LAST Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Mc-Geehin, of this place, was seriously, if pot fatally, burned through the careless use of kerosene. The fire was out, as she supposed, in the stove; the oil can was called into requisition for the purpose of starting up a quick fire, but no sooner had the oil struck the wood, under which lay some unnoticed coals, than an explosion occurred, blowing the oil can to pieces, and covering Mrs. Me-Geehin with the burning fluid. Luckily a party of surveyors were near the house at the time of the explosion, and going in succeeded in putting out the flames. Another accident from kindling fire with kerosene. When will people learn that it is injudicious to thus use this dangerous fluid?

FAIR PLAY AT THE PRIMARIES .-As the "Crawford county" system of making party nominations has proved a comparative failure and an inadequate check for fraud, the latest device for effecting the same end will be received with favor, and will probably be adopted in many counties. It hails from Clarion, where it is practiced by the Democrats, and is a combination of several systems, with an idea from Mr. Hare's plan of voting. The method is briefly as follows: Each voter votes for one person for each of the offices to be filled at the susequent general election, and also for two delegates to carry the returns of the election to a convention to be held at some designated place. The convention is composed of these delegates, who in casting the votes of their respective districts are governed by the result of the vote at the primary election, casting the vote for the person who had previously received the highest number. They continue to vote thus from which she was to make a selection, the east, Judge Butler, of Chester, and until this person is either nominated or withdrawn, after which they cast their ballot for the next highest candidate, and so on. The plan is somewhat complex, and will hardly come into general labeled twenty-five dollars, and she de- Bench The combination which was use .- [Pittsburgh Telegraph.

ley kills William Falen, an old man of Sixty-six years, in Horton Township, this county .- Last Saturday afternoon, 19th inst., there occurred, in Horton township, one of the saddest murders it has ever fallen to our lot to chronicle, Several persons were interested in the quarrel which was the forerunner of the horrible deed, all of whom had been to Oyster's in attendance on the Democratic primary meeting held there, and on their return home from the meeting, the party, consisting of William Falen and James Falen, his son, William Bromley, and John Bromley, his son, and James and Dennis Donovan, having imbibed an extra quantity of liquor, entered into a controversy. William Bromley accused James Falen of receiving mouey from Windfelder (one of the candidates for Treasurer), for working in his favor, and Falen in turn accused Bromley of receiving money from Messenger (the other candidate) for the same purpose. The parties were riding, the Donovaus on horseback, and the Falens and Bromleys in wagons. Wm. the postoffice, have on hand at all Falcu tried to drive past Bromley but he furned his wagon cross-wise of the road and thus prevented the old man from passing. Thus matters progressed until the arrival of the party opposite Falen's house when Fulen tried to turn in, and Bromley with the same cussedness he had evinced on the road tried to prevent him from so doing. Fallen finally managed to get inside his own yard when Bromley, leaving his team in the hands of his son, followed in continuing his abuse. James Falen at this time spoke something about bringing out the gun, when Donnis Donovan spoke up and suid, "Don't bring out the gun Jim, there is no need of shooting anyone." When the gun was spoken of, Bromley ran across the road and procuring a stick, or piece of fence rail, returned to the yard of Falen, and struck the old man on the head knocking him down.

Word of the affair was immediately sent to Sheriff Oyster, who was at the Oyster Hotel, and who went to the scene of conflict, and arrested Dennis and James Donovan, and John Bromley, and brought them to jail. FILE YOUR PAPER .- An exchange William Bromley made his escape and is still at large. William Falen lived until 6 o'clock Sunday morning, when he died; the fraces occurred about 9 o'clock the evening previous.
