, for the losses and engagements of the Company, and may be converted into Capital Stock at any time, at the option of the holder.
