CITY ITEMS.

CAPITAL CARD PICTURES OF GENERAL McCLELLAN.—Mr. F. Gutekunst, the celebrated photographer of this city, Nos. 704 and 706 Arch street, has found it next to impossible to meet the demand for the excellent cartes de visite recently made by him of General George B. McClellan. The fidelity of these pictures to life is singularly striking, being the only ones ever made, from life, in Philadelphia. The beautiful vignette of the General is a perfect gem, although the greatest demand is for the card containing the General and his lady in the same picture. We are authorized to state, also, that the life-size crayon pictures of this popular officer will be ready at Mr. Gutekunst's gallery in a few days.

THE LATE FRESHET IN THE LEHIGH, which did considerable damage in the vicinity of Mauch Chunk, and to some extent injured the Lehigh Valley railroad, has caused a good deal of fear with some people that it would tend to advance the price of Coal. We are happy to be able to state, however, this morning, that such fears are groundless, so far as it relates to the supply of Coal at the popular yard of Mr. W. W. Alter, Ninth street, above Poplar. Mr. Alter is supplying the public with the best Coal at the lowest prices, and will continue so to do.

TEAS AND COFFEES AT REASONABLE PRICES.—Mr. C. H. Mattson, dealer in fine family Groceries, Arch and Tenth streets, and one of the largest importers of the best Teas and Coffees in this market, has a large supply of these indispensable beverages constantly on hand, and is consequently enabled to sell them lower than those who buy in smaller quantities, who have to pay the advance constantly as it occurs. For fine Groceries of every description this house offers extraordinary inducements to consumers.

FINE FANCY FURS FOR LADIES are now being sold at Charles Oakford & Son's, No. 834 and 836 Chestnut street, under the Continental Hotel, at greatly reduced prices, and the same is true of their Gent's Furnishing Goods, and everything else in their several departments. In Hats and Caps their stock deserves attention as being unequalled by any other in the city, both in styles and variety of patterns.

A MODEL PHOTOGRAPHIC ESTABLISHMENT.—The ground-floor Photographic Gallery of Mr. Hipple, No. 820 Arch street, is a model of convenience, neatness, order, and taste in the execution of pictures. All who apply to him for pictures receive them promptly, and in the highest style of the art, at moderate cost.

SIGNOR BLITZ gives his usual afternoon and evening exhibitions to-day, at the Assembly Building, commencing at 3 and 7½ o'clock. The attractions will be novel and numerous, including the Canary Birds and Bobby.

THE NET proceeds of the Fair held at No. 714 North Third street, Philadelphia, during Christmas week, for the benefit of the sick and wounded soldiers, amounted to the snug sum of $106.

VICTOR HUGO'S CHARITY CHILDREN.—Victor Hugo is pursuing a system of practical charity, of which he writes as follows: "Every week the mothers of these poor children do me the honor to bring them to dine at my house. At first I had eight of them, then fifteen; now I have twenty-three. All these children dine together—English, French, Irish, Catholics, Protestants—all are mingled together, without distinction of religion or nation. I invite them that they may be happy and merry. I say to them, 'Be free.'" Some of these children are very sweet and beautiful. They would be more sweet and beautiful were they all dressed (that is, the boys) in garments from the One-Price Clothing Establishment of Granville Stokes, No. 603 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

THOSE INTERCEPTED DESPATCHES.—Uncle Sam has intercepted a lot of despatches from the rebel Government, to their emissaries abroad. They contain queer disclosures as to the wants and necessities of Secessia, and the straits to which Secesh is reduced to supply them. Secretary of State Benjamin, in a letter to Agent Slidell, at Paris, speaks in heart-broken terms of the scarcity of clothing in the revolted States, and in a private note to that distinguished traitor, he reminds the latter of the glorious days gone by, when all men could go freely to the North for supplies, and procure for themselves elegant, comfortable, and serviceable suits at the Brown-Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth, Philadelphia.

"BOY!" (RUSHING UP THE STREET, Shouting like a greased mechanic),
"Tell me, is it well and quiet
All along the Rappahannock?"

He stopped his shouts, held out his hand,
And, looking up with grin-satanic,
Said, "Ere's an extra that will tell you
All about the Rappahannock."

I bought the sheet, and o'er its form
No news I gleaned to stop the panic,
But that Stokes & Co., 'neath the Continental,
Are selling clothes that must content all
At home or on the Rappahannock.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

CHOOSING A PROFESSION.

BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL.

"Oh! what shall I be?"
Said Ichabod White;
(Quite a genius was he,
And his mother's delight.)
"Shall I be a physician?"
Young Ichabod said,
"Or a keen politician,
With less heart than head?

"Or a lawyer, devoted
To rather dry reading?
Or a parson, black-coated,
Folks heaven-ward leading?
Or a newspaper writer,
A puffing not slow?
Or shall I turn lighter,
And to battle-fields go?

"I am still undecided
How to choose a vocation,
But I'll be well provided,
(Whatever my station.)
With a suit of good clothing
From BENNETT'S Bazaar;
Then certainly nothing
My fortunes can mar."

The largest assortment of Ready-made Clothing in Philadelphia on hand, and selling below market rates.
