Philadelphia Markets.

August 11—Evening.

The Flour market is inactive and holders are firm in their views, with a limited inquiry to note, both for export and home use. Sales include a few small lots of superfine at $5.12½@5.25. Extra at $5 37½@5 62 400 bbls Ohio extra family at $5 87@6 12½, and 600 bbls Ohio extra family at $7.25 per bbl. Sales to the trade range at the above figures as to brand and quality. Rye Flour and Corn Meal are scarce and wanted; the former, at $3 per bbl.

WHEAT.—There is not so much demand to-day, and about 8 000 bushels found buyers at $1 30@1.35 for good prime reds; $1 40@1 42 for white. Rye is selling on arrival at 80@81 80 for Penna. Corn is unchanged, and about 5 000 bushels sold at 65c afloat, including some in store at the old yellow sold at 65c. Oats are more active, and 5@6 000 bushels sold at 40@43c for old Delaware and Pennsylvania, and 38@39c for new Southern.

Rye is firmer, with small sales of 1st No. 1 Quercitron at $33 ℔ ton.

Cotton is firmly held; the stock is light, and sales very limited.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.—There is very little movement in either, and no alteration in prices.

WHISKY continues dull; bbls selling slowly at 30@31c, and 24@26c ℔ gallon for drudge.

Philadelphia Cattle Market, August 11.

The receipts of Beef Cattle continue large, reaching about 1600 head. The market continues very dull, and prices about the same as last quoted, ranging at from $7 to $8 ℔ 100 lbs for ordinary Western, and $7.50@8 50 for good Western and Chester county Cattle. First quality Cattle continue scarce, and would bring better prices. The stock on sale, as we have noticed for some time past, continues rather poor.

The market closed very dull, the warm weather operating unfavorably on the stock and demand. 300@400 head will be left over this week, as the receipts are larger than the demand.

The stock on sale are from the following States: 726 head from Ohio, 518 head from Illinois, 310 head from Chester county, Pa.

J. Abraham, 43 head Illinois Steers, selling at from $7@8.

Infamous Attack on Northern Editors.

The Baltimore American, of Thursday, says:

We received this morning a batch of Richmond papers down to August 2. Among the number is a copy of the Richmond Whig, from which we extract the following personal assault on one of the proprietors of the Baltimore American, which reeks so thoroughly with falsehood, from beginning to end, that we publish it as an evidence of the debasing influence of treason on a man who once had some character for veracity. Mr. Welling, of the National Intelligencer, is also coupled with us in this slanderous attack, but we doubt not will laugh at its rancor as heartily as we have:

[From the Richmond Whig.]

YANKEE EDITORS—FULTON AND WELLING.

Be it from us to complain of the editors of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and the other thoroughgoing Yankee cities. Swine will wallow in filth, whenever there will live on carrion. Perhaps some notice should be taken of Wallace, of the New York Herald. Wallace is a Virginian. Poor devil, he sold himself, body and soul, to Bennett, years ago, and must do Bennett's bidding. But unprincipled Swiss as he is, Wallace's heart has all along been with the South. His editorials show this. In his worst diatribes against the rebels, there may be detected an undercurrent of sarcasm, a devilish jeering at the North, and a dropping of innuendoes and suggestions well calculated to unsettle public opinion. His panegyrics upon Lincoln are rich in irony. His assaults upon the abolitionists are evidently sincere. He knows they brought on the war, and he has seen, from the beginning, how that war will end. He is steadily working up the fiendish spirit of the mob against the authors of the war. Alas! what a day that will be when the infuriate mob is turned loose upon the Greeleys, the Bryants, the Raymonds, the Sumners, Weeds, and Wilsons. Bennett approves these machinations of Wallace, for Bennett always keeps an eye to the windward. He knows that the day of retribution will surely come, and is preparing for it. At least one newspaper office in New York will not be levelled. It is Wallace, we think, who writes those Baltimore letters, in which such appalling statistics of the rebel armies are given. Would to God we had the force in the field that Wallace gives us; not many months would elapse before we would give him a chance to hang out his Confederate flag. Wallace has done the best he could for us, and we pass him by. But there are two Yankee editors for whom the people of the South entertain none of the kindly feeling they bear towards Wallace. These editors are Charles C. Fulton, of the Baltimore American, and Jas. O. Welling, of the National Intelligencer. More than once this couple have been held up to the public review, and it is not probable they will ever be forgotten. We shall do our part to keep their memories green.

☞ Of Fulton's origin nothing is known. It is said he began life as a printer. If it could be proved that he worked his way up to his present position of editor and proprietor of the Baltimore American and agent of the Associated Press by honest arts, he would be entitled to credit. But his honesty is very doubtful. A man who can be the lickspittle to Lincoln that he has been, and who could write the slavish article he wrote after coming out of Fort McHenry, can hardly have the courage, the manliness, to be truly honest. How Fulton, as agent of the Associated Press, managed to support his family and save money enough to buy half of so rich a paper as the American, has never been explained. Perhaps he saved some money and borrowed the rest. How he contrived to worm poor old Dobbin out, and become sole proprietor, needs no explanation. What chance had the simple-minded old gentleman against a cute Yankee with his fingers in the till?

