PROFESSOR WISE'S balloon, in which he and Mr. Donaldson, with others, are to make the attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean, is steadily approaching completion. Besides the large, principal balloon, there will be two small balloons, to be used as feeders, all of which are to be constructed of muslin, varnished. The difficulty will be to secure a safe ascension, after which it is claimed no trouble will be encountered "in the machinery," on the voyage. The grand start is to be made on the 15th of ... ugust, when we will be better able to make a statement on all these points than we now are, for the enlightment of the reader .- [State Journal.