Fulton's course previous to the Baltimore riot, and for a few days afterwards, is well known. The trimming conduct of his paper, dictated by the plainest cowardice, is still fresh in everybody's recollection. Not only this, but his personal behavior, his looks his very words, both at the time of the riot and just after the battle of Manassas, have been narrated to the people of Richmond and to Maryland refugees. This behavior, it need hardly be said, was not admirable. Some allowance should be made for Fulton. He is a full-blooded, uneducated Yankee. He loved the Union, as all Yankees do, and ought to do, for to them it was "the best Government on earth." It never oppressed them. Of course Fulton loved it, and hated the South. He knew nothing about political principles—how was it possible for him to understand the doctrine of Secession? He had never read history; the origin of the Constitution and the true nature of the Government were mysteries to him. He did not edit his paper. Whatever character it had was derived from unknown writers, three at least of whom resided in this city.

But the secret of Fulton's bitterness toward the South consists not so much in his love of the Union as his hatred of the better class of Baltimore society. He was never deemed a gentleman and received into polite circles. The low-born, low bred peasant's instinct of hostility to the upper class was strong in Fulton. He felt the joy of a sans culotte when he could safely abuse the ladies and gentlemen of Baltimore, every morning, in his paper. Yankee bayonets had put this Yankee scullion in power. What wonder that he took a malignant delight in reviling as "rebels" the men who would have kicked him out of doors as unworthy to associate with their families, not because he was ignorant and of humble birth, but because he was unmannered, and of doubtful honesty; in a word, because he was a genuine Yankee!

Late numbers of the American show that Fulton is more bitter than ever against the South. To be sure he is. All Yankees are. It is the nature of whipped people to become bitter. Fulton is especially pained because the "rebels" of Baltimore still eject him from their doors. We hope he will continue his bitterness to the bitter end, for it will be very bitter to him. We trust the citizens of Baltimore will watch him when he begins to pipe another tune in the American, and insist upon his remaining in the city after the war.

For Welling there is no excuse. He is a man of education, of extensive attainments, of genteel associations and connections. He cannot plead ignorance. He knows that there is not a rebellion. Federalist as he is, he knows that the States are not the creatures of the central Government. He cannot plead the natural enmity of a Virginia gentleman. The sabre of his dead wife repose in the soil of this State, and the daughter of that wife resides in this city with her grandparents. All are "rebels" against the "paternal Government." Before the war broke out Welling declared his intention to remain neutral. How could he take sides when his mother lived in New Jersey and his daughter in Richmond? He had charge of an influential paper. His position was one of great responsibility. He might have left the paper, and he thought of becoming clerk of the Supreme Court, or an attaché to the Russian embassy. But the paper could hire money, and for the sake of that money he took sides with Lincoln, and hounded his minions on to the work of carnage. Human nature never descended to a depth more infamous than this. Welling is a market-man in all the South. He will do well to live abroad when the war is ended.

CITY BOUNTY FUND.

TO THE VOLUNTEERS.

Notice is hereby given, that the Ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance to make an appropriation to aid the enlistment of volunteers," approved July 26th, 1862, will be in session at its office, No. 412 PRUNE street, DAILY, between the hours of 12 o'clock M. and 3 o'clock P. M., (Sundays excepted,) for the purpose of receiving applications from, and granting certificates to, the Volunteers entitled to receive Bounty Money from the City of Philadelphia, under said ordinance and the supplements thereto. For the present, applications will be received only from those who have been enlisted in the City of Philadelphia, on account of its quota, under the call of the Governor, and have been mustered for service in the new Regiments, as the bounty to the recruits for the Old Regiments is paid from the fund raised by private subscription, and which payment, by a Supplementary Ordinance, approved August 4th, 1862, excludes such recruits from participating in the City Bounty Fund.

The same payable to all who have thus volunteered in the city of Philadelphia, and have been so mustered into the new Companies and Regiments raised (whether residents of the city or elsewhere) since the call of the President for 300,000 additional volunteers, or who shall hereafter volunteer, and be so mustered under said call, are as follows:

9 months recruits	$200 00
12-months do	30 00
3 years or the war	50 00

The Bounty is payable one-half when the Company to which the claimant belongs is full, and the captain thereof is mustered into service, and the remainder when the Regiment is completed, and the commanding officer thereof shall have been mustered into the service.

The evidence required for the certificate for the first instalment will be:

1st. A copy of the muster roll of the company, duly certified by the United States mustering officer.

2d. Satisfactory evidence that the applicant was enlisted in the city of Philadelphia for the purposes aforesaid.

For the remaining instalment, it must be shown that the claimant is still a member of the company, and that the regiment to which the company has been attached is recruited. Blank forms of application will be furnished at the office of the commission, 412 Prune street

JOHN C. KNOX, Chairman.
